Foreword

SINCE THE first edition of the Testaments of Culhuacan has been out of print for some years now, a second would be appropriate. Today, it would seem superfluous to point to recent advances in Nahuatl philology and to the general significance of older Nahuatl texts, as I did in the original foreword.

But let me devote a few words to extolling the particular set of texts being republished here. The Testaments of Culhuacan are now familiar to many specialists and have been referred to in various related works. Sarah Cline herself, one of the coeditors, has made the most intensive use of them; they form the principal documentary base of her book Colonial Culhuacan,¹ surely the most comprehensive and intimate portrait now existing of a postconquest Nahua community at one particular point in time. (One of the many uses of that study is as the fullest imaginable guide to the present collection.) I too have gone over the testaments closely and repeatedly, using passages from them as examples of all manner of phenomena in my book The Nahuas After the Conquest.² Nahuatl documents in general are a rich source, and any aggregation of Nahuatl testaments especially so, but both Cline and I have found that the Culhuacan testaments seem to touch on an absolutely extraordinary number of topics, to be denser than most other wills and broader than one might expect from their mass—not to forget their exceptional color and humanity, which stand out even in a larger documentary corpus notable precisely for those qualities.

Neither Cline nor I, nor other scholars, have come anywhere near exhausting the potential of the Culhuacan testaments. Their virtual inexhaustibility is seen also in the reaction of the substantial number of students who have read the collection and always emerge with slightly different perspectives, fastening on different individuals of the many who populate the texts, or on different aspects of gender, religion, housing, money dealings, or naming patterns, or discovering as they sometimes do entirely new topics that have occurred to no one else.

The primary intention of the new edition is simply to make these important texts readily available once again. Neither the transcriptions nor the translations have been entirely redone, and the introduction and commentaries to the individual documents are substantially as before. Nevertheless, Cline and I did not fail to learn a thing or two from our later deep study of these materials, and as a result some changes have been made in the translation of certain passages. The transcriptions have been reviewed anew against the originals, with some correction of mistakes. Some typographical errors were discovered and corrected (to balance out the new ones perhaps committed). We hope that the present type face is more satisfactory than the one in the first edition, a result of technical limitations that have by now been overcome. None of us imagines that the present edition will be the last; these are texts to which scholars and others will be returning indefinitely. It would be desirable to adopt a transcription policy in which all of the overbars and other marks of the original would be retained, and a full analytical index would have obvious value. Considerations of time and expense have prevented the attainment of these goals for now. At a deeper level, many of the words and passages found puzzling at the time of preparing the first edition are puzzling still. It is to be hoped that parallel examples will be found in the other comparable texts which continue to surface, and another edition at some future time can come closer to a fully definitive translation.

THE PRECEDING speaks in terms of an edition which, quite advanced though it was, never reached completion. The reason was partly new endeavors and competing obligations of the participants. Perhaps even more decisive was the awareness of a need for deeper-going change, especially in the transcription. At the time of the original edition, some punctuation-like marks, mainly dots or periods and to some extent diagonals, were ignored as inconsistent and unessential. Surely they are not fully systematic, and through other means the meaning can usually be determined without them. But later they proved to be less arbitrary than they had seemed; in many cases they delineate a phonological/semantic phrase that is the primary feature of Nahuatl syntax, and they also help place the writing in Culhuacan in this epoch more precisely within the framework of regional and temporal evolution.

Thus the notion has now been conceived of another edition with a transcription which will reproduce everything in the original that can be rendered in print. A good beginning has been made, but completion is far from imminent, and so the present electronic version based largely on the first edition has been prepared and is being made available to individuals. Aside from the lack of punctuation, the principal feature of the transcription here that will be changed is the practice of resolving the overbar of the original with the letter n. There are good reasons for this measure, but the question of n versus the overbar hardly affects the meaning.

Not much of the content of the translations will be changed in a future edition. Some terms are retained here that in view of experience over the intervening years would now be handled differently. For example, it is now clear that the word tomín for an eighth of a peso soon virtually went out of use in Spanish, and today we translate it as “real.” The word -namic, meaning literally “spouse of either gender,” is translated here as wife or husband depending on the gender of the person referred to. Now it is known that in later times much Nahuatl usage made a distinction between -cihuauh for wife and -namic for the male spouse only, thus in effect husband, and to reflect this historical evolution the planned edition will translate -namic as spouse.

Despite the changes that are in the process of being made, in the meantime scholars and students can get the vast majority of the substance of this unique corpus from its present form.

Introduction

"THE BOOKS are filled with names of kings," complained Bertolt Brecht. And indeed our knowledge of the prehispanic Nahuas is essentially restricted to imperial histories. Until recently, historical studies of colonial-era Nahuas have also been political, emphasizing elites. Social history aims to present a more complete picture of life, a picture which includes the poor as well as the rich. Through collective biography, we discern general patterns of society from the lives of individual men and women. Many local-level Nahuatl documents from the colonial era survive, a large number of them recording transactions by ordinary people. The majority of these documents are European legal instruments of a type introduced after the conquest, but readily adopted by the Nahuas. One such type is the will. A will is a window into someone's life, an inventory of property, a list of loved ones remembered by bequests. Testaments were made by Nahua men and women from all strata of society, a rich source for colonial social history.

The book of testaments of Culhuacan, a parchment-bound set of sixty-five wills,¹ is the largest homogeneous collection of sixteenth-century Nahuatl wills known to exist. The town of Culhuacan was a famous prehispanic center, reputedly a refuge for the Toltecs. By their connections to the Culhuacan royal line, the Mexica of Tenochtitlan asserted their legitimacy as the heirs of empire. Thus any large collection of records from this historically important town has special interest to scholars. But the testaments of Culhuacan are not important only for their provenience. From the large number of extant wills, many general patterns of everyday life in a colonial Nahua town emerge: social relations, landholding, political structure, and inheritance. Some of these patterns were previously unknown, poorly understood, or known only in the most general terms. The testaments are especially valuable in that most of them were written in a very concentrated period (1579-1582) and in that a number of the testators are related to one another.

The manuscript and its origin. The book of testaments formed part of the library of Dr. Ignacio Pérez Alonso, who permitted one of us, Dr. Miguel León-Portilla, to examine it and reproduce it photographically. At the present time, it is preserved at the Library of the Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. Bound in what appears to be the original parchment, the book pertained to the Augustinian convent of San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan. At some undetermined date, possibly after the departure of the Augustinian religious in 1756, or later, after the demolition of the old church, around 1892, the manuscript passed into private hands.

The folios are of Spanish paper of the period, not the native figbark paper, amatl. Each one measures 31 x 21 cm. The unnumbered first folio is in Spanish and concerns the transfer of the testaments. What can be read of the date indicates that this part was written in the eighteenth century. The second folio is also unnumbered; it is a fragment in Nahuatl concerning the preservation of the wills. Most of the folios are numbered, however. Breaks in the numbering indicate that some folios have been lost.

The collection of testaments is large, containing 52 complete wills and 13 fragments, totaling 65. There are 29 complete testaments by men, 23 by women, and one fragment in which the gender of the testator cannot be determined. The wills are generally in chronological order, the first one dated 1579 and the last one 1599. Two wills of high nobles found near the end of the collection are dated earlier in the 1570s, don Pedro de Suero's from 1572 (Document 63) and doña María Juárez's from 1577 (Document 71). The final folio, personal memoranda on one of the notaries (Document 83), refers to events in 1606. The largest number of dated wills is from 1581 with 20, followed by 1580 with 14. Fourteen are undated, but many were undoubtedly composed in the years 1580 and 1581 since they are ¹Miguel León-Portilla published a preliminary description of the corpus, "El libro de los testamentos indígenas de Culhuacán, su significación como testimonio histórico," Estudios de Cultura Náhuatl, 12: 11-31. Parts of this introduction are translations from that Spanish text. See S. L. Cline's book Colonial Culhuacan, 1580-1600: A Social History of an Aztec Town (Albuquerque: University of New Mexico Press, 1986) for an extended analysis of the testaments of Culhuacan.

Introduction

found between testaments dated in that period, the notaries' hands are recognizable, and the testaments fall within the period of those notaries' terms of office. In addition, the people mentioned in the undated testaments appear in other contemporary wills.

The resident Augustinian religious often made notes in Spanish in the book of wills, registering the disposition of property and certifying that masses were said. While the hands of the Nahua notaries are clear and legible, the hands of the Spanish friars are often careless scrawls. The annotations in Spanish indicate the friars' continued access to the Nahuatl wills and their ongoing interest in their Indian parishioners' affairs. The religious are fray Juan Núñez, fray Juan Zimbrón, fray Cristóbal de Agurto, fray Rodrigo de Moscoso, fray Sebastián de Castro, and fray Agustín Farfán.

Documents related to the testaments of Culhuacan. Two sets of documents found in other archival repositories are closely related to the testaments of Culhuacan. One set is found in the Bibliothèque Nationale de Paris, Manuscrit Mexicain 110, known as the Proceso de Culhuacan. This is a lawsuit of the 1590s, containing a copy of the testament in Nahuatl copied by one of the principal Culhuacan notaries, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado. The lawsuit, between competing sets of heirs, is in Spanish with the exception of two native pictorials and the Nahuatl will of Cristina Tiacapan, with a translation into Spanish (the only Culhuacan testament to have a contemporary colonial translation). The other set of documents, completely in Nahuatl with native cadastral maps, is found in the Archivo General de la Nación, Mexico City, Ramo Tierras, Volume 58, expediente 4. It concerns the division of the estate of doña Juana Luisa, a member of the Motecuhzoma family. The documents include her testament and various municipal documents dealing with the division of the estate. The size of the estate and the prominence of the testator and her heirs help explain the town government's involvement. These two sets of documents were excluded from the present publication due to limitations on space and have been published separately.²

Antecedents for the introduction of testaments in New Spain. At present it has not been determined whether there were prehispanic precedents for legal, written testaments. A reference by fray Toribio de Benavente Motolinia denies such a tradition in the Cuernavaca area.

...wills were not the custom in this land, but they left their houses and lands to their children, and the eldest, if he was a grown man, possessed it, and took care of his brothers and sisters, as the father had done during his lifetime. As the brothers (and sisters?) grew up and married, the oldest brother divided with them according to what he had. And if the sons (and daughters?) (of the deceased) were unmarried, the brothers and sisters (of the deceased) entered the lands and did with their nephews (and nieces?) as I have said the eldest brother did with the other property.³

An account by Francisco López de Gómara indicates that there was a great diversity of inheritance patterns in Mexico as a whole, and between nobles and "peasants" (villanos). Gómara's general description supports Motolinia's account. The oldest brother inherited the estate and took care of his siblings, nieces and nephews.⁴ With such general rules for inheritance, there seems to be no need for written testaments. Often matters of wills and inheritance are implicitly mixed and confounded with the theme of succession to office, where definite rules operated. Durand-Forest has speculated that in preconquest times, the Nahuas may have bequeathed property through an oral declaration of will as a public act.⁵ Although a lawsuit from Mexico-Tenochtitlan says that written wills were first used by Indians in the late 1540s, there is one example of an oral testament which if valid would date to ca. 1534.⁶

We are inclined to think that although its form is presently unknown, there existed in prehispanic central Mexico some type of testamentary institution. Its existence would make it much easier to understand why in the colonial period so many Indians, far from showing resistance, made their testaments in their own language before notaries, accepting Spanish juridical forms.

Notarial practice and notaries. To fray Alonso de Molina and other friars who wrote afterward, we apparently owe the original preparation of formulas and rules for the use of notaries in charge of Indian wills. In his Confessionario mayor en lengua mexicana y castellana, published in Mexico City in 1565, there is a full chapter dedicated to this matter. A notary is to be asked:

You who are notary, did you perform your office well and faithfully, and were you discreet and prudent in all the things that you are obligated to do, or did you perhaps without the proper fidelity but with trickery and prejudice to someone give to understand and affirm that which was false? And when the invalid made a testament, signifying and declaring his final will, did you perform your office faithfully and without trickery? Do you know well all the things that you are obligated to do in order that the testament should be good and firm? Think then now about what I will tell you and I will examine well, because you are obligated to do and carry out all the things I will tell you and declare.⁷

Molina then gives a series of admonishments and rules directed to the notaries. These refer to the qualities that witnesses should have, the secrecy with which the testament is to be done, the necessity for the testator to know his or her rights and obligations, to indicate if he or she has debts to pay, and freely select the one who will carry out the dispositions. The notary ought, in addition, to read back the text dictated to him and obtain the approval of the testator and attestation by the witnesses. Finally, in the same section of the Confessionario mayor, Molina outlines a scheme for how a testament should be written, specifying formulas which became standard.

The Culhuacan wills were written by several local Indian notaries. However, there was apparently only one notary functioning at a time (there may have been another in Culhuacan's dependency of Santiago Tetla). In the first months of 1580, Alonso Dávila de Santiago signed four testaments, and his hand is identifiable in three others. Following him as notary is Juan de San Pedro, who wrote fourteen testaments in the period July–December 1580. He may have learned his skill from another notary, Miguel García, since both had similar hands. García, who wrote one of the wills, never used any of the notarial titles, such as escribano nombrado, “appointed notary,” or escribano de la iglesia, “notary of the church,” but he seems to have functioned as a notary of some kind, since his estate contained books, a writing desk, and inkpots (Document 31).

A third of the Culhuacan wills were written by Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado. A municipal document found in the book of testaments (Document 61) indicates his performance was not, however, unblemished; he suppressed a number of testaments and consequently the book was taken from him. Yet his public career did not end there. The final folio of the book indicates that he again held the office of notary as well as alcalde (Document 83).

Other notaries were (don) Alonso Dávila de Santiago, Diego Hernández, and Juan Bautista. The last may be two different men with the same name, since the hand of one text (Document 73) is quite different from that of the others (e.g., Documents 74, 76). All of the Culhuacan notaries have thoroughly Hispanized names.

Form of the testaments and textual style. Nahuatl wills follow a standard form. After a religious invocation comes a series of bequests, the first often being provisions for burial and masses. Each piece of property or possession is enumerated and a specific heir chosen. Those who witness the will are then individually named. Often the witnesses include the testators' kin and heirs. Almost obligatory witnesses are town officials, the executors called albaceas, a Spanish loanword into Nahuatl (which we have translated “executor,” the almost exact equivalent in English). The notary then affirms the validity of the will, dates it, and signs it with his name and official title. The format follows closely the Spanish model for testaments, with standard Nahuatl invocations being essentially direct translations from Spanish formulas. Usually the invocation calls upon the Holy Trinity or Jesus and the Virgin Mary. Formulas vary from one notary to another and also within the career of a given notary. Some wills lack an invocation altogether. Testaments were considered as religious as well as legal documents. In theory, the invocation and religious formulas were as important as the bequests of property which make up the body of the will. Evidently some of the Culhuacan notaries, however, gave less weight to the formulas. On a number of occasions formulas are truncated or omitted altogether, and the degree of inadvertent error in some of the introductory sections tells us that the notaries were napping while writing them. On the other hand, some invocations have extra touches which suggest that certain testators took the religious function of the will seriously and influenced the wording. The body of the testaments is also stylized, for the most part. The most typical entries are bequests of land such as the following:

And there are two chinampas of mine in Acalotenco (at the edge of the canal?), each one 20 (units of measure) long, next to the field of Francisco Cihuatecpanecatl, regidor mayor. I give them to my children, who are to cultivate them (Document 19).

Land bequests usually follow that form: identification of the type of land, the location and size, and the bequest. In this type of statement, the notary acted to regularize the wording. All the entries are made in the first person, but the similarity in wording of this type of statement points to notarial phrasing.

At times the notary reported the testator's speech more directly, recording verbatim quotes. Often these little speeches are colorful—and very revealing of interpersonal relations. The will provided testators a forum to vent their spleen, single out kin for special praise, and make explanations for their actions. Many of these speeches, often found in women's wills, explain the disinheritance of a particular person. Especially good examples are in Document 26 and Document 40.

Procedures and conventions of transcription and translation. This volume contains transcriptions of the Nahuatl and Spanish texts as well as our translations into English. We present both for a number of important reasons. Precise rendering of meaning from one language to another is virtually impossible to achieve, especially in the case of an idiom as little understood as the Nahuatl of the colonial period. We attempt to arrive at the sense of what is said, but alternative glosses are possible for many passages. The presentation of the Nahuatl transcription allows others to make their own translations. Also, the transcription gives scholars access to documents which are not easily available. Presentation of the transcription has the special advantage of allowing readers to see loanwords from Spanish and the forms they appear in.

Producing printed transcriptions from handwritten documents requires modifications of the original. We have chosen not to reproduce some standard notarial devices. Overbars to denote nasals are transcribed as their alphabetical equivalent. Thus, çā, “just, only,” in the handwritten text becomes çan in our transcription.⁹ Abbreviations for qui and que also have not been reproduced here, but spelled out. Standard abbreviations for personal names have been retained, but are resolved in the translation. For instance, “franc^{CO}” is retained in the transcription but is found as “Francisco” in the translation. Vowel length, ignored in the original (as in nearly all colonial-period texts), has not been indicated. Often the original text lacks clear divisions into separate words; our transcription creates such divisions following modern norms. In all other respects we have followed the orthography of the original.

In a number of places, the meaning of the Nahuatl text is unclear, and we have indicated through parentheses, question marks, and comments the provisional nature of the present translation. A few terms which have passed from Nahuatl into Mexican Spanish have been retained in our translation. Occasionally Nahuatl terms appear within the English text. Most notable are the terms for units of measure of land. To aid the reader, a glossary of terms follows this introduction. It includes: names for offices which are loanwords from Spanish standard in the literature; common Nahuatl loanwords into Mexican Spanish which have gained currency; and explanations of terminology difficult to translate. Where there is a very close equivalent in English, such as with ⁹In general, it can be said that there is nothing at all unusual in the way overbars are treated in the Culhuacan documents; they are used generously for all manner of syllable-final nasals, as tends to be the case in many sixteenth-century Nahuatl texts. When the Culhuacan notaries employed letters rather than overbars, they, like other writers of their time, most often wrote n rather than m for syllable-final nasals even before bilabial consonants, thus onpa, “there,” more often than ompa, quimmaca, “he gives it to them,” rather than quimmaca. In resolving overbars we have therefore always used n. There is one peculiarity in Culhuacan overbar usage; a long line is conventionally written over the name “Ana.” This could be interpreted as Anna, Anan, or Annan, but we have come to the conclusion that it is simply an additional signal to help identify a short name, thus used also at times in Spanish, and we have ignored it in transcription. Another problem is the intention where there is a line over a Spanish loanword containing ñ. Most Spanish writers made no formal distinction between the tilde and the overbar, relying on context for the correct interpretation. In the Culhuacan texts, there is no way of knowing if the intention of año, “year,” is año or anno; though the latter is more probable, we have left the overbar unresolved with such words.

"executor" for "albacea," we have used it.

The texts have been assigned document numbers, each testament or other text having its own number. At times when a note in Spanish or Nahuatl relates to a testator or topic, it will be numbered with the document it accompanies. For example, Mateo Juárez's testament is Document 24, and the notation in Spanish concerning the estate is Document 24A. Some documents are only a few lines, others are pages long. Cross-references in the text are to document numbers. Preceding the Nahuatl documents are short introductory notes, alerting the reader to some of the special features of each text. Limitations on space have kept these introductions to a few lines in most cases. Our hope is that they make the document comprehensible as a separate entity and that when the documents and brief explanations are read as a whole, the reader will acquire a cumulative knowledge of the corpus.

Significance of the Testaments of Culhuacan. From local-level Nahuatl documentation a picture of life in colonial Indian towns can be reconstructed. Since the Culhuacan wills were written by and for the use of the Indians, the resulting picture of society is entirely from the natives' perspective. This is in contrast to most works on native life, which use sources from or are directed toward the Spanish world.

Testaments are a significant source of historical and cultural information on Nahua society. Their main civil function is to provide an orderly transfer of property from the testator to his or her heirs. A will is thus an inventory of the testator's estate, usually including houses, land, and movable property such as agricultural tools, cooking utensils, weaving equipment, occasionally books and musical instruments, and in a few instances, horses and mules. A testator's choice of heirs is revealing of the social dynamics of kin relationships, with some people favored over others, and some systematically excluded.

Bequest patterns are the most obvious type of information that testaments provide. The testaments of Culhuacan are especially important because most studies of Nahua inheritance have used wills found in lawsuits as their source of information. Competing claimants introduced wills into evidence to bolster their cases. Studies of bequest patterns based on such cases are likely to have skewed results. The Culhuacan wills, bound together in a book, much the same as native baptismal, marriage and burial records, likely reflect the more normal, undisputed cases.

Since the period when the bulk of the Culhuacan wills were composed was one of epidemic mortality, there are a number of testators related to each other. Testament clusters of members of the same family show the same individuals in different social roles. For example, one Angelina Mocel (Document 50) can be seen as daughter, sister, wife and mother, in the testaments of her father (Document 47), of her husband (Document 57), and of herself. She is an heiress, witness and testator, three different legal roles.

The proportion of Culhuacan testators of high social rank is doubtless higher than among the general population. One indication of the testators' high status is their noble titles. Four testators have the Spanish noble title don or doña, while a number of others have Nahuatl noble titles, such as *tecuhtli*¹⁰ and tlacochcalcatl. In addition, a large number of testators, though untitled themselves, were related to titled people. Despite a disproportionate number of high status people among the testators, many had quite modest estates and lacked apparent ties to the upper stratum.

The wills provide a whole range of information on various aspects of Nahua cultural life. How Indian town government functioned, especially concerning estate division, can be seen. The importance of Christian religious forms is evident from the many bequests for masses to aid testators' souls. Land tenure is perhaps the largest single matter which the wills illuminate.¹¹ Native terminology is retained for soil classification, measurement, and civil categories of land, indicating strong Indian control of land in the late sixteenth century. Changes in Nahuatl due to Spanish cultural influence are evident in numerous Spanish legal or religious concepts, and also the names for objects from Spanish material culture which were in use in late sixteenth-century Culhuacan. Another phenomenon related to language is naming patterns. Christian given names were universal by this time, but individuals used a wide variety of second names, some Nahuatl, some Spanish. There were differences in the type of names men and women had. Women's were much more stylized. Names also varied ¹⁰We use this spelling, thought inelegant or incorrect by some, because it is the form of the word most frequently seen in colonial-period texts and specifically in the testaments of Culhuacán.

Introduction

along class lines, nobles tending to have more Hispanized names.

Although the testaments often have stylized texts, nonetheless they are the final words of the dying. From them fine and valuable analyses of cultural patterns can be written, but just as importantly, in them the voices of long dead men and women are heard.

Glossary and Conventions of Translation

Albacea* - Executor	rank
Alcaide* - Jailor	Doña* - Noble title held by women of highest rank
Alcalde* - Judge and cabildo member	Fanega* - Unit of dry measure, about a bushel and a half
Alguacil* - Constable	Fiscal* - Highest Indian church official, general steward
Alguacil mayor* - Chief constable	of the church and supervisor of lower officials
Almud* - One twelfth of a fanega	Fray* - Spanish title for European friars
Altepelt - A sovereign state, including both the people and the territory; in central Mexican conditions usually of moderate size, on the order of a European city state. Became the basis of the postconquest indigenous municipality.	Gobernador* - Governor, often the same person as the tlatoani (see Juez-gobernador)
Braza - Spanish unit of measure, a fathom, commonly two varas (yards); also used by Spaniards to translate "matl" and "quahuitl"	Huehuatlalli - Patrimonial land, a special category of inherited land
Callalli - House land, land considered to go with the house and indivisible from it, but not necessarily the same as the houselot or solar	Huipil - Woman's blouse (Nahuatl: huipilli)
Calpulli - Territorial or social unit; the exact meaning unclear at present	Jacal - Hut (Nahuatl: xacalli)
Calpollalli - Calpulli land; the details of its tenure are unclear	Jícara - A type of calabash vessel (xicalli)
Chinampa - Long, narrow, man-made extensions of farmland into the lakes around Mexico City; often called chinamitl in Nahuatl; frequently referred to simply by number of chinampas without reference to the terms chinamitl or chinampa but unambiguous because of the use of the verb temi to specify location	Juez-gobernador* - "Judge-governor", the highest office in a major Indian political unit (altepetl); in the first generation or so of the colonial period the juez-gobernador was usually the tlatoani or native dynastic ruler, later the offices of tlatoani and juez-gobernador were separate
Chiquihuite - A type of basket (Nahuatl: chiquihuitl)	Matl - Unit of measure, literally "hand, arm" a measure apparently originally derived from the distance covered by both outstretched arms, though commonly more than that in practice
Church attendant(s) - Gloss for teopantlacatl "church person" and teopantlaca "church people"; often glossed in Spanish as cantor(es), "(choir) singer(s)", referring to people who accompany the deceased's bodies to church, in charge of sweeping up around the church, etc.; the same as a sacristan?	Mayordomo* - Steward, here apparently always a church official
Church tepixqui - Gloss for teoyotica tepixqui , a lower official possibly in charge of making sure people went to church	Mecate - Measure of area, in most places 20 x 20 matl but in the Culhuacan wills seemingly 20 x 200; literally "cord" (Nahuatl: mecatl)
Cihuacalli - "Woman house", possibly a common room; owned by both men and women	Metate - Grinding stone (Nahuatl: metlatl)
Cihuatepixqui - A female lower official, perhaps in charge of women	Mexicatlalli - "Mexica land", a civil category of unclear status
Cihuatlalli - "Woman land"; possibly a type of dowry land	Molcajete - Small mortar for grinding chiles (Nahuatl: molcaxitl)
Compadre* - Ritual coparent	Peso* - Spanish monetary unit of eight reales
Cuartillo* - One-fourth, of an almud or real	Petate - Reed mat (Nahuatl: petlatl)
Diputado* - Deputy	Quahuitl - Unit of measure, literally "stick" or "rod", often equivalent to the matl, though sometimes larger
Don* - Noble title held at this time only by men of highest	Quappantli - A measure for an amount of stone
	Quauhacalli - Unit of measure, presumed to be about half a fanega
	Quauhtlalli - A type of land possibly deriving from quahuitl , "tree(s)", meaning wooded land or woods or alternatively, deriving from quauhtli , "eagle", a type of conquered land
	Real - Spanish monetary unit, one-eighth of a peso
	Regidor* - Councilman in the cabildo

Glossary

Regidor mayor* - Chief councilman	Tlalcohualli - Purchased land, a fundamental civil category; found in Nahuatl local-level documentation as early as 1535
Solar* - Houselot	Tlaxilacalleque - Glossed “ward heads” but could mean simply “ward people”
Tecomate - clay (or sometimes gourd) vessel (Nahuatl: tecomatl)	Tlaxilacalli - (Residential) subdivision of an Indian town, here translated “ward”
Tecpan - Unit of social organization of high nobles; court; noble house	Tomín* - Spanish unit of money and coin equal to a real, eight to a peso; came to mean “money” in Nahuatl
Tecpancalli - Palace or community house, often where high nobles lived but with some public aspects; land often pertained to it (tecpantlalli)	Topile - Official in charge of something, literally “holder of a staff”; often the deputies (diputados) or executors (albaceas) sign their names with the title topile rather than their Spanish loanword titles
Tecuhtli - Indian noble title; lord	Topile of the church - Gloss for teopan topile , a church official of some sort
Telpochcalli - “Young-man house,” in the Culhuacan wills meaning a house built before a man’s marriage; in the traditional sources, a school for commoner boys	Yollotli - Unit of measure, literally “heart”; a measure from the middle of the chest to the outstretched hand; often half a matl
Tepixqui - Lower official, literally "one in charge of people"
Tequilt - Glossed “tribute” or “work”; found in the Culhuacan wills usually with the sense of “tribute”
Tezontle - Type of porous stone (Nahuatl: teçontli) Tlatoani - Native dynastic ruler

Document 3*Testament Fragment of the Mother of Vázquez, Nov. 18, 1579*

Testament fragments often give important information. This final portion of a woman's will allows us to identify her as the mother of Agustín Vázquez, a Culhuacan nobleman. Typically, her property consists of houses, land, and movable goods. Not unexpectedly, two of the heirs are her direct descendants, identified by name and kin relationship. A third, Martín Cano, receives a house and acts as witness to the will, but his relationship to the testator is not spelled out. This situation is frustratingly common.

Document 4*Testament of María Tiacapan (a), wife of Andrés Icnol, n.d.*

María Tiacapan is one of four women so named in the Culhuacan testaments. Tiacapan, “first” or “oldest,” is a woman's birth order name. In the present collection alone, there are ten women testators with that second name. Wills allow testators to give specific property to selected heirs. María seemingly has no children of her own and leaves her land to nephews. Testaments were used to limit inheritance as well. The weakness of stepkin relations can be seen in her restrictions on what the stepdaughters receive. Bequests of land usually give the measurements of the property, but often only the number of units of measure and not the unit itself.

cious mother Holy Mary, eternally true virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, María Tiacapan, widow, from the ward of Santa María Magdalena Cihuat tecpan, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are tranquil and healthy. I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, whose essence is just one, and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. With invocation and supplication of God our lord, I make and ordain this, my testament, my will . . . I am ordering.

- First I declare that I give my spirit and soul to our lord God because he made it and he came to redeem it with his precious blood here on earth; let him use it where he pleases, let him take it. And my body I give to the earth because from the earth it came. Also I declare that when I die, my body will be buried at our church of San Juan Evangelista.

/f. 4v/ - And I declare that the house where I am, which faces west, and another which faces toward Xochimilco with land nine matl and one yollotli long, and four matl in width, toward Huitzilopochco, all of this I give to my nephew Gaspar Cuetli. And he is to favor me with a mass. Also I give him all of the 15 chinampas of (the house). No one is to covet anything of him.

- And I declare that I have a house that faces west with land six matl and one yollotli long, and four matl wide. And I give it all to my nephew named Melchor Tleçannen. I assign it to him, and no one is to take it from him nor covet it of him. And I also give him all the chinampas of (the house), which he is already working.

- And I declare that I have dry land in Huixachtlan, 20 (units of measure) on all sides, next to the field of Miguel Téllez. And I say I give it all to my nephew Lorenzo Yaoxochiquitl. No one is to covet it of him.

- And I declare that I have a field in Santiago Tetla, 40 (units) long and 20 wide, next to the field of Tomás Nauhyotl. It is to be sold and with (the money) a mass is to be said for us.

- And I declare that 80 wooden shingles and 25 (piles) of firewood, and a beam and two square pillars, and a lintel, and two thick poles and five house-(corners?), and a quappantli of stone are all to be sold in order that a mass be said for both of us, myself and my deceased husband, Andrés Vázquez. And also a chest that does not have a lock is to be sold and a mass . . .

/f. 5r*/ - And a pot is also to be sold; in addition, a door is to be sold.

- And I declare that the person who recently was my husband and who died was named Miguel García. He left behind various commands concerning his property; he conferred it all on me, and now I am dividing it, and again I declare that according to what my deceased husband said, the level land on which two houses stand facing east is to be divided into three parts. And the land is four matl and one yollotli wide, facing Huixachtlan, and five matl (long) toward Xochimilco. And I give and bequeath all of it to my stepchildren Francisca and Juana Tiacapan. And I leave all the fields and chinampas to them; all of it will belong to them, because it is their father's property. And they will take six wooden jars. Because of (all) this, they will not make objections again. And they are to give me a peso which will be used for me, with which I will rest satisfied as the legitimate wife I was. This is all I declare.

- This is all that the invalid declared, and she does not know how to write, for which reason she did not put down her signature. Before the witnesses: Miguel Téllez, Juan Bautista, Pablo Gerónimo, Fabián Jiménez, Andrés Garcia, Domingo de San Lázaro, Lucas Lázaro, Bernardo Quauhtli, Lorenzo de Santiago, and the executors don Alonso Jiménez and Lorenzo López. And those who know how to write placed their names here.

Widowed once, María Salomé confidently entrusts the care of her child from her first marriage to her second husband, Juan Téllez. She provides the means to do so with bequests of land to her husband and child. Care of children who have not yet come of age is a major concern of testators. Concerning land, note that in some cases María specifies how many rows her chinampas are divided into, thereby giving us some rare and helpful hints on the physical configuration of the chinampa system. (Document 9 provides the same kind of information.)

/f. 6r/ Ana Mocel

- In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, I begin my testament.
 - Know all who see this document that I, Ana Mocel, whose home is here in Culhuacan, in the ward of Coatlan Momoztitlan, make my testament. Even though my body is sick, my spirit and will, my soul and understanding are tranquil and healthy. For this reason I order my testament. Here is my will, in order that it always be observed and no one go against it; it is this which I now begin.
 - First of all, I place my soul in the hands of God our lord. I ask him to favor me by pardoning me all my sins, and to carry me to his home in heaven when my soul abandons my body. And I want my body to be buried right in the church. And as a special aid to my soul, in order that it not stay long in Purgatory, I want a vigil and a mass when my body is buried.

/f. 10r/ María Salomé of San Juan Bautista Ollopan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady Holy Mary, eternally true virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, María Salomé, whose home is here in Culhuacan, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are tranquil and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, that are of just one essence. And now with invocation and supplication of our lord God, I make and order this my testament and will.

- First, I give my spirit and soul to our lord God because he redeemed it with his precious blood and with his suffering. Let him dispose of it where it pleases him. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that I have a house in Coltonco which is divided. And I declare that it is not to belong to my child, María Ana; it is to be sold for a mass to be said for my first husband, now deceased, Alonso Osorio. The house and level land are divided. Juan Yaomitl and I divide them between us.

- And I declare that I have a wooden grain bin that belonged to my deceased husband. And I say that I am giving it to my child María Ana.

- Also I declare that as to a chest and everything inside the house, the pots, the wood, and the two wooden pillars, the two (wooden brackets), I give all of it to my child María Ana.

- And I give the land at the edge of the water, five (chinampas), each with 15 furrows, to my child María Ana.

- And I say that in Amoxcuitlac there are 14 (chinampas) of 20 rows each, and I say that I give them to my child María Ana because they were the property of her father.

/f. 10v/ - And in Teccizco there is (land) 380 (units of measure) long and 20 wide. And Juan Yaomitl sows there; first he sowed eight (chinampas) that Alonso Osorio gave him, and the second time, Alonso de Nava gave him six, in such a way that in all, Juan Yaomitl sows 14. And I declare that Juan García will take five (chinampas) there that I gave him. And I give (the rest of) this land to María Ana and to my husband, Juan Téllez. Let him look after and speak for her.

- And in San Miguel (there is land) 140 (units) long, and 20 wide, next to the field of Francisco Xiuhtli, deceased. And on the other side (there is land of someone else) who is also called Francisco. And this field that I have mentioned I am giving to my child, already mentioned above.

- And my dry land, the cultivated field that my husband named Alonso Osorio Huitznahuatl gave me, is in Xalpan, in Xiloxochitla Atlauhtenco, 210 matl long and 20 wide. And my part was 155 matl. I am giving this field I have mentioned to my child (in) Tepantonco. And the remaining 55 matl were given to Juan Yaomitl.

- And in Tlallachco at the entrance of Melchor Morales there is (land) 130 matl long and 20 wide. And I declare that Juan Yaomitl should take it. I give it to him with all my heart.

- And in Yahualiuheca, in the woods, (there is land) 70 (units) long and 20 wide, all together between (the lands of) Pedro Tlacochehuatl. And I declare that with this Juan Téllez is to care for the girl. I give it to him because he is my husband; he will care for her.

Document 7*Municipal Document, Posthumous Statement for Martín, March 18, 1580*

The late Martín neglected to make a will before he died. The importance of making testaments is emphasized by this posthumous declaration to “the very magnificent lords” of the Culhuacan council concerning Martín's mere three-peso estate.

/f. 11r/ Martín from the ward of San Andrés

- Here in the town of Culhuacan, the 18th of March of the year 1580, before the very magnificent lords don Juan Marcos de Velasco, juez-gobernador, and the alcaldes of the said town, appeared don Alonso Jiménez and Miguel de Santiago, executors. And they declared orally that one called Martín from the ward of San Andrés died, and he had not left any testament, and three pesos that belonged to him had been discovered. For this reason they give orders and instruct the executors to deliver the money to the church so that with it masses will be said for Martín. And they are to search everything to see if there is anything else that belongs to him so that nothing is lost. Thus they declared and ordered, and for this reason they set down their names and signatures.

Testament of Juan Tezca, Jan. 15, 1580

Juan Tezca probably made a testament believing he would die imminently. The notary indicates in the margin, however, that Juan miscalculated his demise. Juan's only heir is his wife, but notably, he does not leave her his "patrimonial land" (huehuetlalli), a special civil category of land.

- And I declare that I have nine chinampas which my father gave me, which are in Acatzintitlan, each one 20 furrows. And I declare that I am giving them to my wife Juana.

- And I declare that I have seven chinampas that my father left me, that are in Quauhtenanco, each one 20 furrows. And I declare that I am giving them to my wife Juana.

/f. 13r/ ([The testator], from Santa María Magdalena, has not died yet).

- And I declare that I have four chinampas with 10 furrows each, with their field (that goes with them), 20 matl long and 10 wide. And I declare that I am giving it to my wife Juana.

- And also in Amaxac is my cultivated field, 10 matl on all sides. And I declare that I am giving it to my wife Juana.

- And I declare that in Xiloxochiatlauhco is my field 40 (units) long and 20 wide. And I declare I am giving it to my wife.

- And I declare that in Chalcocalcan my field is of 40 (units). And I declare that I am giving it to my wife Juana. It is next to the field of don Pedro Moysén.

- And I say that there is land in Xilomanco which we divided among ourselves, three matl each, in order to quarry stone. And my portion of the stone, that which is (still) under ground, is to be used in the church of (the ward of) Transfiguración, and what I have quarried will be used for me, and with it I will be buried.

- This is all that the invalid declared, before the witnesses Miguel de Santiago, Francisco Moysén, Juan Bautista, Gerónimo de San Pablo, Andrés García, and Jacobo Malcoch. They did not put down their names because they do not know how to write. Done the 15th of the month of January of the year 1580.

Testament of Juan Bautista, February 5, 1580

Juan Bautista likely was a young man when he died, indicated by his leaving property to older relatives. Although Juan has a modest estate, he is related to an important, titled Culhuacan official, the alcalde don Francisco Flores. Unlike other testators who knew the precise location of their properties, doubtless because they cultivated them themselves, Juan does not know where one of his fields of "patrimonial land" is.

Memorandum concerning Juan Bautista of the ward of Cihuatecpan

- First he declared, "I have seven chinampas in Acatzintitlan; Francisco Chimalquaugh came to buy them from me, and he gave me two pesos, four tomines (but it is not enough?). He just fooled me; another peso is to be given to me according to our agreement. If he does not want (to give it to me), let my chinampas be sold to someone (else).

- I also have seven chinampas in Acatzintitlan next to the chinampas of Jacobo Martín Monel (?). And I declare that I am giving them to my uncle, don Francisco Flores; I assign them to him.

- In addition, there are eight chinampas of mine in Cueptecco next to the chinampas of Juan Mimich and Antón Teilpi. These are to be sold so that with the proceeds a mass will be said for me. My late father, Juan de Santiago, gave it all to me.

- And there are seven chinampas of mine in Tlamaztonco that my late uncle, Mateo Cecuitzin, left me. These too are to be sold, and with the proceeds masses said for me.

- And I declare that I have a field in Ayauhtonco of 160 (units of measure); I give 60 to my uncle, don Francisco Flores, and I also give 60 to my stepmother Magdalena. And 40 are to be sold in order that with (the proceeds) a mass will be said for us, for me and my father and mother, because they left me the field.

/f. 16r/ Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpan

- And there is a field of mine 20 (units) (square?) in San Andrés. It is to be sold, and with the proceeds a mass is to be said for me and my father and mother.

- And there is a field of mine in Tlalachco (measuring) 40 (units). I am not well acquainted with where the patrimonial lands are there. I declare that if they are found, let the noblemen aid me when they appear; let them be sold and with (the proceeds) a mass be said for me and my father and mother.

- And I borrowed two pesos of Miguel Techichino's money, and when my field is sold, (from the proceeds) will come the money to pay the debt.

- And there is a field of mine in Huixachtlan, the inheritance of my late father, (measuring) 20 (units). With all my heart I declare that I am giving it to my uncle, don Francisco Flores, alcalde. No one is to take it from him.

- This is the entire statement that the invalid made, before the witnesses don Francisco Flores and Baltasar Cano. Done the 5th of the month of February of the year 1580.

Notes in Spanish often indicate how testators' property was disposed of. Here is a statement by Diego de Paz, one of the signers of the Relación Geográfica of Culhuacan, to the effect that he bought a piece of land from the estate of Miguel Sánchez, whose testament follows.

/f. 24r/ Conpre yo diego de paz un pedaço de tierra de miguel sanchez en nuebe p^os los cuales di a la viuda delante del padre fray Ju^o zinbron prior deste conbento y dio dellos a la yglesia cinco p^os los cuales Resibio el padre prior testigos miguel de Ribas y miguel Jacobo y don Ju^o gobernador e yo lo firme porque ansi me lo Rogaron los diputados

diego de paz

/f. 24r/ I, Diego de Paz, bought a piece of land of Miguel Sánchez for nine pesos, which I gave to the widow in the presence of Father fray Juan Zimbrón, prior of this monastery, and from that she gave five pesos to the church, which the father prior received. Witnesses: Miguel de Ribas and Miguel Jacobo (de Maldonado) and don Juan (Marcos), gobernador. And I signed it because the deputies besought me to.

Diego de Paz.

Miguel Sánchez, like other testators, identifies his houses by the direction in which they face. The houselot is called by the Spanish loanword solar. Buying and selling houses was fairly common. The prices paid were usually low, so that Miguel's three-peso house is not surprising. What is noteworthy is that he purchased it from his sister; in the Culhuacan testaments sales usually involve unrelated people.

/f. 24v/ Miguel Sánchez Tlacatecuhtli of Santa María Asunción Amantlan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady Holy Mary, eternally virgin, know all who see this document that I, Miguel Sánchez Tlacatecuhtli, whose home is here in Culhuacan in the ward of Amantlan, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and understanding are healthy. I truly believe in our lord Jesus Christ, and for this reason with invocation and supplication to him I make my testament and will.

- First I declare that I am giving my spirit and soul to God our lord because he made it and came to redeem it here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that I have two houses, where I used to be, which face east, with their houselot of 20 (units of measure) on all sides. And I give all of it to my child Gerónimo Chachalaca.

- And I have a purchased house which stands in Tianquitzenco (beside the marketplace?). I gave (paid) three pesos to my older sister María for it. It is just the house, without its land. And I give it to my child Gerónimo Chachalaca.

- Also there are 10 chinampas of mine in Quaxochtenco. And I give them to my child Gerónimo.

- And there is a chinampa of mine in Tlacatecco of 40 (units) in length, next to the field of Gabriel de San Francisco. And I give it to my child Gerónimo.

- And there are three chinampas of mine, of three (rows) each, in Atlomopilohuayan (where there is a cascade). And I give them to my niece Petronilla.

Most of the Culhuacan testaments lack long lists of movable property. The inventory of the sale of don Juan Téllez's goods indicates he owned all kinds of native products, but also things which came from the Spanish world: scissors, shoes, glass bottles, chests. Although most goods are priced in Spanish currency, values smaller than half a tomín are given in cacao beans, a traditional medium of exchange. The local prior, fray Juan Núñez, participated in the auction. Likely he was concerned about this estate division because don Juan as fiscal mixed church monies with his own. This important document contains a rare speech by the prior, directed to a doña

Juana de San Gabriel, who is presumably the widow of don Juan Téllez. Concerned as it is with obscure items of material culture, the present document also contains more than its share of translation puzzles.

 - Gabriel Maldonado bought a painted headboard(?) for 25 cacao beans.
 - Juana Tiacapan bought an old jícara for 10 cacao beans.
 - Doña Juana bought (a water sprinkler, hyssop?) for ten cacao beans.
 - Juana Tiacapan, wife of Francisco Tello, bought a jícara and a cracked tecolate and a small round basket with a handle; they cost half a tomín and 10 cacao beans.
 - The young daughter of the alguacil mayor bought a small reed basket for five cacao beans.
 - Juana Teicuh, the wife of the caretaker, bought a collapsed tecolate with a cracked rim, which cost 15 cacao beans. She also (bought) an old wooden basket with a handle, tied with maguey cords, that cost a tomín.
 - Apolonia de Coronado bought some varicolored cotton for half a tomín, and a calabash vessel (like) a water pipe painted with (quauhiztitl) for half a tomín, and a small round covered basket that cost 20 (cacao beans).
 - Mecía Teicuh bought an old jícara for 15 cacao beans.
 - And our dear father, fray Juan Núñez, prior, gave an order to the noblewoman doña Juana de San Gabriel, and he said to her, “my lady, /f.35v/ guard the proceeds from these goods and collect all the remaining goods; let it all be sold. And when it is collected, whoever gave loans to (don Juan Téllez) will be satisfied by being given the money, for there are many who are requesting money. Where are we going to get it? They will not have enough even if 20 pesos are collected with which they are to be compensated. And I myself will distribute to each one of them their property so that our children (i.e., the parishioners to whom debts were owed) will be satisfied.” Thus said the father prior fray Juan Núñez. And here is manifested what there was in the church: two chests, a (writing desk? scripture?) with a latch, a big table made of willow wood, a ladder, a (censer? brazier?), three red cups (with covers?), two jícaras, four seats with backs, a large brazier made like a big upright drum that is set on the ground, a broken sword, two benches, and three high chairs.

Testament of Miguel Chimalteuctli, July 21, 1580

Shared bequests are common in the Culhuacan testaments. Here, the testator's daughter Elena shares a house with his son Francisco and another with his grandson Matías. Occasionally people were concerned about their tribute duties. Miguel sets aside some of his crops for tribute "so that I do not cause bother for my children."

housetlot is 15 matl long and 10 matl wide. I give all of it to my daughter named Elena Teicuh; she and my grandchild named Matías will share it. And they will divide the land at the edge of the water that belongs to the house, two chinampas; each one will take one. And I beseech my children, my daughter named Elena Teicuh (and my grandchild) that they favor me with two masses.

- And I declare that there are seven chinampas of mine in Ahuacatitlan; I give them to my daughter. And there are seven chinampas of mine in a place called Ecatitlan; I give them to my daughter Elena. No one is to take them from her or dispute with her about them.

- And I declare that in Huixachtlan, in Xiloxochatlauhco (in the ravine with cornflowers), I have dry land, 20 (matl) long and also 20 matl wide. I give it to my grandchild named Matías.

- And a house of mine stands in Ahuacatitlan, with just one room. I give it to my two children, my son named Francisco Coanan and my daughter named Elena Teicuh; they are to divide it between themselves. And the two planks that I sleep on I give to my grandchild named Matías.

- And I declare that what is planted on the chinampas, if our lord God allows it to ripen, is to be divided into two parts. One part is to be sold and with the proceeds in money, masses will be said for us. With an equal amount, our tribute will be paid so that I do not cause bother for my children.

- And I declare that one (chinampa) is to be sold when I die; (the proceeds) will be spent on my burial. And I declare that there are five tecomes in the house of my son named Juan Daniel which are valued at two tomates; they are to be sold when I die and (the proceeds) will be spent on me. This is all I declare.

- This is all the declaration I make, I, Miguel Chimalteuh (sic), concerning what I distributed to my daughter and grandchild. Before the witnesses /f. 37r/ was done this testament. The witnesses are: Juan Lázaro, Miguel Jacobo, tepixqui; Miguel Mizquicalcatl; Mateo Tecpanecatl, alguacil; Francisco de San Gerónimo Colhuatecuhctli; Marcos Xochicalcatl; Mateo Yaoquizqui; Francisco Coanan; Juan Bautista, teopantlacatl; Juan Daniel; and Martín Sánchez, the son-in-law of the invalid Miguel Chimalteuh. Testament of Domingo Yaotl, July 23, 1580

Working a piece of land did not imply ownership. Here, Domingo has planted on his mother's land and bequeaths the crop to his young son Andrés, but he says "the land is my mother's property and I have nothing to do with it." Although chinampa agriculture was predominant in Culhuacan, there were other types of land and crops. Domingo left his son magueys for their juice.

/f. 38r/ Domingo Yaotl of Santa Ana Tlacuilocan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady, Holy Mary, eternally true virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, Domingo Yaotl, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, in the ward of Santa Ana Tlacuilocan, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed and sound. And I believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore with invocation and supplication of our lord God I make and order my testament and final will.

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of our lord God, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth. When my soul has left it, my body will be buried at our church of San Juan Evangelista.

- Second I declare in my statement that there is dry land of mine in Ayauhtonco that is 20 matl long and also 20 matl wide. My field borders that of Juan Bautista, church tepixqui. And I declare that I give it to my wetnurse named Ana, the wife of Baltasar, (deceased?), who is the daughter-in-law of Gerónimo Tlaxcalceçec, citizen of Mexicatzinco (in the ward of) Acatzintitlan. With this she will bring up my child. Let no one (disturb her).

- And I declare that to my child named Andrés Ilpitoc I give what I planted, the maize, the beans, and the magueys that are on the field of my mother. And the land is my mother's property and I have nothing to do with it.

- And I declare that there is dry land of mine in Tocitilan 20 matl long and also 20 matl wide. I give it to my child named Andrés Ilpitoc.

- And I declare that there is dry land of ours, also in Tocitilan, 80 (matl) long and 20 matl wide. My late younger brother, who died, named Francisco Ayotoch, shares it with me. And I declare it is to be sold and with the proceeds masses will be said for both of us, for my late younger brother and me, with which we will be helped.

- And I declare that there are five chinampas of mine at the edge of the water, not long but just small; I give them to my child, and all that is planted there is to belong to him, and my child Andrés Ilpitoc will be fed from it.

- And I say that I have a house that my late father gave me, and now I in turn give it to my child; he will be there (live there) if our Lord allows him to live.

- And I declare that I borrowed two tomines in money from someone named Simón Yaotl. I have not yet paid the debt. I borrowed one tomín in money from Agustín Tetlanmecatl, /f. 38v/ and I have not yet paid it. And I declare that my late wife had yarn that she was going to make into something when she began to get sick and then she died. She left behind what was to be a huipil; she had woven (warped) all three lengths and had hand-rubbed it. And I declare that it is to be sold, and with the proceeds my debts of three tomines will be paid. And if something is left over, it belongs to the boy named Andrés.

- And I declare that there is a worn-out boat; it is to be sold, and the proceeds will be used to help me be buried.

- And I have a hoe, a tool to work the soil, and a digging stick with a metal tip, and also a knife, and two blankets (with which I cover myself). I give all of this to my child named Andrés Ilpitoc. And I declare concerning the stone that is here that my stone is to be gathered together, and if it amounts to a quappantli, it is to be sold, and the proceeds are to be divided. One half will belong to those who transport it, and the other part will belong to the boy.

- And I declare that I have six magueys here at the entrance. I give them to my child named Andrés Ilpitoc. He is to scrape them (to get the juice), and it will be used for him. Let no one violate my final will that I have declared.

Testament Fragment, August 2, 1580

Neither the name nor the gender of this testator are given explicitly, but the form of “my elder brother” (no-tiachcauh) implies that we are dealing with a male. A noteworthy feature of this fragment is the inventory of parts of a dismantled house. Major items like beams, doors, and lintels were often bequeathed separately.

Testament of Ana Tiacapan (a), widow of Baltasar Nentequitl Tecpanecatl, July 17 1580

Ana Tiacapan's property consists almost entirely of buildings of one kind or another. "Houses" appear to be, in fact, single-room buildings in a compound, many with separate ownership. One of the structures was a public house where her late husband "attended to the rulers and traders." Another of her houses is a "woman's house" (cihuacalli). The term appears in other testaments (Documents 18, 47, 50, 80). Notable items in Ana's estate are Spanish fruit trees, which are bequeathed separately.

/f. 41r/ Santa María Tezcacoac Ana Tiacapan, widow of Baltasar Nentequitl Tecpanecatl, whose home was Santa María Asunción Amantlan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, Holy Mary, eternally virgin, know all who see and read this document that I am Ana Tiacapan, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan in the ward of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac. Even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are calm and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore with invocation and supplication of our lord God, I make and ordain my testament. Let no one violate my final (will).

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul in the hands of our lord God because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood. And my body I give to the earth because from there it came.

- Secondly, I declare that I, named Ana Tiacapan, and my late younger sister named Juana Teicuh who died, shared the building of the house that is next to the ravine (in Atlauhco?). And there the late Baltasar Nentequitl attended to the rulers and traders of Amantlan (i.e., maintained a public house). And (Baltasar) declared when he was about to die, "I cannot make a testament." that there are two brothers-in-law of mine who know about this because part of the stone (to make the house) was brought from Tezcacoac, and the food that was used and eaten when the house was built; (they know about it) because (Tezcacoac? the house?) is their home.

- Thus I, Ana Tiacapan, declare that my illness is very grave, and for this reason I make my testament. Beginning my statement, I declare that the "woman's house" that stands toward Xochimilco and faces east is to be sold, and also the fruit trees, the pears and the figs that are in the patio, all will be sold, and with the proceeds masses will be said for all three of us. What I have said will be sold belongs to the house.

- And I declare that the storeroom that is in the middle (of the complex) belongs to someone named Juan Piyoch, and I declare that another house (room) stands in the direction of Mexico City, also attached to what was the storeroom, and it belongs to Magdalena Tiacapan, wife of Gabriel Maldonado, chief executor.

- And I declare that as to the house (room) that faces toward Xochimilco and (the other one) attached to it, which also faces toward Xochimilco, where (an image) of our Lord stood, both belong to María Tlacoehua, wife of don Juan García Tlacockhecalcatzintli.

- And I declare that the great hall which also faces Xochimilco, where people used to warm themselves, all of it belongs to (my ...) named Baltasar de San Francisco Iyacamecatzintli.

/f. 41v/ - And I declare that regarding the house that I mentioned above that is to be sold, its land at the edge of the water, the chinampas, just small (ones), not long, are to be sold; it is all just part (of the house). Whoever buys the house will pay for all of it, but if the person buying the house doesn't come to agreement, the fruit trees will belong to the church and will be used for the friars. And I declare that the (three willows?) belong to the church. And regarding how the houselot is (where the buildings are), we have nothing to say about it. The houselot will pertain to whoever will be in the house there, that I said is to be sold. And concerning the land (of the house) and where the chinampas are with their dry land, we have nothing to say about that either. And there are three men still living who know about this: first, don Juan García Tlacockhecalcatzintli; second, the person named Baltasar Iyacamecatzintli; and third, the person named Gabriel Maldonado, chief executor. They know in what places their lands are. Thus the invalid made her declaration, and she said to them "O my children, this is all I have declared and what you who are present and who will be named here have heard."

Testament of Miguel Cerón, August 5, 1580

Judged by most of Miguel Cerón's property, he was a man of modest means, but in addition to the typical parcels of land mentioned in his testament we find one strikingly atypical one. "By means of justice," or through judicial decision, he was given land which traditionally was held by the native ruler or tlatoani. This special category of land, we are told, was not privately held, not even by the ruler, much less bequeathed. Yet Miguel treats the ruler's office land like any other parcel, leaving part to his relatives and having part sold for masses. This altered status of ruler's office land is but one example of changes in native land tenure after the Spanish conquest.

Juana Xoxopanxoco. There she is to be in charge of my children, since it is their property and their house. Let no one take it from them.

- And I am also giving the land here at the edge of the water that belongs to the house, three chinampas that are just small, not long, to my wife and children. From it they are to get tender ears of maize, or perhaps they will build something there. They will decide. I give it completely to them as their property. Let no one take it from them.

- And I declare that there is a house of mine in Tianquitztenco which faces east. It is to be sold, and the proceeds will belong to me; when I die, it will be spent on me.

- And there are seven chinampas of mine on which we (pay tribute). I give them to my wife, who is to cultivate them, because she has children. No one is to take them from her. She knows that she will give (the chinampas) to them when she dies.

- And there are two chinampas of mine in Acalotenco, (at the edge of the canal?) each one 20 (units of measure) long, next to the field of Francisco Cihuatecpanteatl, regidor mayor. I give them to my children, who are to cultivate them.

- And in the place named Cueptecco there is the inheritance of the boy named Joaquín Centecpantli. (They are) the chinampas that don Juan Téllez (Documents 13 and 13A), whose home was Tianquitztenco, gave him. Let no one take them from him, because they are the inheritance of the boy. (They are) next to the fields of Gabriel Maldonado and Juan Otlicahuetzto.

- And I declare that in the place called Tocititlan there is dry land that was given me, 70 (units of measure) in length and 20 in width. It is “ruler's (office) land” and it was given me by means of justice. And I declare that I divide it into two parts; I give 40 to my wife and children, and 30 will belong to me. It is to be sold, and with the proceeds masses will be said for me. Let no one violate my final will on the verge of my death.

- This is all the invalid named Miguel Cerón Tequanqualoc said in his declaration before the women María Xoco, wife of don Juan García Tlacochcalcatl tecuhctli, and Juana Xoco, wife of the invalid.

- Done before the executors Gabriel Maldonado, Martín de Santiago, and Antón Jacobo, alguaçiles, and by order of don Francisco Flores, alcalde, and Miguel de Ribas, alguaçil mayor. I, Juan de San Pedro, notary, wrote it. Here I place my name and signature. Done the 5th of August of the year 1580.

Testament Fragment of Tomás of Aquino, n.d.

Most Culhuacan testators left money for masses for themselves or close relatives. But Tomás gives money directly to the prior, fray Juan Núñez, to thank God for giving him good fortune in life. Tomás is unusual in another way. More than most godparents, he shows affection for his godson by giving him a substantial bequest, part of a house, and then, thinking that the building is dilapidated and nearly worthless, instead advises his wife to favor the boy in some other way.

/f. 43v/ Tomás de Aquino of Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady, Holy Mary, eternally virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, Tomás de Aquino, whose home is here in Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpan, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are tranquil and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord, I make and order my testament and last will. Let no one violate it.

- First, I declare that I give my spirit and soul to God our lord because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from there it came. And when my soul leaves it, my body will be buried at our church of San Juan Evangelista.

- Second, I declare I have made an offering: I went to give it to our dear and honored father, prior fray Juan Núñez, in person, and I said to him, "My dear father, here is my voluntary offering of six pesos that I make for no special reson; neither did I steal it, but I say that during all the time that I have lived, our Lord gave me all that I needed; let me likewise thus return it to him."

- And I declare concerning my house where I have been, which faces east, I give it to my wife, Juana Tiacapan. Nor is anyone to take it from her. And I have (upper stories? a two-story house?) facing toward Xochimilco; all of it together will belong to my wife and my godchild that I adopted (embraced), named Gaspar, child of Marcos Morales, whose home is Coatlan Tenanco.

- And there are some chinampas on which I (paid tribute) in the place named Tequacuilco, which count as seven, and only with the land here at the edge of the water do they come to be seven. I give them to my wife. And I declare that there are 10 chinampas of mine in Tecuitlaapan, each one 20 (units of measure) long, next to the field of Martín. She is just to take them, and I give them to my wife, Juana Tiacapan. No one is to take them from her. And I declare that my wife's children took care of me a lot every time I was sick, and they showed me much affection (treated me very well), and I declare that they will remain here together with their mother.

- And concerning the upper story of mine that I mentioned above that I gave to my godchild Gaspar, the wood is already old. And now I declare that my wife is to give some small thing to the boy with which he will be brought up, if he lives, or, if he dies....

Testament of Juana Tiacapan (a), August 22, 1580

Juana, like many Culhuacan women without surviving children, leaves considerable amounts of property to her husband. Since he seems to be from Mexico City, she goes further and tries to guarantee his residence rights where she owns land. Juana also makes a charitable bequest, leaving land to the district heads (or district people, tanaxilacaleque) to assign "to some poor person." Also like many testators, Juana is worried about debt payment. Not all the debts are in currency: Juana earlier borrowed a cloak for her daughter's shroud.

- In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God omnipotent, I place my soul entirely in his hands. And when I die, let God our lord carry me to him, because he redeemed my soul and (it is made in) his image; and let my guardian angel carry me before God. For I am Juana Tiacapan, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, in the ward of Santa María Asunción Aticpac; know all who read and hear my testament that I keep nothing for our lord God (i.e., I have nothing). I have no gold to make offerings. I say this because here I order my testament.

- First I declare that where I lie sick, in the ward of Santa Ana Iyauhtenco, my deceased father, Juan Yaotzin, left me and gave me this houselot when he died. Now I declare that I give it to my husband named Lázaro de San Pablo, and I have addressed the people of Iyauhtenco, and I said to them, "My husband will remain here among you." Also I declare that the houselot has its land at the edge of the water, two chinampas that do not measure a full 20 matl each, but just 10 each. And I give them to my husband; no one is to take them from him. And I declare also that my late father gave me seven chinampas of his in Quauhtenanco, next to the road, on the far side toward Coyoacan, next to the field of Agustín Patocicuil, tepixqui. And now I in turn give them to my husband; he will (pay tribute) on them. No one is to take them away from him, because I assign them to him.

- And I declare that I have seven chinampas, my own property, that were given to me when I was still unmarried; they are also in Quauhtenanco. I give them to the ward heads, those of Iyauhtenco. Perhaps they will give them to some poor person because (the land is obligated for tribute?). With all my heart I leave it to them.

- And I declare that my late father gave me his field, 20 (units of measure) in length and the same in width. I give it to my husband Lázaro de San Pablo. The field is next to the field of Juan Bautista, church tepixqui. It is in the place called Yahualiuhan.

- And here in Coatlan there is dry land that my late father gave me, his field. It is 20 (units of measure) long and the same in width. I give it to my husband Lázaro de San Pablo. No one is to take it from him.

- And in Santiago Tetla there is dry land of mine, 80 (units of measure long); it borders the field of Miguel de Santiago, alguacil (in?) Texalpan. And I give it to my husband, I assign all of it to him. No one is to take it from him; he is to (pay tribute on it). /f. 47r/ And in San Andrés Amaxac there is a field of mine, 20 (units of measure) long, next to the field of Pedro Quiyah. And I give it to my husband.

- And I declare that when I die, the stone that is still scattered here at the entrance is to be sold. The proceeds in money are to be spent on my burial, and with one part a mass will be said for me. My husband will speak for me so that a mass is said for me quickly.

- And I declare that I have remembered that we have debts of five pesos and six tomines and a cloak that have not yet been paid. Two pesos belong to Pablo Tlamaca, whose home is Mexico City (in the ward of) San Pablo; they were spent for my late daughter named María when she was in custody, and with it various things were paid for. And three pesos and three tomines came from Coyoacan, from San Agustín Palpan, belonging to Juan Tepanecatl tecuhtli, whose home is Palpan. And three tomines belong to Mateo Juárez, whose home is Tlacatecco. And the cloak with which my late daughter was enshrouded when she died belonged to Martín Tlacochealcatl Xochicuetzin. I declare that the land is to be sold in order to pay our debts. My husband knows about this. This is all my testament; know all who see and read this document that no one is to violate anything that he (the notary) has written. Done before the witnesses Hernando García, my brother-in-law, whose home is Mexico City (in the ward of) San Pablo; Juan Bautista, church tepixqui; Marcos Vázquez; and Pedro Quiyah; and before the women who heard it, the first named Marta Teuhccho, the dear wife of Hernando García; Ana Mocel, widow of Luis Xallacatl; Magdalena (Tiacapan), widow of Pedro de la Cruz; Isabel Tiacapan, wife of Pedro Quiyah.

Statement by the Executors, September 23, 1580

Documents were occasionally mislabeled by the notary, as in the present case. This certification of monies that Indian officials delivered for masses contains an interesting reference to the “former executors (albaceas).” In Spanish legal practice, executors were chosen individually by testators to carry out the orders of the will. Among these Nahua in Culhuacan, executors seem to have been a type of town official. Note that the Spanish prior certifies this Nahuatl statement (though he does so in Spanish). We have produced Documents 23, 23A, and 23B in the order in which they appear, but the Spanish of 23A is probably intended to come after the Nahuatl signatures, which seem to refer to 23. The rest of Document 23B is an afterthought to 23.

Some Culhuacan testators proclaim their poverty. The declaration "I have no property or goods," is not unusual, even when the testator in fact owns some property. In this case, Mateo's estate really is smaller than many.

/f. 48v/ Mateo Juárez of San Pedro Çacaapan

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, I begin my testament. Know all who see and read this document in which I ordain my testament that I, Mateo Juárez, poor person (orphan?), whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of San Pedro Çacaapan, first place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord because it is his creation, and when I die, let him come to take it; let him forgive me all my sins. And I say that I have no property nor goods; I just begin my testament. No one is to violate it. Here I will put in order what has been my property.

- First I declare that there is a small house that faces toward Xochimilco; when I die, it is to be sold and with the proceeds masses will be said for me, and all the stone of the wall and the stone that I bought is to be gathered together and sold in order that masses be said for me.

- Second I declare that there is a digging stick with a metal blade which I gave six tomines for. (Not long ago) someone named Pedro Achane ruined it. Let me not bother him, let him promptly give you four tomines in order that masses be said for me. And I declare that the hoe (same item as the digging stick?) is also to be sold in order that I be buried; the price to be given you is a full five tomines.

- And I give to my wife named Inés a row of (20?) (inherited trees?) that my father and my mother left me. And I give her the old boat; since we don't have anything, she is to take that. It is in Tlecuilapa. And concerning the other (row of trees?) my elder brother, the regidor Juan, knows about it. The three of them are to

All that belongs to her (is in her charge); she is only to take care of (the property) and attend to us as if she were made our mother. Testament of María, widow, August 25, 1580

Provision for payment of debts was one of the reasons testators made wills. María has debts from both her first and second marriages. She carefully distinguishes between debts that she contracted mutually with her husbands and those she feels no responsibility to pay.

my late husband, named Martín Huitzilcoatl, and I, named María, built is to be sold. Here is what worried me and what my late husband Martín Huitzilcoatl and I have done wrong: we borrowed four tomines in money belonging to the ward heads and they have not been paid back yet. And my late second husband named Francisco Quauhtli and I borrowed a peso belonging to the ward heads so that we could leave jail when we were both imprisoned, with which it comes to one peso and five (sic) tomines. And one tomin and a half belongs to Agustín Xiuhtzin; it will also be paid back. Here is something else I declare: I don't know about something bad that my late husband named Francisco Quauhtli did: he left a peso and four tomines unpaid. And now I say, let someone go and inform my stepchild named Gaspar; let him pay the peso and four tomines. Let him aid his father and his mother, since they were the ones who borrowed it. And when they went and informed him as to what she said, he immediately replied "Very well, let me pay it for my father and my mother if our lord God gives me life, /f. 50r/ for I am sick too." Thus said Gaspar, with which he and his stepmother came to agreement, and when she heard what he had said, his stepmother was very reassured. And now I, the invalid María, declare concerning our house that I said is to be sold, that we both built, my first husband and I, that with the proceeds in money will be paid the debt mentioned above, our loan of one peso, five tomines. And of the level land, only six matl of it, on which the house stands, toward the road, my late husband himself gave one matl to the mother of Agustín Teixpantzin. And with all that remains from the proceeds in money from the house, let them say masses for me. This is all I declare in my testament. Let the house be sold promptly, and let no one violate my testament.

Done before those who heard and are named here: the ward heads and witnesses Martín González, tepixqui; Pablo Gerónimo; Miguel Huantli, topile; Tomás Xochihua Itzcuintzoncon; Andrés Tepal; Martín Axcan Calpilcatzintli(?); and the women who heard, the first named Juana, wife of Juan Cuetli; Bárbara, wife of Andrés Tepal; Luisa, wife of Agustín Teixpantzin; Juana, wife of Andrés Xochicoatl.

- Done before the executors, Miguel García, Martín de Santiago, Antón Jacobo, (and?) Juan (de San) Pedro. I, whose name is mentioned just above, wrote it. Here we place our names and signatures. This testament was done Thursday the 25th of August of the year 1580.

Testament of Ana Juana, September 16, 1580

Ana Juana is most outspoken in her testament. The source of trouble is her good-for-nothing third husband: she wants her son, not her husband, to inherit her property. Her tirades against the husband provide real insight into the dynamics of her marriage, but also specific reasons for disinheritance. Her son Juan Francisco is to receive land which will provide the basis for his tribute duties (tequitl), including public work duty (coatequitl), a type of rotary labor, as well as a hay tribute (coacacatl) and other duties. In older Nahuatl texts in general, there is ambiguity in the meaning of tequitl, which can be either “work” or “tribute,” and the associated verb tequiti, which can be either “to work” or “to perform tribute duties, pay tribute.” Here tequiti seems to refer quite unambiguously to tribute, and we tend to take that as its meaning throughout the Culhuacan testaments.

/f. 50v/ Ana Juana of Santa Ana Tlacuilocan

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady Holy Mary, know all who see and read this document that I, Ana Juana, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, in the ward of Santa Ana Tlacuilocan, first place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because it is his creation. When I die, let him come to take it, and let him pardon me all my sins. And let my (close) relatives know what the earthly property is that I keep for our lord God. Let no one violate my statement that I put on paper.

- Thus I begin my declaration: there is an enclosure of mine standing beside the road that is not yet roofed. I give it to my son named Juan Francisco. The houselot on which (the enclosure) stands is 15 matl wide toward Xochimilco and toward Mexico City, and in length (sic) toward the east, it is only 10 matl. And I also give my son an old house that stands there facing toward Xochimilco. And there are three chinampas of mine next to the house, each one 20 (units of measure) long, next to the field of Martín Tlacochcalcatzintli. And there in the place called Quauhtenanco there are two chinampas of mine, each one 20 long, at the edge of the canal, next to the field of the late Francisco Yaoxomol. And also there is one (chinampa) of 10 matl that is at the entrance, and three (chinampas which are) “Mexica land” (see Document 80) in the place named Ayoc. And I give all of these chinampas recorded here to my son Juan Francisco because he already (pays tribute on them). Let no one ever take them from him.

And the third is in the place named Temamatlac, next to the field of Pedro Itztolcatl, and /f. 51r/ here in Huixachtlan there are 20 (units of measure) of dry land of mine, next to the field of Miguel Coltzin. I give all of this dry land which is recorded here to my son Juan Francisco. Let no one take it from him, because on the basis of it he will do the tribute duties, on it he will perform the public work duty, and (give) the hay tribute and all the various tributes.

- And here is what I say concerning my husband named Gabriel Itzmalli, who is a great scoundrel. Let him never bother my son, nor let him accuse (my son) of anything. I don't know how many debts he has. He never gave me anything whatever, not money nor telling me "poor you," as did the three who died, two of whom were my husbands, because together we carried out the duties of life on earth. But look, this one, if he went to fetch fruit or if he went to fetch maize, he would sell it himself without showing me how much he had bought. But as to the maize he gave to me, he just measured it out. For this reason I say that I am afraid (that he will do something bad); I declare that he should not attribute anything to my son; I beseech lord don Francisco Flores, alcalde, to speak for (my son) and come to take him, because (my son) is his godchild. Let him not abandon him.

- And the house which faces toward Xochimilco that I mentioned above that I gave to my son Juan Francisco was the inheritance of my late sister-in-law who died. And I say that it is not to be torn down. Let my son Juan Francisco pay something for it; he is to offer a little money to the church for the aid (of my sister-in-law) before God our lord.

- And here are the debts of my husband that I have paid, as I very well know: one peso which belongs to don Francisco Flores, alcalde, and four tomines that belong to his younger sister named Juana Xoco, and four tomines that belong to someone whose home is San Mateo. And my husband asked me for a peso and said "I am going to get fruit with it," and he just collected it and didn't buy the fruit. In all I paid four pesos. - Today, Sunday, the 13th of the month of November of the year 1580, we, Martín de Santiago and Antón Jacobo, executors-topileque, were called because one whose name was Miguel Ecoc and his late wife died without making testaments. Their home was Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpan. They left a child, but now it too has died. And we also interrogated persons named Antón Tepatoa and Josef de San Marcos as to why they didn't make their testaments. And they said, "When our late sister-in-law was about to die I said to her 'let the notary come to write down all your property.' And then she said 'It is not possible, because there is another person, your niece, the little girl, to whom my property belongs, as well as the crops planted on the chinampas.'" And one named Diego Yaotl, son-in-law of the deceased (or their son-in-law through a deceased daughter?), said, "Here are three pesos and five tomines that I offer in order to buy the crop on the chinampas, in order that masses be said for my father-in-law and mother-in-law, so that the prior may aid them." And when the witnesses whose names are mentioned above heard it, it made them very happy and satisfied. And now on Monday and Tuesday the prior fulfilled it, and masses were said for (the deceased). I the notary wrote it. I place here my signature to verify it.

Document 28*Testament of Pablo Quechol, October 13, 1580*

The possession of a hoard of cacao beans, some items preserved in large pots as if for sale, and other interesting movable property hints that Pablo Quechol and his recently deceased parents may have been pochteca or indigenous-style traders. Pablo's two thousand cacao beans were to get married with, but he shows no evidence of having tied the knot. Since he is young and unattached, nearly all of Pablo's estate goes for masses for him and his parents. He does give a bit to the sick, and there are some insignificant bequests to a Francisca Tlacoehua and a small child, being perhaps a woman Pablo has lived with and the latter's child of uncertain paternity.

/f. 53r/Pablo Quechol of Tezcacoac

- In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and of (the Son's) precious mother, the heavenly lady, know all who see and read this document in which I order my testament that I am Pablo Quechol, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, and I belong (to the ward of) Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac. Even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are healthy and I have not lost my judgment; I thus begin my testament.

- First I declare that I have a house that my father and my mother gave me. It is to be sold and with the proceeds masses will be said for us. If something is left over, the tribute is to be paid with it. And the enclosure which surrounds (the house) is to be sold, and masses will be said for us with (the proceeds). And the six worked corner stones and the stone for walls are to be (gathered together) and all are to be sold in order that masses be said for my father and mother. And there is a new skirt which cost four pesos, six tomines; it is to be sold. And (there is) a new blanket, for which was given (paid) the price of three pesos; both things belong to me and when they are sold, masses are to be said for me with (the proceeds). And I am giving a simple skirt of three lengths to Francisca Tlacoehua. I also give her a metate, and one which belongs to me is to be sold in order that masses be said for me. And I declare there is cacao with which I was going to get married, two thousand beans that my mother and father left me. And when I die, one part will be used there (for the burial), and if some part still remains, all of it is to be sold in order that masses be said for me. And the 24 (piles) of firewood are also to be sold, all for masses to be said for me with it. And there are just five tecomas which are to be distributed among my aunts, and two large pots for tamales are to be sold, and if something should be borrowed from anyone on my behalf, it will be paid back from this. There are two chinampas. They are also to be sold, (and the money) will belong to the sick; it will be distributed to them, the proceeds will be devoted to them. And the seven chinampas in Petlacontitlan are also to be sold; the proceeds are to be divided to pay back anything that should have been borrowed from various people on my behalf. And also the seven chinampas in Acatzintitlan (are to be sold) when I die; whatever should have been borrowed will be paid back with (the proceeds). And I say that in San Lorenzo Tetlapanaloyan there are 35 (units of measure of land) that are to be sold; with the proceeds masses will be said for me. (They are) next to the canal where the (image of) our dear mother, Saint Mary, stands guard. And I declare that in Santiago (Tetla) there are some fields which are divided in two parts. The 40 (units of measure) above I gave to Francisca Tlacoehua. And then there are 40 below, which I give to my nephews (and nieces?) who live in Cuitlahuac. Each one is to take 20. And concerning the three reales worth of beans, one part is to be sold, and the other part is to belong to those in Cuitlahuac, if they come here. And the baskets (chiquihuites) and mortars (molcajetes) that are in large pots are to be sold. And the proceeds are to be distributed to the sick. And concerning the old boat that is next to the water, which belongs to the small child and which I took out (of the water?) onto dry land, let it be divided (into planks) and burned (sold for firewood); two boat planks are also to be sold and (the money) spent on me. And an old jacket is also to be sold, and (the money) will belong to the sick. And I give a metate to Isabel. And I declare that there is a real and a half's worth of yarn; it will be used for the child. And there are five /f. 53v/ metal-tipped digging sticks; the two new ones are to be sold, and the three worn ones are (also) to be sold, and the (money) will be spent on me. What I have declared is all my statement. If I forgot something and it was not written down, and if it is seen when all (my goods) are gathered together, it will be sold and with it masses will be said for us, for my father and my mother and me, Pablo. This is all my declaration, all that I order on earth.

Testament of Ana Tiacapan (b), November 20, 1580

An unusual verbal exchange between a testator and heir is recorded here. Ana tries to give a boat to her daughter. But the daughter declines it and gives it instead to her father, saying that he is the one who takes it to gather dried grass for tribute (see Doc. 26), and she wants him to keep on using it. Note the presence of Mateo Juárez Tecpanecatl, official in charge of masons (tetzotzoncatopile), who clearly is a stoneworker himself.

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, I begin my testament; know all who see this document in which I order my testament that I, Ana Tiacapan, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, of the ward of Santa Ana Tepanecapan, first place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord because it is his creation; when I die let him come to take it, and let him forgive me all my sins with which I have offended him. I keep nothing for our lord God (I have no goods) with which to make an offering; the reason I say this is that I am ordering my testament.

- To begin my declaration I declare that I gave four tomines of my money to the masons who were going to build me a wall (some walls); they were Mateo Juárez Tecpanecatl, topile of masons, and Juan Toneuhtzin, whose home is Tzaqualco. But I say, let my money be brought back, and it will be spent when I die. And as to the two houses (rooms) that my late father left, that my younger sister Ana Xoco, wife of Pedro Tochtzin, gave me, one facing toward Xochimilco and the other, a little house that is inside (the complex), I declare that both should be torn down and the stone be brought here, and with it a house (chapel?) will be built for the image of our Lord; my husband Pablo and my daughter María Xoco know about this, they will do it and carry it out. And I tore down a third little house (room) and warmed myself with the wood; and as to the sweathouse that I and my younger sister mentioned above share, the stone belongs to me and it is all my inheritance; it will be sold, and with the proceeds in money masses will be said for me. And as to the house where I lie sick, which is attached to a hut (jacal), I give it to my daughter whose name is mentioned above, and I give her the hut; if she marries somewhere, she should build herself a house there with the wood. And I give the boat to my daughter. But then the daughter said, "It cannot be that I should take the boat; with all my heart I give it to my father, because he gathers the hay (zacate) tribute with it. He is to go about taking it." This is all my declaration that is written and set down on paper, the testament. And those who heard the declaration, who were called when the invalid fainted once, the witnesses, are named here: the first, Mateo Juárez Tecpanecatl, Miguel Popolloloc, Francisco Tlamaceuh(qui); and the women: the widow of don Pedro Moysén, named Juana; the second, María Tlaco, wife of Francisco Tlamaceuhqui; Ana Xocotzin, wife of Pedro Tochtli. Testament of Antonio de San Francisco Tlemachica, July 23, 1580

The Culhuacan testaments contain a number of testament clusters, with close kin dying within a short period. One such cluster consists of Antonio, his niece María Tiacapan (Document 49), another niece's husband, Pablo Huitznahuatl (Document 47), and the latter's daughter, Angelina Mocel (Document 50), and her husband, Juan Velázquez (Document 57). Some property can be traced through a number of testaments. For example, the house which Antonio gives his niece María is to be bequeathed by her in turn.

f. 55r Antonio de San Francisco Tilocan

- The testament of Antonio de San Francisco Tlemachica
- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and his dear mother, the heavenly lady, Holy Mary, eternally virgin, know all who see and read this document that I am named Antonio de San Francisco Tlemachica, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of San Francisco Tlalatecpan, and even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord, I make and order my testament.

- First I say that I give my spirit and soul to our lord God because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from there it came; it is to be buried at our church of San Juan Evangelista.

- Here is what concerns me so that I order my testament on paper: I say that I give my house where I lie sick, which faces west, to my niece named Bárbara Tlaco, wife of Pablo de San Gabriel (Huitznahuatl); no one is to take it from her. And there is another house of mine which faces east. I give it to María Tiacapan, wife of Baltasar Téllez. And I give her the enclosure; perhaps they can roof it. Let no one ever dispute with them over it, since I give it to them of my own free will.

And the crucifix which stands here is entirely my property. I say that it is not to be taken anywhere but just stay at my home.

- And I say there are six chinampas of mine in Quauhtenanco. I give them to my niece María Tiacapan, wife of Baltasar Téllez. And to my grandchild named Magdalena, I also give six (chinampas). In the third place, I am distributing five (chinampas); I give them to another grandchild of mine named María. These chinampas of mine are together with those in Quauhtenanco. Let no one take from them what I distributed to them.

/f. 55v/ - And in (Tlallachco) there is a field of mine which is 190 matl (in length), bordering the field of the lord tlatoani don Juan Ramírez. It is behind the road and facing Cuitlahuac. I am distributing in four parts the 190 (matl). I give 70 matl to my grandchildren named Magdalena and Mónica; they are to share it. And to Francisco Maxihuítl I give 40, and to his older sister named Ana Tlaco I give 40. And to María Tiacapan, wife of Baltasar Téllez, my niece, I give 40. Let no one take it from them, let no one dispute it with them.

- There is dry land of mine in Tapalco of 200 (units of measure); I divide it in two parts; 100 are to be sold, and the proceeds in money are to belong to me; masses are to be said for me with it. Let it be carried out promptly. And the other 100 I give to my grandchildren. I divide them in three parts: I give 40 to Francisco Maxihuítl; I give 20 to his older sister named Ana Tlaco; I give 20 to my niece, wife of Baltasar Téllez. And (the rest to come to) 100 already belongs to my niece María, wife of Baltasar Téllez, with which I am giving 40 to her.

- In San Lorenzo there is dry land of mine, 60 (units of measure) in length and 20 in width; I am dividing (the land) in two parts; I give 30 matl to my grandchild named Magdalena, and I give 30 to Mónica; they are to share these 60 (matl) that I have mentioned. Let no one ever take it away from them.

- And in (Santa Bárbara) Quaxochco Chalcocalcan there is dry land of mine 120 (units) long and in width 20. With all my heart I say that I give and assign it to the city, and perhaps the city elders, those in charge of Culhuacan, will raise a cross there or build something else there. They know what they will do. The length of

Miguel García functioned as a notary in his lifetime, as seen in the testament issued by him in this very collection. At his death, he leaves behind evidence of his profession: inkpots, a writing desk, and—almost unique among the testators—books. Miguel's will is filled with unfinished business transactions, likely connected with his notarial duties. Miguel owns “church land” (teopanmilla), a civil category of land of unclear status (see Document 71). Filled with suggestive detail, this testament is one of the richest in the entire collection.

the land is still being investigated. And I say that perhaps I will be given a grant of some part of it which will be used for my children and grandchildren. And I say that I sold five of my chinampas, each one 20 (units) in length, to Juan Vázquez, regidor, whose home is Santa Ana Tzapotla. And he gave me two pesos, four tomines. The land borders the field of the late Juan Bautista Huecamecatl. The money was used for me and I have already made my chinampas his property. This is all I say; let no one ever violate or dispute it. Here are named the witnesses: the first is named Pablo de San Gabriel Huitznahuatl tecuhetli; Francisco Huittalocatzin; Juan Vázquez, regidor; Juan de Alameda Quauhtli; Miguel Cerón Tequanqualoc (Document 19); and also the lord don Francisco Flores, alcalde, knows about it. And the women: Bárbara Tlaco, wife of Pablo de San Gabriel (Huitznahuatl); María (Tiacapan), wife of Baltasar Téllez, Antonia, /f. 56r/ wife of Juan de Alameda; Francisca, widow of Miguel Colhuacaçol; Ana Tlaco, wife of Lázaro. Done before the executors Gabriel Maldonado, Martín de San Diego, and Antón Jacobo. And I, the notary, wrote the testament. Here I verify it and set down my name and signature. Done the 23rd of the month of July of the year 1580.

Juan de San Pedro, notary.

/f. 56v/ Miguel García of Transfiguración Tlacatecco
- The testament of Miguel García
- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother the heavenly lady, Holy Mary, eternally virgin, know all who see and read this document that I am Miguel García, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, of the ward of Transfiguración Tlacatecco; even though my body is ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed and sound. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, which are of just one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. our lord I make and order my testament and final will; no one is to violate it.

- First I declare that I give my spirit and soul to God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from there it came; when my soul has left it, my body will be buried at our church of San Juan Evangelista.

- Here is how I order my testament so that no one will violate my declaration when I die. Now I distribute my houses and lands. I declare that I give the patrimonial house that faces east, that my late father gave us, to my grandchild and to my orphan that we adopted; my grandchild is to take (the part of the house) toward Mexico City and Juan, the orphan, is to take (the part) toward Xochimilco. The two of them are just to share it; let no one ever trick them.

- And the house where I lie faces toward Xochimilco. I give it to my nephews Gabriel Nentlamati and his wife. They will be (live) there. And the two new small houses (rooms) will be sold and with the proceeds in money debts will be paid. Or perhaps those who are demanding my nephew Gabriel's property (the creditors) will just buy them.

- And the three painted tecomas—one valued at one peso, one valued at three tomines, and one worth four tomines—will be sold together with the twelve unpainted tecomas of mine. All 15 will be sold, and with the proceeds in money our debts will be paid. And my two hoes will be sold, and a closable chest with a lock will be sold; one peso will be asked as its price. And my nephews will keep (the money which represents) the price (of all of it); if someone comes from somewhere asking (the payment of) debts, with it (the debts) will be paid.

- And as to the six pesos in money that belong to Hernando Juárez, whose home is Santa Ana, I paid it all back; it was done in full public view. And we borrowed a peso from the former (late?) wife of don Pedro Moysén Macpalchiactzin, and it was paid back. And I have here four tomines of Miguel Yaochoca's money; he is to pay four tomines to Pedro Matlalatl, and I am in charge of this, it will be paid. And the late mother of Pablo, whose home is Itzcotla, borrowed a peso from Gregorio, and Pablo, whom Miguel Jiménez, alcaide, maintains (in his house), is to pay it.

of planks and my writing desk and my inkpot with which I wrote, all of it is to be sold in order for masses to be said for us with the proceeds in money.

- And Magdalena, who was the wife of the late Tomás Atecpanecatl, made as an offering six pesos in money to buy wood for the church of the (ward of) Transfiguración. I kept it and borrowed it; it is to be paid back.
And we borrowed two pesos and four tomates from the above mentioned old woman. It will also be paid back.
And my horse is always to be kept hired out to someone, and that will pay (the price of the horse?). I entrust this to my nephew Gabriel. Eight pesos and four tomates have been paid publicly (toward buying the horse).

And four metates and five tubs and a large pot for tamales are to be sold, and with the proceeds our debts will be paid. And a book of hours, a breviary of mine, three (breviaries?) in Nahuatl, and a confessional manual are to be sold. The church attendants are to buy them.
And also three rosaries, after they are cleaned, will be sold, and with all of it masses will be said for us. And the four hens will be eaten here when I have died.

- And there is here some hammered gold that I was keeping, property of the people of Coatlan, Cihuatecpán and Tlacatecco, and the nobles of Mexicapan, and I went to give it to our dear father the prior, fray Juan Núñez, by the order of Alonso Jiménez and Juan de San Miguel;
they called him and told him, and he (the prior) simply asked me for it.

- And as to my land at the edge of the water, the 10 chin-
ampas here at the entrance, and the seven (chinampas) that are in Ayacac, I give (the chinampas) in both of these places to my nephew Gabriel Nentlamati. And the seven (chinampas) that are in San Pedro Çacaapan also correspond to (are charged to) Gabriel; they are our church land, next to the chinampas of the late Francisco González.

- And in the land of Tlamacazco, there is also a church field of ours, 20 (units of measure) long and the same on all sides. And in Tocititlan there is a field of mine, 20 (units) round. And in Santiago Tetla there is a field of mine 60 long, in (To?)natihuco, next to the field of the late Pedro Techachal. And there are 20 in Icotitlan, next to the field of Martín Yaotepitzin, and all these 120
I give to my nephew Gabriel Nentlamati. No one is ever to take them from them or claim them from them.

- And as to a chisel and two awls and a plane and a saw for cutting wood and an axe to split wood and a glass cup worth three tomates and an image of the savior on the cross and three retablo images and two elaborately painted reed mats (petates) and four wooden pipes for

/f. 59r/Juana Tiacapan of (Tres) Reyes Coatlan

- Know all who see and read this document that I am Juana Tiacapan, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Tres Reyes Coatlan; even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed, and I very truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make and order my testament.

- First I say that I, Juana Tiacapan, place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that the house where I lie, which faces east, will be sold (and the money) will belong to us, my late husband Francisco and me, in order to aid our souls with masses said for us. And everything up to where our inheritance ends will go with the house, and the seven small chinampas that accompany the house will also be sold, and (the proceeds) will also belong to us, my husband Francisco and me, in order to say masses for us.

- Also 55 magueys of mine will be sold (and the proceeds) will be spent on me when I have died; masses will be said for me with it. And concerning the ears of corn, there are not many left, just half (a quauhacalli) and a quauhacalli of last year's beans, and two tecomas of beans that were harvested this year. All of it will be sold in order to aid my soul.

- And the other house of mine, the new little house that also faces east, I assign to my son-in-law Gaspar Achane. He is to take it because he has always helped me greatly and took good care of me, and when I die it is through him that I will (get along, have sufficient for burial?); for this reason I give him the house.

- And as to 36 spindles with yarn and a round basket with a handle, (full) of cotton, and three metates, and 12 beams (for building) huts (jacales), and a small metal tipped digging stick, and two large pots for tamales, all of it will be sold, and with whatever the proceeds are,

masses will be said for me. This is all the declaration of the invalid with which she ordered her testament before the witnesses Juan Bautista Tlatol; Gaspar Achane; Melchor Téllez Cihuatemoc; Marcos Coatecatl; and Andrés Mizquitl. The women: Juana Ana, cihuatepixqui; Juana Tiacapan; Juana Teicuh; Marta Tlaco; Lucía Teicuh.

- Here is what the invalid said afterwards: "There are two pesos of mine in money; when I die I will be buried with them." Immediately we the executors searched for it, and when the money was found it was counted publicly; (it came to) nine pesos. And we ordered that for however long the invalid should live, perhaps some part will be used for her so that it will not be wasted, and with one part her soul will be helped. Today, Monday, the testament was written, the 2nd day of February of 1581.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, say that Juana Tiacapan ordered her testament well and truly, and I wrote it; here I place my name and signature.

Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

The year 1581

- On February 22 two high masses were said, one for Juana Tiacapan of Nextitlan and the other for her husband Francisco. Item, they gave four pesos for the wax and alms and singers, and as truth I signed it.

Fray Juan Núñez.

- I, fray Juan Núñez, prior of this monastery of Culhuacan, say that I received from the executors four sacks of ears of maize and a fanega of beans and some little spindles of yarn, seven or eight, that these two deceased above ordered brought as an offering to this, their monastery, and as truth I signed it with my name; it is dated the 1st of March of the year 1581.

Fray Juan Núñez.

- I received two pesos and a half with which was said a solemn high mass of Saint Ambrose for Juana Tiacapan, deceased, for a small piece of land that Gaspar de San Pablo bought. Dated the 7th of December 1583.

Fray Juan Zimbrón.

Document 34*Testament of Vicente Xochiamatl, November 27, 1579*

During this period of epidemics, testators often made provisional bequests to their heirs, not sure of their survival. Vicente leaves part of a house to his son “if he lives; if he dies it is to be sold and torn down.” Vicente is apparently a stonemason, calling upon a mason to speak for him about an unpaid debt for work in the church of San Francisco Tequixquipan.

Testament

- First I declare that I, Vicente Xochiamatl, whose home is here in San Juan Bautista Ollopan, begin (my testament). I give the house which is here facing west to my child named Juan. It will belong to him if he lives. And I am distributing among my children 20 magueys that are already big. Part of them are to be sold in order to pay the tribute. And concerning the house of two stories, the floor (above) is to be sold and with it masses will be said for my father. And the other floor over which it stands, which is below, is to continue as it is, and it will belong to the boy Juan Bautista, if he lives. If he dies it is to be sold and torn down. And its chinampas, all that I had, all of them will be for my child Juan Bautista. There are five in Amoxcuilac next to the field of Antonio Mocemitoa, and in Quaxochco there are two chinampas, each one 20 (units of measure) long, also next to Antonio's field. I assign all of it to my child Juan. And at the edge of the canal there are four (chinampas), next to the field of Antonio Ayotetzin, that go with some level land. I give them to my child named Juan Bautista. And there is cultivated land in Huixachtlan, 20 (units of measure long), next to the field of Antonio Cuitlachcoacatl; all of it will belong to my child. In Yahualiuçan there are 20 (units of measure of land) next to the field of the late Pedro Acxoquaugh; it belongs to my child. Also in Yahualiuçan there are 40 (units of measure of land) next to the field of Marcos de León Tlacateccatl. And in Santiago (Tetla) there are 40 (units of measure of land) next to the field of the late Cuitlachcoacatl. My child Juan Bautista is to take it all. And there are magueys here and there; let those who cultivate there not fool him (about them); let the ward heads speak for me. And in Tetlapanaloyan there are also 40 (units of measure of land) next to the field of Miguel de Ribas; Pedro Ortiz bought them. Let him give a little something to the child. I make Fabián Jiménez, mason, responsible for it. And I worked in the church of San Francisco Tequixquipan and they haven't paid me anything yet. Let Fabián speak for me, because we both worked there. And there is a house of mine that faces de Luna and I agreed and he wants to buy it. He is to west, in Chililico, which is to be sold, because Agustín give me nine pesos, which will be its price. Masses will be said for the two of us, my late wife and me, with it. And concerning the purchased land in Amaxac that belonged to my late father, 12 (chinampas), which were the fields of the late don Juan de Aguilar, and cost eight pesos, it will be sold and with (the proceeds) masses will be said for my father and my mother. And in Coatlan-tonco there are 10 (chinampas), purchased land of (my father) that will also belong to my father and mother; they cost five pesos. One (of the chinampas) I give to my godchild named Gregorio Tzitzilcatoc. I worked a field for someone for two pesos that I was paid; let the owners come to take the maize (which is on the field). In Quaxochco (on the border?) there are two (chinampas), each one 30 (units of measure) long. The magueys that are Chililico will belong to the ward heads, who will speak for me.

This is all. Let no one covet of them what I said I gave to my children, for my mother-in-law named María Tiacapan is to care for them here. Those before whom the testament was done are named here: Agustín Tecpanecatl, Tomás de Aquino, Antón Cuitlachcoatl, Miguel Totol, Pedro Chicotl, Gregorio Tzitzilcatoc, and Miguel Tonal. Done the 27th of November of the year 1579.

Among other things, testaments were used to repudiate responsibility for debts. Melchor has been a mayordomo of the church, but staunchly maintains that no irregularities occurred during his tenure. Melchor's estate includes a piece of "patrimonial land" (huehuetlalli) that the tecpan of his ward gave him. Most other owners of patrimonial land merely said they received it from their parents or grandparents. The form -tlacayohuan usually means one's relatives and is here so translated, but the context arouses the suspicion that here "fellow humans" is the intention. The mysterious molcalçoltzitzinti, left untranslated, should perhaps be understood as molcax-çoltzitzinti, "little used sauce bowls" (or conceivably "little used hand mortars").

Atotolco

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, I begin my testament. I am Melchor de Santiago Ecatl, whose home is San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan in the ward of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac Atotolco. First I place my soul entirely in the hands of God our lord; let him come and take it when he brings about my death. Let all my close relatives who see this document in which I order my testament so that no one violates my words know that I keep nothing at all for God our lord (I have no property). I declare only my house which faces east. I say that it is to be torn down and sold, and with whatever the proceeds are in money masses will be said for us two, my wife and me. And perhaps someone will want to buy all the old wood inside that house and the old (...?). All of it is not worth much; however much is collected will belong to us in order for masses to be said with it.

- And I declare that three metates are to be sold, and one metal-tipped digging stick is to be sold, and the old house facing west, which has just one wing roofed and on one side has fallen in, is also to be sold. Perhaps someone wants to buy it. And a cuartillo's worth of tezonle and the hard rock and all that is lying next to the house is to be gathered together and sold. And all the money will be put together when everything is sold, in order for masses to be said for us with the price of all that I have mentioned.

- And I declare that there are two willows of mine at the entrance. They will also be sold. And as to the reeds with which I enclosed (the property), perhaps someone will take them apart to buy them. And there are five chinampas belonging to me (counted as seven, by sevens?), next to the field of Hernando Tlacocohua, whose home is Coatlan, and there are seven in another place, next to the field of Lázaro Tecuetz. I declare that when the water has left (the chinampas), those in both locations that I have mentioned are to be sold in order for masses to be said for us, my late wife and me, with however much the proceeds are in money.

- In addition I say that there is a field of mine in Tetlapanaloyan which is 60 (units of measure) long and 20 wide, next to the field of the late Pablo Juárez. And on one side is the (field) of Lorenzo Tlacochtecuhtli, whose home is Ollopan. And there is patrimonial land (of the) Coatlan palace (tecpan) that I was given, 60 (units of measure) long and also 60 wide. All (of the land) that I have mentioned in both locations will be sold. Pedro de San Nicolás knows about this; he measured the land. And with whatever the proceeds in money are, masses will be said for us, my late wife and me.

- And I declare that there is one peso and four tomines of my money that is kept inside the altepetl (at the council building?) in order to complete the tithe (i.e., the altepetl owes me the money). The juez-gobernador and Josef de Castañeda know about it. And I say that since it is kept there, our tribute is to be paid with it. It is to be asked only of the mayordomos; the sacristans are not to be asked. I kept four tomines of their money. And I say that it is to be paid back with my upright drum that the people of San Bartolomé are buying; they are to pay five tomines for it. They already have (the drum) there (in San Bartolomé). Josef /f. 61v/ de Castañeda knows about it. And let the four tomines be given to Jacobo de San Marcos, the sacristan; since they collected it, they are to pay for things (and spend it on things?) at the church.

- In addition, don Alonso de Santiago, who was notary, gave me six tomines to keep when he went to his home (died), and I borrowed them. And since I used them for myself, they are to be paid back; (the money) will be taken from the sale of some part of our property. And I declare that if (some?) money appears, it will belong to the church; the reason I say this is that this money had not yet disappeared when I was mayordomo. It was just there and it was not established whose money it was, nor did it belong to anyone. And for this reason I say it should be delivered to the church and not spent in vain.

- That is all I say. Let no one violate my words; no one is ever to say anything after my time, when I am dead, (for during all this time our lord God has visited his mercy and justice on me. [i.e., I have become ill?]). All of what I have mentioned and said and is written on paper is to be carried out, nothing is to go wrong; the reason

Testament of Ana Xoco, n.d.

Judicial awards were one way of acquiring property; here, a judge has given Ana some of her chinampas.
This same judge, Juan Gallego, gave another woman testator some land (Document 43). Some other land that Ana owns is purchased land in Calpoltitlan. The same toponym is associated in the Culhuacan texts with other parcels of purchased land, indicating that certain areas had more land available for sale than others.

- Know all who see and read this document that I am
Ana Xoco, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa Cruz Tlallachco; even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and calm. I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, who are of just one essence. And I believe in all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God I make my testament.

- First I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that there are two (chinampas) at the edge of the water where I used to be in Santa Cruz; the judge Juan Gallego gave them to me. Each one is 20 (units of measure) long. I give them to my grandchild Francisca; they will belong to her. And in Calpoltitlan there are two (chinampas), land I bought; each one is 20 (units of measure) long. I gave twelve tomines for them. I give them to my grandchild Magdalena. They will belong to her, and she is to take them. And in Motlauhxauhcan there are eight (chinampas) next to the field of the late Juan Quentli. I give them to my grandchildren, my godchildren (or, my legitimate descendants?); each one of the two, Magdalena and Cecilia, is to take four. I make the (chinampas) their property. And in Ecatitlan, in the land of Tzaqualco, there are 15 (chinampas). I give five to Pedro Tepitz, and I give three to Bernabé, and to Nicolás I give three, and I give two to Martín Macehual, and I also give two to Rafael. And the hut that stands where I used to be, next to the water, is to be sold, and also the foundation wall is to be torn apart and sold, (and the proceeds) will belong to me. The (hut) is not big; perhaps one of the inhabitants there would like to buy it, and the (proceeds) will be for me when I die. And I give my grandchild Francisca a metate. And my old boat I give to my son in law Diego Maçaihuitl, and I give the narrow boat to María, the wife of Julián. No one is to take it from her. That is all I say. Done before the witnesses Francisco Gerónimo Amiztlatoa, Diego Maçaihuitl, Miguel Quechol, Juan Huitztlacatl, Martín Coaçacatl, Rafael Moysén, and Miguel García, whose home is Coyoacan; and the women: María, wife of Pedro Tepitz, María Tiacapan, Mónica Tiacapan, Isabel Tiacapan; and before us, Miguel Josef and Pedro (de San) Nicolás, executors.

- And all my women's things are to be sold in order for masses to be said for me; none of it is to be wasted.

Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church.

/f. 63r/ The 7th of March of the year 1581 I received from the executors and the notary Jacobo (sic) six pesos to be used for saying masses for Ana Xoco, because she ordered it thus in her testament which is on the other page.

Testament of Lucía Teicuh, February 21, 1581

Lucía is one of the few women to own “patrimonial land.” Unfortunately her relationship to the girl (also named Lucía) to whom she leaves this special kind of land is unknown. Usually only the closest of kin, lineal relatives, and most often of the same gender as the owner, receive land of this type. Lucía has her testament witnessed by a large number of women. The fact that women are witnesses is not unusual; the high proportion is.

/f. 63v/ Lucía Teicuh of Santa María Asunción Tzaqualco

- Know all who see and hear this document that I am Lucía Teicuh, whose home is here is San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa María Asunción Tzaqualco; even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound, and I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, and I believe all that our mother, the Holy Church of Rome, believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make my testament.

- First I, Lucía Teicuh, declare that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord because he redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that my house where I lie, which faces west, I give to my niece named Francisca Tiacapan, who is in Cuitlahuac, because it is her home; let no one trick her. And there is a field in Ayauhti(tlan?) of 80 (units of measure), with magueys that are not large yet because they have just recently been planted. And I declare that it will belong to the person named Francisca whom I mentioned. It will go along with the house.

- And the 20 (units of measure of land) in the land of Tlamacazco next to the field of the late Miguel García will be sold, and with the money from its price, masses will be said for me.

- And I say also that there are five chinampas, each one 20 (units of measure) long, and also five small (chinampas) near the entrance of Cuicapantzin, in the place named Quetzalapan; I give them to my daughter María Tiacapan, wife of Miguel Tochtli, whose home is Ollopan.

- And in Tequixquipan there are six chinampas, each one 20 long; they are to be sold in order that I be helped when I die. And in Ecati(tlan) there are 10 chinampas. They are also to be sold and with however much the proceeds are in money, masses will be said for me. And in Çacaapan (there is land) which will first be inspected and will also be sold. Some chinampas were given to me there, next to the field of the late Miguel (...)matl; they are also to be sold, and the proceeds will belong to me to aid my soul. And in Atotocoyan there are three chinampas, not long but small; I give them to Lucía, child of the late Baltasar Yaomanatl; no one is to take them from her, because they are patrimonial land. And in (Santiago) Tetla there is a field, 40 (units of measure long?), in Tenepantla, by the field of the late Baltasar Ocelotl; I give it to the child Lucía that I mentioned. Also there is a chest that I give to my elder sister Ana Tiacapan, wife of Melchor Tianquiznahuacatl, and also I give her a metate. And to Ana Tlaco, wife of Juan Toneuh, I give a metate, and I give a metate to the child Lucía for her to grind with. And the bed on which I lie will just stay here; it will be for the person I mentioned above that I gave the house to, Francisca Tiacapan. This is all the statement of the invalid. The testament was done before Melchor Tianquiznahuacatl; Agustín Vázquez, executor; Pedro Atlolon; Juana Xoco, widow of Agustín de Luna; Ana Tlaco, wife of Juan Toneuh; Juana Tlaco, wife of Cochpin; Juana Mocel, wife of Juan Tetzauh; Juana Tiacapan, wife of Pedro Tlama; Ana Tiacapan, wife of (Melchor) Tianquiznahuacatl; Ana Xoco, cihuatepixqui in Santa Ana Tepanecapan, widow of Juan Ilcahualoc.

/f. 64r/ I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, (say) that Lucía Teicuh ordered her testament well and truly, and I wrote it. And here I place my name and signature, today the 21st of February of the year 1581.

- Here is something else I say that I forgot (to mention): my (cotton) yarn that I had and all my woman's things and everything inside the house is to be sold, and the seven chickens are to be sold. And with however much money is gained, masses will be said for me. That is all I declare.

Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary.

Testament of Mariana, widow of Juan Rafael (Tlacochochcalcatl), March 17, 1581

Although Mariana died after her husband Juan Rafael (Document 42), her will precedes his in the collection. The five precious stones he left her are now down to four, and she somewhat gratuitously denigrates their size. Interestingly, there is no mention of the children to whom Juan Rafael left a substantial portion of his estate; presumably what he gave them was their entire portion. Mariana owns some chinampas called "house land" (callalli) which add up to seven in number, apparently three nearby and four at a distance. Seven seems to have been an ideal number of chinampas.

Testament of María Tiacapan (b), daughter of Baltasar Cipriano, March 17, 1581

María's is a hard luck story. Left orphaned, she was then abandoned by her uncles, whom she expected to play the conventional role of surrogate parents. María's praise of her grandmother, who did fill that role, is cut off by the notary's curt et cetera (a most useful loan phrase for scribes!). The district heads or district people (tlaxilacalleque) are the same group as in Document 39, which was executed the same day.

affection (charity). The reason I say this is that Juana Ana, my grandmother, truly has performed meritoriously; she came to give us pieces of bread to eat that perhaps she was given somewhere. She has acquired merit in the whole time since we were left orphaned, etc. (sic).

- And now I say my late grandfather, Tomás Cacama, whose home was Tzaqualco, and my late mother disputed with my late uncle Lucas, and they went to Mexico City to accuse each other over the houses and chinampas. And the judge divided it in half and gave one part to my late mother. And when she died, she assigned it to us. And I declare that since she assigned us all her share, the wood and the stones and everything that there is, with all of it masses are to be said for me.

- And to my younger sister Magdalena Xoco I assign the house that belonged to my father Baltasar Cipriano. And the seven chinampas and the 20 (units of measure) of dry land (in?) Tlaelpan, next to the field of Juan Çaoaya, all of it together will be hers because it was the property of our late father; no one is to claim any of it from her.

- And in Yahualiuhcán there are 20 (units of measure of land) next to the former field of my uncle Lucas. I give it to my grandmother, Juana Ana Tiacapan; the reason that I give it to her is that the whole time since we were orphaned children she cared for us. No one is ever to claim it from her; I give it to her. Perhaps she will sell it.

- And there is another house of ours in Tzaqualco that faces west; the storeroom, wood, stone, wooden pillars, the door and a metate are our inheritance. I give my younger sister Magdalena (Xoco) the metate, the door, and the pillars; she is to take them. But the storeroom is to be sold, and with however much the proceeds are masses will be said for my late mother. That is all I say. Let no one violate my statement. Document 41

Testament of Luis Tlauhpotonqui, February 12, 1581

That we are dealing with pochteca is in this case more than an inference; the verb pochtecati “to act as a trader, do business” actually occurs here. Luis is the son of Antonio de Santa María, a Culhuacan trader who seems to have operated on quite a grand scale; many debts were owed him when he died. Luis's testament is a futile attempt to collect the debts. The son was not the wheeler-dealer his father had been, since few debts are from his own transactions. The testament tells us a good deal about the role of credit, payment in kind, collection through legal agencies, and geographical mobility in sixteenth-century indigenous trading. Antonio and Luis would seem to have kept running two-way accounts with some clients. Consider the confusing case of a don Alonso: apparently don Alonso owed 15 pesos at one time, reduced it to 10 by outright payment, then paid five and a half pesos toward a horse which subsequently died after Luis had taken it back, so that amount was counted toward the original debt along with three pesos' worth of honey that he gave Luis, leaving one and a half pesos outstanding.

Luis makes a number of bequests, including patrimonial land, to his kinswoman María Tiacapan (Doc. 53). He calls her noteicauh, which like all Nahuatl expressions for siblings is applicable also to cousins. In the absence of specific strong evidence to the contrary we translate these terms using sibling terminology, as we have done here, although there is reason to believe that María was in fact Luis's younger cousin rather than sister.

The notary's reference to the Holy Trinity as one person is probably to be attributed not so much to doctrinal error as to a lack of understanding of the meaning of the Spanish word persona.

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Luis Tlauhpotonqui, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa María Asunción Tianquizçolco, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are healthy and undisturbed. And I firmly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one person (sic) and of one essence. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord, I make and order my testament.

- First say I, Luis Tlauhpotonqui, that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I say that first I begin with that which was the property of my father, Antonio de Santa María, there is money spent on others that they are to pay back. First, Juana Tiacapan, widow of Juan Aca, whose home is Mexico City, paid back 13 (pesos) and four tomines, but she has yet to pay another peso four tomines. And (for this money?) Martín Cano, who was alcalde, and Luis Sánchez and Juan Coatl, who were topileque, interceded in the matter of Lázaro Hualmoquetza, who still must pay twenty- (one?) pesos because he stole two horses.

- And also there is money not yet paid (by) Miguel Huelihuitl, child of one named Joaquín; nine pesos are not yet paid. And as to the three pesos which he paid, he just worked at our home to pay it. With this money he got out of jail, because he broke the head of Juan de San Miguel when he was alguacil mayor. And he is to pay this promptly. And Juan Tzapa still has not paid eight pesos. Juan de San Miguel knows of this from when he was alcalde, but it is (also) in the testament that my father ordered. He is to pay it promptly.

- And one called Elías, whose home is Quauhtlalpan, still has not paid 20 pesos and a blanket together with it. Let him pay it back promptly. It will be seen in the testament that my father ordered.

- In addition, one named Panchimalcatl, whose home is Huapalcalco, has not paid some money. Let him pay back one peso promptly. And in Xomiltepec don Alonso also has (owes) some money, 15 pesos. He paid five pesos and he gave me five pesos four tomines to buy a horse of mine. But I brought the horse back again, and here (by the water? in Atlan?) the horse died. And he gave me three pesos worth of honey. And I say that with that is paid the money that he owes there, the 10 pesos. He will just bring one peso four tomines. Also don Miguel de Castañeda, whose home is Xomiltepec, has obligations for the price of a horse. He and my late father, Antonio de Santa María, had an agreement about it; (Castañeda) has not yet paid nine pesos. In addition the aforesaid don Miguel de Castañeda and Alvarado have not yet paid (money) with which they litigated (...?); they have not yet paid four pesos. And that which a person named Hernando, whose home is Xomiltepec, took with him has not been paid. He was going to carry on commerce with it but was not able to do it. Those 12 pesos are to be paid. And it is also (written) in the testament of my father. And here is what I myself have lent to others: Gabriel Huecamecatzintli came to borrow nine tomines. He is to pay it back promptly; it will be used to say masses for me. And Francisco Tello borrowed two pesos; with it masses are to be said for me.

- In addition, I say that my father had purchased land (among stones and caves? rocky and pitted?) which is at the entrance of the church, by the boundary of Juan Pérez; perhaps someone will want to buy it, /f. 66v/ and the proceeds in money will belong to my father in order for masses to be said for him.

- Also there is purchased land of my father's at the place named Huexocalco; it cost 20 pesos. I say that it will be sold, and with (the proceeds) masses will be said for my father. It belongs to him. In addition, (money) was spent here for candles and offerings. And I say that in order to pay for it, the field in Ayauhtonco of 80 (units of measure) is to be sold. And with (the proceeds) a mass is to be said for my late grandmother, María Mocel; and whatever money remains will be used for me; a mass will be said for me with it.

- And in (Santiago) Tetla, there are four (fields?) which are in the testament of my father. Perhaps someone will want to buy them, and with however much the proceeds are in money masses will be said exclusively to help my father. And there are six (painted) tecomes, and one varnished white, and one (in the form of?) a bird, which I gave as a pawn. These six painted tecomes and the varnished one that I have mentioned will be sold when I have died, (and the proceeds) will belong to me so that masses will be said for me, since (the tecomes) belong to me.

- And I say that this bird tecome is in the house of someone in Te(tla). Let someone go to collect it from him. Perhaps my brother-in-law Mateo Opan can go; let him deliver the four tomines (that I owe the person with whom I hocked it). In addition in Ayahualco there are chinampas, patrimonial land. I give six to my younger sister (cousin) María Tiacapan. They are not very big, but just small; I give them to her because it is our patrimonial land. And in Motlauhxauhcan there are six chinampas—they stole one; I give them to Pedro Huel-yehuatl, citizen of Cuecuetlacayan.

- In Cihuatlalpan, in the place called Tlacuilocan, (there is land) that was the inheritance of my father. Twenty (units of measure) I assign to my younger sister María Tiacapan and her husband Mateo (Opan). And 60 (units) of patrimonial land is to be sold, and with the proceeds in money alms are to be given to the sick with however much the purchase price is.

- And also I say that there is a house that my father gave me, of two buildings, facing Xochimilco; this is for me (in which to live) for however many days I yet lie sick, and when I have died the wood of the house will be burnt (as firewood). And in Tetlapanaloyan there are 40 (units of measure of land), and also in Quaxochco Tehuitztitlan there are 40, each one 20 wide; 40 will be sold in order to help my uncle Toribio Tecmilotzin. And the other 40 I assign to my younger sister, María Tiacapan, wife of Mateo Opan. And in Huixachtlan there is (land) of 10 (units) (in width), 20 long. It will be sold, and with the proceeds in money masses will be said for me.

- And I say that as to the money that was paid in Ixtapalapa, (someone) paid it by legal order; six pesos are (still being) kept at the jail, and two pesos were given to me to use in my affairs, and were used for me. In all, (someone) paid eight pesos, and I divide the other six (as follows): three pesos will be for saying masses for my late father. And the other three pesos belong to me for masses. (It is to be paid) promptly, without delay. That is all I say in my declaration.

- Luis Tlauhpotonqui's testament was done and ordered by him before the witnesses Agustín Vázquez, Miguel Josef, and Pedro de San Nicolás, executors, and Miguel de Ribas; Pedro Huelyehuatl; Mateo Opan; Francisco Xalli; Juana Tiacapan, widow of Juan Aca, whose home is Mexico City; Ana Xoco, cihuatepixqui, widow of Pedro Coçamallocatl; Petronilla, /f. 67r/ daughter of Pedro Huelyehuatl; María Tiacapan, wife of Mateo Opan; and Juana Teicuh, unmarried young woman. Today is Sunday the 12th day of the month of February of the year 1581. And whatever I have forgotten is to be investigated again in the testament of my late father. One can see there if I have forgotten something and it was not written.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, say that he ordered his testament well and truly, and I wrote it. Here I place my name and signature to verify the testament. And the executors do not know how to write, for which reason they did not set down their signatures.

Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

Document 42

Testament of Juan Rafael Tlacochealcacatl, February 27, 1581

Juan Rafael is the husband of another testator, Mariana (Document 39). His estate is especially interesting because of the different civil categories of land he owns, including calpulli land (calpollalli), patrimonial land (huehuetlalli), and an ambiguous category called quauhatlalli which may be a type of conquered land. He owns land bordering the church land (teopanmilli) that another testator, doña María Juárez (Document 71), left; by his mentioning it by civil category, it is clear the status of the land was publicly known. Juan Rafael participated in real estate transactions with identifiable Spaniards, including the local prior and the prior's brother-in-law. Another aspect of the will is that Juan Rafael had apparently acted as official executor of testaments, and his statements shed considerable light on the modus operandi of these functionaries, although the out-of-context remarks also leave us in some confusion as to several particulars.

- Know all who see this document that I, Juan Rafael by name, of the ward of Tres Reyes Coatlan, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed, and I believe very firmly in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make my testament.

- First I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Second I declare that my house that faces west I give to my two children, the first of whom is named Juana and the second, whose name is Petronilla Xoco. They are to divide it between themselves: Juana will take the part behind, and Petronilla will take the part at the entrance; this said (house is) five matl wide and three matl by the side. They are just to take care of things here; they are just to buy wood (to make repairs?).

- Concerning my purchased fields, I have a field 20 (units of measure) square. This said (field) of mine borders with the field of the church that doña María Juárez left. This said field I give to Petronilla. And five precious stones I give to my wife Mariana. And the enclosure that faces Xochimilco is to continue as it is. And the 10 chinampas that are at a distance, each one 40 (units of measure) long, I give to Petronilla. And (in Axalpan?) (there is land) of mine that borders with Gaspar Achane, and on the other side it borders with Melchor Téllez. And in Tecuitlaapan (I have) seven chinampas, each one 20 (units of measure) long, that border with Juan Téllez; I give them to Francisco Tezca, my nephew. And (I have) (wooded land? conquered land?) 20 (units of measure) square that borders with the late Francisco Chantli, and 20 in (Santiago) Tetla that borders with Juan Çaoya, and on the other side with Melchor Téllez. Both of these said pieces of patrimonial land will (be sold) if I die, (and the money) spent on and used for me. And here, next to the house, I have land that I bought. María, wife of Gerónimo, came to take one peso and four tomines (for the land). Let this said (land) be sold (and the money) used for me, to say a mass for me. And the seven chinampas that belong to the house and are calpulli land I give to Petronilla. And the house which used to be my late father's will belong to the church, in order for masses to be said for me. (The testament) was

- He (spoke) again and said that the enclosure, which is not yet covered, is to be sold, and (the money) to be spent on me. It is (the structure) that faces toward Xochimilco. Today Tuesday, the 25th of the month of February of the year 1581.

- Here is a declaration that I forgot that I entrust to you, notary; I used to speak for a person now dead, whose name was Pedro Coatecatl, citizen here in Ohuatlan (Coatlan?). I was going to sell his field in Tetlapanaloyan of 100 (units of measure). Pedro Ortiz (who was going to buy it) has not yet paid for these 100 (units) of land. But he gave me three pesos to buy a field of mine, 31 long, next to the field of the late Juan de San Luis, and on one side it touches the land of Pedro de San Nicolás. When we went to collect money from the late Alonso Pérez, I didn't collect all the money; some of them were dead. (Instead) we spent all my money, the proceeds from my 30 (units) of land; at that time, Juan Téllez Toqualtecuhtli was fiscal. We bought (something) with one peso, six tomines, and four tomines were used for us, Miguel Téllez Tlapaltecatl, whose home is Cihuatecpa, and me, because both of us went to collect the money of Alonso Pérez, and we brought back four tomines that we gave to the fiscal. What I declare here Miguel Téllez knows well, and the reason I now entrust my statement to you is that, since the proceeds of my aforementioned field belong to me, let no one accuse me of anything when I have died. The reason I say this is that our dear father, the prior, fray Juan Núñez, and his brother-in-law Diego de San Román and his son went to see the field of 100 (units of measure) that belonged to Pedro Coatecatl. And I say, let Ortiz pay, because I (can't collect the payment); even though I always urged it, I have been unable to do it. Let the deceased be aided promptly, because many times I have gone to the trouble of making investigations concerning the field. But now our dear father the prior and Ortiz have come to agreement that he will pay the price. And our dear father also saw 40 (units of measure) of (conquered? wooded?) land which is also the field of Pedro Coatecatl, with which it comes to 140 (units of measure of land). All of it is to be sold. And in Coquiac there are (some chinampas) 40 (units of measure long) and 20 wide which have not been located, and no one whom I questioned knows about it. I declare that if they do appear, if someone finds out about it, that also will belong to him and will be sold. This is all I make manifest to you. (Done) before Juana Tiacapan, Petronilla, and María Ana, wife of the one about to die. Today, Monday, the 27th of February of the year 1581.

- I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, did the writing.

Testament of Juana Tiacapan (c), June 2, 1581

Often when a testator orders property sold, we have little idea whether the transaction ever took place or not. Here, Juana orders the sale of some goods connected with weaving, plus some barnyard fowl. Following the will is the certification of the sales to some Culhuacan women. The terminology connected with weaving is potentially valuable in understanding techniques and technology; however, precisely because these things are so technical and little known, much of our translation relating to weaving is provisional.

/f. 69r/ Juana Tiacapan

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Juana Tiacapan, whose home is here in San Francisco Atempan, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one omnipotent God. And I believe all that our mother, the Holy Church of Rome, believes. Therefore now I make my testament; let no one violate it.

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul in the hands of our lord God because he redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Second I declare that there is a field that was given to me in Santiago Tetla, 40 (units of measure long), next to the field of Pedro Cuicapantzin in Cihuapatla; it was the field of my grandfather Juan Cuixcocatl, together with the chinampas (of the field), patrimonial land, 20 (units of measure long). This said (land) belongs to and I give it to my brother-in-law Juan Bautista; no one is to claim it from him, because it is my inheritance. And as to the yarn that belonged to my younger sister Antonia, who was the wife of my brother-in-law Juan Bautista, I declare that since she was his wife, let him take it. He knows if perhaps he will hire someone (to finish weaving it), and upon its completion (and sale) a mass will be said for her. The reason why I say this is so that God will not castigate me because I myself have not been able to do it. And the yarn that I mentioned (consists of) a piece of woven cloth and two (designs), of which one is stretched on the canes (for weaving), and, fourth, a small (piece of cloth). Let my brother-in-law take it, he knows about this.

- In addition, I declare that I have a small chest that is my property; I bought it. I give it to my brother-in-law, Juan Bautista. Perhaps he will put his papers there. No one is to claim it from him. And also in Tomatla there are five chinampas that the judge Juan Gallego gave me. I give them also to my brother-in-law, Juan Bautista. Let my lord, Francisco Maldonado, quickly manifest all that I declare when I have died.

- Here is something I have put much effort into: I planted a field in Yahualiuhan, 40 (units of measure) (long?), and in the land of Tlamacazco one of 20, and this (land) I mention is not my property nor my land, but that of my father. But the crop I give to my younger brother Diego, who is to reap it; I assign it to him, and also a (cloth seat? some yarn?), not a full piece of cloth yet, and two (designs) and a (tied? knotted?) piece, which is dark in color. I give it to my younger brother Diego; perhaps someone can make something out of it; he knows about it.

- And I declare that there is a small metate of mine and a (design) and two small (hanks of yarn?), black in color, and a (hank?) of white yarn. I give it to my godchild Miguel, and to little Ana I give a small metate. No one is to claim it from them, because I offer it to them.

/f. 69v/ - In addition I declare that I have a tomín's worth of yarn, only warped (i.e., not finished weaving), and (a design), and two (designs) on the canes (for weaving), which are to be finished, and half a tomín's worth of (cloth) which is striped with various colors; it will be sold, and with however much the proceeds are in money, masses will be said for me. And a metate and four recently hatched ducklings and one (already older), five (in all), and two turkey hens (now mature) that my fellow parent-in-law raised will be sold. When it is sold, all (of the money) will go to the church in order for masses to be said for me.

- And I borrowed two (lengths?) of (tied? knotted?) yarn; it is to be given to the aunt of Andrés, named Cecilia, whose home is Tianquizçolco. Also I borrowed four tomines from my grandmother; they are to be given to her quickly when my yarn is sold. This is all I declare. Let no one ever say anything (against it) because in what I gave to others I have not touched my father's property, because what I gave to others is truly my own property. Nor with my woman's things do I touch (my father's property); during the time I have lived on earth, I have acquired them by my own efforts. /f. 69v/ - Here are the things that Juana Tiacapan said were to be sold, and they were sold. María Salomé is the first (buyer); she bought two ducks for four tomines; Juana Moysén offered to buy the (older) duck for a tomín and a half, and she bought (a design) that was on the canes for a tomín; and María Salomé bought the turkey hens for six tomines, and three lengths of yarn (already woven) which is not yet adorned (embroidered?), for four tomines; and a (design) that is on the canes for a tomín and a half. And María Tiacapan of Calpoltitlan bought a metate for three tomines. And all the money together makes the sum of two pesos and five tomines, from the goods of Juana Tiacapan that were sold today, Friday, the 16th day of the month of June of the year 1581. The sale was done before Juana Moysén; Francisco Maldonado; Juan Bautista; Juana Tiacapan, wife of Juan Lázaro; María Salomé, unmarried young women; Agustín Vázquez; and Miguel Josef. And with this money of hers (of the late Juana Tiacapan), the price of the goods, our dear father the prior said a mass. Done before the witnesses Gabriel Maldonado, Agustín Vázquez, and Miguel Josef. I did the writing, Miguel Jacobo (de Maldonado).

- Second (sic) say I, Joaquín, that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- In addition, I declare that I have a horse (mule?), and when I have died, my younger sister Juana Tiacapan will take it and have it. And the reason I say this is that she is to aid me with six masses, as if she bought (the animal); I put her in charge of it, she has the responsibility of arranging the masses. Let me be helped promptly before God when I have died.

- And there is one peso of my money. I make it an offering, so that when I have died I will be buried at the church of San Juan Evangelista. And there are two tomines so that the church attendants will come to take me and accompany my earthly body to the church of our Lord when I am buried.

- In addition, I declare that in Cuitlatetelco someone named Martín Cano is keeping a horse of mine valued at eight pesos. This said horse will be sold and from it will come three pesos and four tomines that I borrowed from the said Martín Cano who is keeping my horse. And I declare that when my horse that I mentioned is sold, since it has been there for a year in the service of Martín Cano, he is to pay for the horse's work.

- Also there is another person, citizen of Cuitlatetelco, named Miguel, who was going to fix up a cross for me for a peso and four tomines that I gave him, and this said money will belong to me to aid me before God, and with it a mass will be said for me. Testament of Simón Moxixicoa, January 22, 1581

This testament and related documents indicate that testators' attempts to impose their will on their heirs were not always successful. Simón wants his wife to raise his children at the marital residence after he dies. His wife has other ideas. With her relatives supporting her case, she disputes her late husband's will and has town officials separate her goods from his estate after his death so that she can leave.

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Simón Moxixicoa, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of San Francisco Tlacatecpa, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that our mother, the Holy Church of Rome, believes. Therefore now with supplication of God our lord I make and order my testament.

- First say I, Simón, that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Also I declare that there is a house of mine that faces west, that my late wife, who died first, and I built. I give it to my children, Francisca Tiacapan and Bartolomé Diego; and their mother whom I married after (the death of my first wife) is just to rule them there and not go away to another place. All my houselot is to be with (the house); and its land at the edge of the water belongs to my child Bartolomé Diego. And the three chinampas that are in Atezcapan I also assign to Bartolomé Diego.

- And I declare that there are seven chinampas of mine in Motlauhxauhcan. They belong and I give them to my daughter Francisca Tiacapan. And I have a godchild named Matías, son of Jacobo Tlatollehua, to whom I give two chinampas that are in Motlauhxauhcan, each one 30 (units of measure long). And the other part, another three, I give to my wife María Justina. She is to take them.

- And I give the land at the edge of the water in Cillan, and also the seven chinampas in Çacaapan which were Baltasar Tlacochcalcatl's, to my child Bartolomé Diego.

They belonged to him before and I confirm his rights. And the other field which was Baltasar Tlacochcalcatl's (has) 10 (chinampas), and five belong to Bartolomé Diego; he (and his sister?) are to divide (the 10) between them. And in Yacatitlan there are nine chinampas that belong to my child Bartolomé Diego. No one is to claim them from him.

- Also I declare that facing Tlatlauhquitepec there are 20 (units of measure of land) square that I assign and give to my wife. No one is to claim them from María Justina. And in Santiago Tetla, in the place named Tenepantla, I give 40 (units of measure of land) to my children Francisca Tiacapan and Bartolomé Diego. Each is to take 20; they are to divide it between them. And to the little child that our lord God gave me, if he stays a day (if he lives), belong my 20 piles of wood. No one is to claim them from him. His mother knows about this.

/f. 72r/ - And I declare that of four metates of mine I assign two to Francisca Tiacapan and also two to Bartolomé, because they are both my children. And a hoe, an axe, and a metal-tipped digging stick belong to Bartolomé Diego because he is male, if he lives. And all of our things that are inside the house belong to both my children, because it is their property and they are to have it all. And a quappantli of porous stone (tezontle) that was brought from Santiago Tetla is to be sold, (and the money) will belong to me in order to bury me. And the hard stone, not much of it, I give to Bartolomé Diego. He knows if he will build something (with it). And the stones for corners of houses that are next to the house will belong to our dear father San Francisco, with which to make his house (to build the church of San Francisco Tlacatepán). No one is to appropriate them. This is all I declare. Let no one ever say anything after my time, when I have died.

- Simón Moxixicoa ordered his testament before witnesses, the first, Lorenzo Xochiten, tepixqui; Miguel Cuixcocatl; Miguel Yaotl; Juan Xochitl; Juan Francisco Yaotl; Jacobo Tlatollehua; Felipe Andrés, blindman; these are all the ward heads. And the women: Ana Teicuh, wife of Juan Téllez, alcalde; María Justina, wife of the one about to die; Marina Magdalena (his?/her?) mother-in-law; Juana Tiacapan, wife of Juan Xochitl; Ana Cecilia, wife of Felipe Andrés; and Petronilla, wife of Miguel Cuixcocatl.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, say that Simón Moxixicoa ordered his testament well, and I wrote it. Here I place my name and signature.

/f. 72r/ - Here in the city of Culhuacan, the 27th day of the month of May of the year 1581, before the lords alcaldes, Lorenzo de San Francisco and Juan Téllez, and the fiscal, Gabriel Maldonado, appeared the widow of Simón Moxixicoa, named María Justina, and all the relatives of the woman came and said, "Let us hear the testament that the deceased ordered." And then the testament was searched for and was read and the relatives heard it. And they complained about the woman's unshelled maize; they disputed greatly over it and were very discontented about it.

- And thus the lords alcaldes ordered: they said that they ordered the woman: "Abandon the house and take the firewood and your unshelled maize and all your woman's things. No one is to quarrel, but you are to take your property /f. 72v/ in peace. And it will be done before the alguacil mayor, and whoever says anything (counter to it) will have justice done him and will be put in jail." Thus ordered the lords alcaldes before the regidores Francisco Gerónimo and Francisco Xochicalcatl.

Agustín Jiménez, alguacil mayor. Done before me, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

And when the woman took out her property, in peace she took her unshelled maize and her cut wood and her woman's things. And they give in keeping to the wife of Juan Yaotl the precious green stones of the little children of Simón Moxixicoa, to keep them for (the children). Here they put their signatures, etc. (sic).

Don Lorenzo de San Francisco, alcalde. Juan Téllez, alcalde. Done before me, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

Document 46*Testament of Tomás Motolinia, March 8, 1581*

Tomás's second name proclaims him a poor person, but he owns a fair amount of land, including purchased land. Tomás takes his role as uncle seriously, bequeathing land to a nephew so the young man "will come to establish himself as an adult man with the tribute."

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Tomás Motolinia, whose home is here (in the ward of) Tres Reyes Coatlan, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make and order my testament.

- First, I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and it is in his image. And my earthly body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- I also say that I keep nothing for our lord God (have nothing) with which to make an offering at the church. I just say that my daughter Bárbara Inés is poor, and if our lord God allows her to live, I assign her my purchased chinampas in Ixtlapanco. (They were) the chinampas of the noble lady, doña Juana de Montezuma. I gave her six pesos and also there exists our written agreement, so that no one can ever make objections.

- And I say that as to a house of mine, recently finished, which faces west, with a corral that faces toward Xochimilco, along with the firewood and the shingles and all of our property which is inside the house, I assign it all to my daughter Bárbara Inés and my son-in-law, Francisco Moysén. I make it their property, and no one is to take it from them. And as to our patrimonial house, which faces Xochimilco, where I lie sick, when my late mother died, she gave each one of us his part. We just divide the house, my elder sister, Ana Tiacapan, and I. And now I say that it is to continue thus, since that which belongs to me I in turn assign to my children. They can decide, if they live, if they will sell it or not. And there is cultivated land of 30 (units of measure) by the field of the late Martín Xiuhltlan, whose home was San Francisco Atempan. And I say that it belongs to me. It is to be sold, for it is sown with magueys. When the proceeds in money have been collected, masses will be said for me with it.

- In addition, I say that there are five pesos of mine which are kept (where the planks go down to the water?), and with it I was going to buy a boat. Let it be requested of the one who has it, named Gerónimo, and when the money is brought, with it we will be helped; it will be delivered to the church. And in (Santiago) Tetla there are 40 (units of measure of land). I give 20 to my elder sister Ana Tiacapan, and I also give 20 to my

Done before the executors Agustín Vázquez, Miguel Josef, Pedro de San Nicolás, Diego Elías, and Gaspar de San Pablo; Ana Tiacapan, wife of Juan Çaoya; and Bárbara Inés, wife of Francisco Moysén.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, say that Tomás Motolinia ordered his testament well and truly, and I wrote it. Here I place my name and signature. Today, Wednesday, the 8th day of the month of March of the year 1581.

Testament of Pablo de San Gabriel Huitzahuatl, March 11, 1581

Pablo Huitzahuatl's will is part of a major cluster of testaments. In addition to giving land to his daughter Angelina Mocel (Doc. 50), Pablo makes a number of unusual bequests to others. One is so that people will console his wife and children after his death. He also gives chinampas to the elders (huehuetque) of Tomatla and some land to the city fathers of Culhuacan (altepehuaeque). This type of bequest is relatively uncommon. One of Pablo's plots is measured in mecatl (lit: cord), a unit which in Culhuacan seems to have been 200 units of measure by 20, since it is here explicitly so defined. In other parts of central Mexico, the mecatl was 20 x 20.

de San Gabriel Huitznhauatl, of the ward of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed. And I very truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, God the Father, God the son, and God the Holy Spirit, one true omnipotent God. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make and order my testament.

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of our lord God, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from the earth it came.

- And I declare that I have a house, the “woman's house” which faces east and toward Xochimilco, and has seven chinampas at the border of the water. I assign it to my daughter named Angelina Mocel; no one is to claim it from her.

- And I assign another house of mine, also facing Xochimilco, which is attached (to the first), where I let other people live, to my two children and my wife Bárbara Tlaco, because even though they have a house, it is being torn down; they are to come here (from) Xallah.

- And I declare that there are seven chinampas of mine in the place named Acatzintitlan next to the field of the late Fabián Jiménez. I say that they will belong to my daughter Angelina Mocel. No one is to take them from her. And there are two (chinampas) in Acalotenco (or, at the edge of the canal?) next to what was the field of Juan Huitzil, and also in Acalotenco, in Tlacatecco, there are two (chinampas) by the field of the late Miguel Nem(e/a)lla. I also assign these to my daughter Angelina Mocel. No one is to claim them from her.

- And I declare that there are two (chinampas) at the entrance of Pedro Moysén's, which he works. And I say that I assign them and give them to him. No one is to claim them from him. Also there are seven (chinampas) in Tlacatecco which I also assign to Pedro Moysén. No one is to claim them from him; I make them his property.

- In addition I declare that I assign the level patrimonial land in Tezcacoac with its seven (chinampas) at the edge of the water, and 20 (units of measure) square of cultivated land in Tocitilan, next to the fields of those of Tezcacoac, to my grandchild named Juan Bautista. (units of measure of land); I give them to my daughter Angelina Mocel. And also there are 40 that I give to my little children Mónica and Elena, if they grow (until they are adults), for it is their property. Their mother Bárbara Tlaco is to guard it for them. And there are 40 (units of measure) of (wooded? conquered?) land in Tlahuacan. It is also to belong to each of my children, Mónica and Elena, and their mother is to guard it for them. And in (Santiago) Tetla there are 40 (units of measure), in Texalpan. I give it to Angelina Mocel. No one is to claim it from her; I make it her property.

- And I declare that in Çacaapan there are eight (chinampas), which I give to Juan, who was the child of Juan Cimmaxal. The reason I give them to him is so that sometime they will take pity and come to see my children, let them come to console my wife when I have died. And the aforesaid eight chinampas are next to the field of the noble lady, my niece doña Elena Constantina, wife of the lord Juan de San Miguel. Also I give five (chinampas) to my brother-in-law named Lorenzo, who was the child of Simón Temictia. I make them his property; no one is to take them from him.

- Also I declare that in the place called Santa María Nativitas Tomatla there are also chinampas of mine, six of them. I give them to the elders there. The first of the people to whom I give chinampas is Pedro Moysén, and (the others are) Pedro Michatl, Hernando Rodríguez, Pedro de Alvarado, Miguel Tlacatecuhtli, and Antonio Toca. To each of these whom I have mentioned will be given one (chinampa). I make them their property; no one is to claim them from them.

- And I declare that in the place called Amoxcuitlac there are 20 (units of measure of land) square, by the field of Joaquín, who was the son of (Diego?) Yahuacatl, whose home is Cihuatecpa-n. I give it to Bernardino Vázquez, whose home is Xallah. And in the place Ocelotepec there is (land) which is 10 matl in width and 60 in length. I assign it also to my nephew Bernardino Vázquez.

- And also as to all my men's things, a boat, a chest, a tecamate, my bed, the small planks, all that we acquired, my wife Bárbara Tlaco and I, no one is to claim any of it from her, and the grain bin made of planks that fell down, they are to take all of it together. No one is to claim it. I make it entirely the property of my two children and my wife. Let no one cheat them.

Testament of Juan de San Pedro, March 16, 1581

Juan has the same name as a Culhuacan notary, but whether he is the same man as his namesake cannot be determined, especially since the person here seems to have taken his surname from his ward, a common phenomenon. Juan's most interesting possession is his "young man's house" (telpochcalli), built before he married. The term appears in sources on Nahuas as a school for commoner boys, but may also have had this other meaning.

body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that I give the house where I lie, which faces west, to my children María Tiacapan and Agustín. The reason I say that I give it to my children is that it is my "young man's house," because I was still a young man when I built the house, not yet married. Therefore I declare that all three of my children are to be there if they grow to be adults, for they are dwelling in the house of other people in San Juan Xaltitolco. No one is to claim it from them.

- And I declare concerning my house (next to the other house?) that faces east, that we two, my wife and I, built after (we married), I say that I am carrying out what my younger sister Bárbara Tiacapan said, that she gave the (firewood, leftover wood) to others; she gave 10 (piles) to her husband Luis Pérez, and 10 also to her compadre Diego Tapia, whose home is Santa Ana Tetla; and she also gave five to my aunt Ana Xoco, with which it comes to 25; (the house) is to be knocked down and distributed to them. The words of my younger sister Bárbara are not to be violated, because she already made it the property of others; no one is to claim it from them, and I also say it.

- In addition, (the platform in the water on which stands?) the said house, (its stone foundation?), will belong to the home (church) of our dear father San Pedro (of Çacaapan), it will be used in some part of it. And the two wooden columns of (the house) I give to my aunt Ana Xoco. And its lintel will be sold and a row of (the firewood, kindling), also 25 (piles), will belong to me, and also the stone, one full matl of it that I have accumulated, is all to be sold. And the 10 used boat planks are to be sold, and (the proceeds of) five will belong to my children. When they are sold, the 10 old boat planks, perhaps (the money) will be enough for two masses in order that we be aided before God, my wife and I.

- And I say that my late father left me a house facing Xochimilco; I give it to my aunt, Ana Xoco; the reason why /f. 76r/ I give it to her is that she took much care of me and served me in my illness. For this reason I say that I make it her property; no one is ever to claim it from her.

- Also I declare that all three metates will belong to my children. No one is to claim them from them, because they are (my children's) property. And the land at the edge of the water that goes with my house, and seven (chinampas) that are at the entrance of Domingo Tlacatecuhtli, and also the five (chinampas) in Tecuitlaapan,

Testament of María Tiacapan (c), young woman of Tlemachica, May 20, 1581

María Tiacapan's will is another in a large testament cluster. Her relative, Antonio de San Francisco Tlemachica (Doc. 30), who calls her "my niece" she calls "my lord" (notecuiyotzin), used in some Culhuacan wills as a term of address for "uncle" or someone who acts as surrogate parent (see Doc. 53). María gives a little house to her older sister Bárbara Tlaco, wife of the testator Pablo Huitzahuatl (Doc. 47).

each one 25 (units of measure) long, all belong to my children. No one is to claim it from them, because it is their property.

- And a boat is also to belong to my children. They are to rent it to others, and from that they will get what they need to eat. And the net which I recently (made?) that is now one vara long, all of it belongs to my children. No one can claim any of it from them.

- This is all I declare in my statement; let no one say anything (counter to it) when I have died. I am not keeping anything for anybody, absolutely nothing (I owe nothing to anyone). Done before the ward heads Domingo Tlacatecuhtli and Pedro de San Nicolás and the deputies Agustín Vázquez, Miguel Josef and Diego Elías. Today, the 16th of March of the year 1581.

Document 50

Testament of Angelina Mocel, May 2, 1581

Many members of Angelina's family had just recently died or were about to (such as her aunt María Tiacapan in the previous document). She makes provisional bequests to her nephew, because she expects her son Nicolás to die. Among Angelina's property are things she received from her father Pablo Huitznhuatl (Doc. 47) and her husband Juan Velázquez (Doc. 57).

The testament contains some weaving terminology much like that in Document 43, and the same provisos apply. There is also an interesting example of the use of kinship terms. Angelina refers to María Salomé and Petronilla as her sisters-in-law (nohuezhuatzitzinhuau), which from the context they surely must have been. Yet in the later episode in which they offer to help by doing her unfinished weaving and making an offering to the church (Doc. 50A), the two refer to Angelina as "our younger sister" (ticiuhtzin). Since they are unmarried, they are probably younger than she. We presume that here the lineal term is used instead of the affinal, as sometimes happened, and further that this is one of the cases where younger and older are reversed to show respect. See Document 52A for another example of female in-laws helping out in this way.

And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- First I declare that my late father Pablo (de San Gabriel) Huitzahuatl gave me the “woman's house,” which faces east; it is to be sold when I die because I have no assets at all with which to be buried. And whatever money should be left of the proceeds from the house will be spent on me, for masses to be said for me. It will belong to me.

- And I give the second (house, room), facing Xochimilco, to my nephew Juan Bautista with all the chinampas which accompany it; he is to take all of it. And there are seven chinampas in Acatzintitlan by the field of the late Fabián, stone mason. I assign them to my child Nicolás. If he lives, he is to take them. And if he dies, they are to be sold and with (the proceeds) masses will be said for us. And there are two chinampas in Tlacatecco, and two more in a separate place; perhaps someone will want to buy them. Perhaps however much money the sale price comes to will be enough for a mass to help us.

- In addition, there is some dry land in Ayauhtonco of 10 (units of measure). Forty belong to my younger sisters who were born in someone else's household in Xallah. And as to the 40 which my late father assigned to me, I say it is to be sold, and with the proceeds in money, masses are to be said for me, when (the money) has been collected. And I give (land) in (Santiago) Tetla in the place named Texalpan to my child Nicolás, if he lives. And if he does not (live) then it too is to be sold in order for masses to be said for us.

- And the chest my late husband and I bought belongs to my child Nicolás; it is to be sold, and with it he will be given milk. And a metate is to be sold in order to buy candles for the burial of my body when I have died.

- And where my late husband's home was he gave me a house facing Xochimilco. And inasmuch as it was my inheritance, my sisters-in-law María Salomé and Petronilla bought it; they gave me six tomines. And I did not spend this money for any idle purpose; it was spent on my child whom my husband left behind. I no longer lay claim to the house, because it now belongs to others and was sold.

/f. 78v/ - In addition, there is my yarn, recently (spun into) two lengths. It was to be for a huipil and is stretched on the canes (is on the handloom). The third length is not warped yet. And there are two hanks of black (yarn) and some rabbit fur cloth that is worth one and a half tomines. And there is a little dark colored (yarn) and a little (tied? knotted?) (yarn) and a (design?), and cotton which is worth a tomín, and a cloak which was my late husband's. If I had lived, I was going to help my husband with it and request some masses. And now I say it is to be sold and is to belong to my husband. Perhaps someone will want to buy it; it is to belong to him. Done before the witnesses: the executors Agustín Vázquez; Miguel Josef; Diego Elías, alguacil, Baltasar Téllez, topile; Bárbara Tlaco, María Salomé. Today, Tuesday the 2nd day of May of the year 1581.

- I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, wrote the testament of Angelina Mocel, as she made the various orders. I place here my signature.

Done before me, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

/f. 78v/ - We, the executors, Agustín Vázquez and Miguel Josef, and Miguel Jacobo (de Maldonado), notary, declare as to the (cloth) mentioned here above which she says was going to be a huipil, and the various things that are mentioned, the unmarried young women María Salomé and Petronilla said, "Let us make up the yarn and all that is mentioned above, and we will go and make the offering, because (it was to our younger sister to whom it was given?)." And to verify it, (we declare) that we saw the money, one peso four tomines, which was presented before us and was brought to the church, and which we gave to our beloved father the prior, fray Juan Zimbrón. (Done) before the witness, the fiscal, Gabriel Maldonado.

Today, Monday, the 28th of May of the year 1582.

Document 51*Testament of Gerónimo Teuhciuatl, May 15, 1581*

Among Gerónimo's holdings is some "calpulli land" (calpollalli). The term appears in only one other testament, that of Juan Rafael Tlacochealcatl (Doc. 42). In view of the importance of this category in the literature, one would have expected more generous use of it in the Culhuacan wills. On the other hand, the testaments have numerous instances of the term tlalmilli (e.g. Doc. 47), to which Charles Gibson attributes the meaning "a plot or segment in the calpullalli" (Aztecs, p. 267). Conceivably, then, "tlalmilli" is being used instead of "calpollalli." We have seen no indication in the texts, however, that "tlalmilli" means anything more than a cultivated field, perhaps among others, as opposed to a chinampa, and we have translated the term accordingly.

/f. 79r/ Gerónimo Teuhciuatl

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Gerónimo Teuhciuatl by name, of the ward of Tres Reyes Coatlan, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of just one essence. And I believe all that our mother, the Holy Church of Rome, believes. Therefore now as my ultimate will, on the verge of my death, I order my testament. Let no one violate what I thus order.

- First say I, Gerónimo, that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Also I declare there is a house of mine facing west, and attached to it is one that also faces in the same direction. I assign them to my wife named María Tlaco and to my child just born if it grows up; they will be there.

- And as to the large house that faces east, with a store-room, now not new but old, when I have died it is to be sold; perhaps someone will want to buy it, and (the money) will be spent on me for my burial. And I give the six chinampas belonging to the house to my child named Diego. And in another place, at the other side of the water, there are four chinampas that I give to my wife María Tlaco. Two are 20 (units of measure long) each, and one is 40 long. I assign them to her; no one is to claim them from her.

- And I declare there are two (chinampas) at the entrance (of the property of) the late Diego Tetepon; willows stand on them. I assign and give it to my child Diego. And there is dry land next to the field of Juan Tlapix-catzin where the road is; it is calpulli land, 20 (units of measure long), planted with magueys. It will also belong to my child Diego; no one is to claim it from him.

- Also I give a metate to my wife María Tlaco. And my mother-in-law Ana Teicuh is keeping a metate for my child Diego. She is to give it to him; it belongs to him, because my late wife bought it. And I give her a chest. No one is to claim it from her because it is her property.

- And I declare that I borrowed money in Coyoacan, one peso, five tomines. And I declare that the house I mentioned above that faces east is to be sold and from it is to come (the money) by which it should be paid back and given to the owner. This is all the declaration that I, Gerónimo, make. Done before those who heard it, the witnesses: Domingo Ramos, church tepixqui; Ana Teicuh, the old woman; Ana Teicuh, widow of Pedro Olin; Magdalena Teicuh, widow of Gaspar Morales; Ana Tiacapan, the old woman; and before us, Agustín Vázquez and Miguel Josef, executors. Testament of Ana Tlaco, June 18, 1581

Residence and citizenship in a town were distinct categories, as Ana makes clear. As with the other out-of-town testator, Joaquín de Luna (Doc. 44), Ana orders masses said for her in Culhuacan. Like Joaquín, she owns a pack animal, and both testators were likely engaged in commerce. In both instances there is the still unresolved question of whether a caballo macho was a horse or a mule. The term also appears in Document 81, where since macho also appears alone, one is somewhat inclined toward the interpretation "mule."

- In the name of the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, I begin my testament. Know all who see and read this document that I, Ana Tlaco, whose home is Yecapixtla, but I live here in the city of San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, living in the ward of San Francisco Tlacatecpan, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed and sound, and I have not lost my judgment, and with all my heart I believe in God, and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord I make and order (my testament) as my ultimate and final will, now on the verge of my death.

- First I give my spirit and soul to God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Second, I declare that my horse (mule?) that they are taking about in Yecapixtla is to be brought here and sold. When I bought it I gave 15 pesos for it; if someone wants to buy it, when the money has been collected it is to be divided into two equal parts; one half will go to Yecapixtla, and the other will be delivered to the church of San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan here, and with it masses will be said for me.

- Third, I declare that I have here one peso in money. When I have died, six tomines will be my offering. And for two tomines, the church attendants will come to take my body; (the money) will be given to them. And my younger brother Miguel Techichino gave me a field 20 (units of measure) long and 40 wide (sic). I give it to my younger brother Miguel Itztic, and perhaps he will favor me with some candles on the feast of the dead (see also Document 53). And I give one (tomín's worth) of white yarn and two (designs) to my daughter María, and my daughter María is to take a skirt that is in (Quahuatl...co?), that Adriano is keeping. And as to our property that is in Yecapixtla, my husband Juan Bueno knows about it, he is to distribute part to my daughter María (and from the other part) he will favor me with candles to be delivered to the church. This is all I say in my declaration; let no one violate it. Done before those who heard the declaration of the invalid: Agustín Vázquez, Miguel Josef, Miguel Rafael, Lorenzo Xochiten, Jacobo Tlatollehua, Agustín Yaochihualoc, Miguel Itztic, Agustín Gerónimo, Petronilla Tlaco, Magdalena Tlaco, María Xoco, Cristina Tiacapan. Testament Fragment of María Tiacapan (d), n.d.

María is the kinswoman of Luis Tlauhpotonqui; likely she is his cousin, though they call each other by terms which we must translate into English as "brother" and "sister" (see Doc. 41). She calls Luis's father "my lord," while he calls him "father." Her husband, like Luis, is a trader. She herself owns an interest in a horse, doubtless used in commerce, and wants the revenues from it to take care of her son Francisco. She acted as witness to the will of another trader and horseowner, Joaquín de Luna (Doc. 44). One of María's requests is that she be remembered every year on "the day of the dead" (miccailhuitl), perhaps the same day as the Christian feast.

of my death.

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because it is his creation, and he redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I, María Tiacapan, declare that I give my husband Mateo Opan seven small chinampas next to where the field of Juan Achalala was, here in Atololco Atezcapan. And what my elder brother Luis Tlauhpotonqui gave me in Ayahualolco I give to my younger sisters; (specifically) I assign it to Juana. No one is to violate my words.

- In addition I declare that I also give the level land at the entrance of Pedro Coyoxiuhtzin, with its chinampas, to my younger sisters since they belong to them. And in regard to what my lord, Antonio de Santa María, gave me, in Tequixquipan by the field (of a person) from Coatlan named Chamol, divided in seven parts (chinampas), I declare that I am assigning it to my husband Mateo Opan. No one is to claim it from him. And in regard to what my elder brother gave me in Cihuatlalpan, I likewise give it in turn to my younger sisters. They know about it, since it belongs to them. They will always keep it, no one is to claim it from them.

- And I declare regarding the two horses that my husband earned one of them entirely by himself. But the second (horse) we earned together; it cost us trouble to acquire it. With (the revenues from) it, my child Francisco will be raised.

- In addition, I declare that the place where I lie, the patrimonial house, which our progenitors left us, is all to belong to my younger sisters; and its houselot, which was the inheritance of my father, attached to (the house), and was purchased by my lord, Antonio de Santa María, is to be sold. I put my husband Mateo Opan in charge of seeing to it that on the day of the dead with (the proceeds) he remember me before God and bring candles (to the church) each year. Let him not forget me.

Posthumous Statement for Antonio Toca, May 20, 1583

This posthumous declaration of Antonio Toca's goods is typical of the genre. Here, the gravity of the epidemic conditions is suggested by the fiscal's comment: "They left no children, all of them died, and they made no testament; they just died."

Testament of Pedro Cano Acatl, October 7, 1581

Pedro owns both purchased houses and purchased land, as well as inherited property. The distinction between purchased and inherited property is fundamental. Note that Pedro paid for part of his property in cash and completed the purchase price by work.

donado, fiscal here in the said city, set down and manifest here what concerns the deceased Antonio Toca, whose home was Santa María Nativitas Tomatla. All the things that he left, the unshelled maize, the amaranth, the beans, and all that belonged to him was sold. And just one boatload (quauhacalli?) of maize was delivered to the church. The reason I manifest this here is because they left no children; all of them died, and they made no testament; they just died. And the house that was theirs, at the entrance of Agustín Tlaçaca('s property) was sold; Marcos Quauhtli bought it. It is where Pedro Juárez used to be. Marcos Quauhtli was given a bill of sale (that showed) how he bought the house. And the small house attached to (the house), of wooden grating, is the inheritance of the wife of Pedro, whose home is San Juan Bautista Ollopan; (she is) the stepchild of Juan González Tocuiltecatl. And so that no one should be confused, what is manifested here will be seen in the bill of payment. And to verify it I place here my name and signature, along with the executors.

Gabriel Maldonado, fiscal. Francisco Flores. Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, appointed notary.

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Pedro Cano Acatl, whose home is here in Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa María Nativitas Tomatla, even though I am gravely ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed. (the result of) my work, but is a house purchased for the price of nine pesos. It was the house of Antón Rafael Acatzon, and a noblewoman of Coyoacan, the wife of Pedro Ortiz, had it announced (for sale) for 10 pesos. And I declare that I assign it to all three of my children, Agustín Icnol, María Tiacapan, and Pedro (Icnol). No one is to claim it from those whom I mention, for it is their property and they have deserved it by God our lord.

- Also I have purchased land of 80 (units of measure that was) the land of doña Juana de San Gabriel, and I gave her 10 pesos, four tomates for 60, and to complete 80, 20 were just donated to me because sometimes I gave her obedience (I did things she ordered me to do). And I say that it is to belong to all of my children already mentioned; no one is to claim it from them, for it is (something I acquired with) my toil and effort.

- In addition, I declare that there are some purchased chinampas of mine that were the field of the tlatoani don Juan de Aguilar, former gobernador. There are twelve (chinampas), and they cost three pesos, four tomates. And just so the small pieces of level land, not large, will also belong to my children. No one is to claim (the parcels) from them, for they are their property.

- And in Tecuitlaapan there are four inherited chinampas of mine, each one of 25 matl. In addition, there are four chinampas there that belonged to the late Francisco Hueliquac, citizen here. I gave him two pesos, four tomates. And I assign and give my inherited chinampas and my purchased land, both of them, to Pedro Icnol, the youngest. No one is to claim it from him.

- And there are eight (chinampas) in Tlacuexchiuhcan, my inherited land, which I assign to and make the property of Agustín Icnol. And the three (chinampas) at the edge of the water there, in the first place where I lived, each one of 20 (units of measure), I say that they are to belong to the two males; they will cultivate two each, if they live. This is all the declaration by me, Pedro Cano Acatl, whose home is here in Santa María Nativitas Tomatla. (Done) before the witnesses Martín Itzcuin; Baltasar Nentlamati; Ana Teicuh, wife of Martín Itzcuin; Agustín Icnol and María Tiacapan, whose father is about to die, and Juan Jaso, topile of the church and sweeper. Also I declare that I have no money at all of the ward heads; no one is to accuse me of anything, etc. (sic). The testament of Pedro Cano Acatl was written today, Sunday, the 7th day of the month of October of the year 1581.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, wrote this testament. And to verify it, I place here my name and signature.

Testament of Miguel Huantli, September 24, 158(?)

As just seen, inherited and purchased land were basic categories in sixteenth-century Culhuacan, but some people also worked land not their own. Miguel has cultivated a chinampa belonging to someone else and considers himself the owner of only the crop. While the chinampa was probably rented, the term used, tepal-tzinco, specifies only that Miguel was able to work the land through the agency of some other person; possibly he merely asked permission to cultivate an unused plot. While some testators were perfectly willing to impose on their relatives, Miguel worries that he has bothered his sister too much. Interestingly, Miguel owns “women’s things” (cihuatlataquith) (likely sewing equipment and cooking pots and utensils). Note also the terminology having to do with tribute: toquauhacallaol “our half-fanega-maize,” and totetlacauhtequiuh “our tribute (duty) as subjects.”

- Know all who see and read this document that I, Miguel Huantli by name, of the ward of Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpañ, even though I am ill, nonetheless my spirit and soul are undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, of one essence and omnipotent. I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. And there is a chinampa that I cleared but which doesn't belong to me; I only cultivated it (with the permission) of someone else. I declare that I give what is planted on the chinampa to Ana Tiacapan, my older sister, and I give her a mantle of mine, a blanket. And in another place there is also (a chinampa) that I sowed in amaranth. It isn't my chinampa either, rather also someone else's. I declare that the amaranth that is sown there belongs to my older sister; she is to take it. No one is to claim it from her; I make it her property.

- And I declare that there is purchased land of mine in Ailtitlan, 20 (units of measure). It was the land of Juan Jaso, who was the son of Tzapotlacatl. I declare that it is to be sold, and with however much the proceeds are in money masses will be said for us. Also in Santiago Tetla there is a field of mine next to the field of Miguel Tilma, whose home is Ollopan, in Temamatlac where Tomás Camaxochitl used to be. And (there is land) in a second place, in Iççotitlan; this land I mention is 40 (units of measure); it is likewise to go with the house and to be sold; it is just to go along with what I mentioned above. And in Tomamatla there are seven (chinampas). All of it is to go with the said house.

- And I declare that I worked a planted field of 60 (units of measure) with seven chinampas. The maize that is planted there is all to be picked, and when it is collected together, from it will be taken our half fanega of maize and the tribute. Let the ward heads not afflict themselves (worry themselves) about it. Let them take it because it is our tribute as subjects. And however much maize is left is to be sold in order to say masses for us. And all of what is our house, all our things that we used, all our woman's things are to be sold and all (the money) will belong to us. And I declare there are six pesos in money with which I was going to help my two children and my late wife; if I had lived longer, I was going to see that a mass was said for them. And now I say, let the executors promptly deliver it, let them go to leave it (in the church) in order that masses be promptly said for my wife and my two sons.

/f. 83v/ Also there are two old boats of mine; the second is narrow; they are to be sold when I have died. Perhaps someone will want to buy them, and with (the money) I will be buried, or candles will be bought. Let my older sister not be bothered over this, for I've bothered her (too much) already.

- And I declare that I have not borrowed anything at all, nor do I owe anything to anyone, and I have no money of the ward, nor anyone's goods. Let no one accuse me of anything afterwards, when I am dead, for I took nothing from anyone. I have ordered my testament in all truth. Thus disposed Miguel Huantli. Testament of Juan Velázquez, February 13, 1581

If Juan's testament were found in isolation, we would think him a relatively poor person. Yet Juan is the husband of Angelina Mocel (Doc. 50), a well-connected noblewoman. Following Juan's testament is an update by the notary of what happened to Juan's relatives, including his father-in-law Pablo Huitznahuatl (Doc. 47), as well as a cross-reference to his wife's will. This is one of several testaments containing references to indigenous musical instruments (Docs. 36, 59).

And I say that 20 (units) are to be sold, and with the proceeds in money masses will be said for me to help my soul. And the other 20 (units) I give to my child Nicolas, if our lord God gives him life. No one is to claim it from him, because it is his property. No one can make objections.

- And also by the house there are five of my chinampas which also will belong to my child if he lives. My child is to keep them forever, and they will be his property; no one is to claim them from him. Also as to the house which faces toward Xochimilco, of one (room), just small, not large, it is to belong to my child if he lives. My wife will be there, but if my child dies, then it is to be sold and (the proceeds) are to belong to him.

- And I declare that I lent money to someone named Bernabé, whose home is Chiqualoapan, in the presence of a person whose home is also there, next to his house, named (Joaquín?). Six pesos are to be requested (of Bernabé), and when it is paid, (the money) is to belong to me. I entrust (the matter to) Francisco, who was the child of Miguel Colhuacaçol, for it was also in his presence that I lent it (to Bernabé). He is to hasten (the collection). Also I lent nine tomines to Antonio Tecmoni to spend on (the following): three tomines for an upright drum, a tomín for a flute, a tomín for a knife, and four tomines he simply borrowed, with which it comes to nine tomines. He is to pay it back, and all of it is to be delivered promptly to the church to help me. And there are some green European trousers (zaraguelles) of mine; it hasn't been long since I bought them. And they are to be exchanged for white cloth, and when I die, my earthly body will be wrapped in it. There is an embroidered cloak of mine which I wore. It is to be sold to buy candles for my burial when I have died. Done before the witnesses Francisco Flores; Pablo de San Gabriel Huitznhuatl; Miguel Josef Cihuatecpotecatl, executor; Angelina Mocel, wife of the invalid about to die; María Salomé, Petronilla Tlaco; Cristina Tlaco, wife /f. 84v/ of Juan Icnol. The will of Juan Velázquez was written today, the 13th day of the month of February of the year 1581.

- And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, wrote it; I verify that he ordered his testament truly. I,

Miguel Jacobo

Testament of Ana Mocel, January 15, 1582

Ana Mocel's estate contains two groups of chinampas in sets of seven. As we have had occasion to mention before, seven seems to have been an "ideal" number of chinampas, turning up numerous times in the wills. For some reason Ana makes most of her bequests to her son-in-law, although it appears that her daughter, his wife, is still alive.

- Know all who see and read this document, my testament, that I, named Ana Mocel, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa Ana Tzapota, even though I am sick, and my body is in very bad health, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit. And I believe all that the Holy Roman Church believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God I make and order (my testament) with my ultimate and final will at the hour of my death, so that no one will violate what I say now when I have died, and it is always to be observed in the future, in the coming time.

- Second (sic) I declare that I leave my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I assign and give to the earth because from earth it came.

- And I declare that the house where I lie, which faces east, I give to my son-in-law Antonio Xallacatl. I assign it to him; no one is to claim it from him. And there are seven chinampas that will go along with it, for they accompany the house I mentioned. And the chinampas I mentioned are next to the former field of the late Miguel Çannen. - Also I declare that in Apilco there are seven chinampas; they are as though in two parts, and together they are seven. I declare they are to be sold when I die, and (the money) will be spent on me for my burial.

- And I declare that the stone lying in various parts of the houselot is to be gathered together, and however much stone is assembled is to be sold. Perhaps with one part I will be aided and masses will be said with it for me. And with the other part I will be buried. If it is necessary to borrow something from someone, it will be paid from all the stone that is lying on the ground.

- And there are three willow trees that are to be sold. They will just be joined with what I mentioned above that is to be sold and (the money) will belong to me. And the old wood (that served as foundation for a building standing in water?) is to be sold and put together with the rest. And the four skeins of yarn and a little dark-colored (yarn) is to be sold. And to my grandchildren Agustín and Juana I give two metates. And the (wooden trough?) that I was making (by means of another person? for another person?) next to the market I leave to my daughter and son-in-law, Antonio Xallacatl. The testament was done and ordered before the witnesses Miguel Rafael Colli, Juan de Santiago, Juan Bautista, Mateo Ilama, Miguel Quechol, Juan Téllez, Julián Baltasar, Gaspar Xochiquiyauh, Melchor Quauhtli, Juana Tiacapan, Magdalena Tiacapan, Juana Tiacapan, Ana Tiacapan, Luisa Tiacapan, Juana Teicuh, María Teicuh, Magdalena Tlaco, /f. 85v/ and also done before Antonio Xallacatl. Today, Sunday at mid-day, the testament was written, on the 14th of January of the year 1582. The deputies Diego Hernández and Miguel Josef heard the statement of the invalid. And I, Miguel Jacobo de Maldonado, notary of the church, wrote the testament of Ana Mocel. Here I place my name and signature.

Document 59*Testament of Andrés de San Miguel, October 20, 1581*

This is the only will from Culhuacan's political subdivision of Tetla, which apparently had its own notary. The document in the collection is only a copy, the original being kept by Andrés's wife. Andrés entrusts his drums to a ward head "for entertaining the public," first extracting some money for masses for himself.

/f. 87r/ Andrés de San Miguel, whose home is Tetla

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true divinity in whom I believe, my name is Andrés de San Miguel, whose home is here in Santiago Tetla, belonging to the ward of Santa Ana Iyauhtenco Tenepantla. I order my testament: know all who see it that no one is to violate what I verify. First I declare:

- Concerning (the land) in Iyauhtenco on which my house is built and (on which I pay tribute), since it is my property on which my house stands, there are 40 (units of measure) of my land that truly belong to me, and I, Andrés, declare that since I have a wife, María, who is raising my child named Francisco, (the land) where the house stands will be the property of my child Francisco, if he lives. But if he dies, since my wife is alive, she knows how to speak for me concerning it. And the land that accompanies my house will be together with the 60 (units of measure of land) in Tlalnexpa; I put it all together if I die, and with this there are 100 (units of measure of land) (written here? registered?).

- And to purify my spirit and soul I, Andrés (de San) Miguel, say that I keep no property of other people nor property of the ward.

- And in Calpoltitlan there is land that I, Andrés de San Miguel, bought. The land is 40 (units of measure long) and cost eight pesos. And I distribute it: 20 are the property of me, Andrés, and 20 I give to my son Mateo Juárez. He is to favor me first with one peso for my aid, since it is his property.

- And as to the log drum and the upright drum, since they are my property, I, Andrés, say that they are for entertaining the public. And I leave and entrust them to Tomás de Aquino, but first they are to favor me with some money, a peso.

- That is all the statement that I, Andrés de San Miguel, make. Done before the witnesses and ward heads, the people of Santiago (Tetla), first Tomás de Aquino Amiztlatoa, Francisco Moysén Quahuitencatl, Gabriel Yaotl, Gabriel Salomé (sic), Mateo Juárez, and also the wife of the person about to die, María Ana.

- The statement of Andrés de San Miguel was done before me, Juan Ceverino, and I wrote his testament, as he made the various orders; he was unconcerned and his spirit was undisturbed and alert; he had not lost judgment. Today, the 20th of the month of October of the year 1581.

This copy was done so that it came out entirely the same as the original; not one word was added to the statement, but it is written exactly the same. And the wife (of the testator), María Ana, whose home is Santiago (Tetla), will keep the original. I wrote it,

Testament of Diego Sánchez, February 17, 1583

Crime and interethnic violence were not unknown in Culhuacan. Diego lies dying in the church's hospital (called by the Spanish loanword) from a knife wound inflicted on him by a black man (Nahuatl: tliltic). Diego is the only testator to show evidence of having been a surrogate father to his younger siblings: "I was as their father and ruled them." To judge from the testaments, this pattern mentioned in the traditional sources either had never been common in Culhuacan or was disappearing in the late sixteenth century. Diego's will is one of the richest in details on land, houses, and the tribute status of property, not to speak of human relations.

/f. 88r/ Diego Sánchez of Santa María Magdalena

- Know all who see and read this document, my testament, that I, named Diego Sánchez, whose home is here in Culhuacan, of the ward of Santa María Magdalena Ci-huatecpan, even though my body is gravely ill, my spirit and soul are sound and not confused. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, who are just one person (sic), omnipotent; and I believe all that our mother, the Holy Roman Church believes. Therefore now I make and order my statement with my last will, already on the verge of my death, in a way that no one is ever to say anything counter to it after my time, when I have died, because what I now order is very true.

- Second (sic) say I, Diego Sánchez, that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Third say I, Diego Sánchez, that my late father made no testament. And now I declare that my younger brothers (and sisters) are deprived; I was as their father and ruled them. Let them not ever dispute over anything when I have died. And I declare that to my younger brother, the youngest, named Baltasar, I assign the patrimonial level land, if he lives; on it he will (pay tribute) and perform all the obligations.

And I declare now that to my three younger sisters, Juana Tiacapan, Agustina Tlaco, and María Xoco, I give the foundation (the stone); the three of them are to share it and distribute it among themselves. I assign it to my younger siblings Gaspar Chichimecatl, Juana Tiacapan, Agustina Tlaco, and María Xoco; they are to distribute it among themselves. The four of them are to share it; they know how they are to divide it among themselves. Let them not ever argue about it.

- And as to the cultivated land in Ocelotepec, 20 (matl) long and five matl wide, next to the field of the late Andrés Tlalhuitoctzin, whose home was Coatlan, my two younger sisters, Juana Tiacapan and Agustina, are to share it; they are to divide it between themselves. No one is to claim it from them.

- And I declare that as to my houselot, also at the entrance, it is six matl toward Mexico City and small in width, perhaps three matl. All that stands there, both houses, were Juan Pérez's. One faces toward Xochimilco and the other toward the east. And one was sold; my late wife sold it for the price of two pesos. And another time it was going to be sold; Pedro Olin was going to buy it. And when they died his debt was one peso, five tomines. And I paid the money, and the house is as if I had bought it again. Now it belongs to me fully again, because I paid for it. And the level land on which (the house) stands (pays tribute). I leave it in the hands of the ward heads. Perhaps they will give it to someone. And its land at the edge of the water, two small (chinampas) will just go along with (the level land). I don't speak concerning it; rather, I renounce it. But the house that I mentioned will belong to me. Whoever should buy it is to be there. Let me be aided quickly before God and masses said for me with (the money).

- And seven chinampas in Tecuitlaapan will also go along with the level land; they will be given to someone. And 20 (units of measure) of cultivated land in Tepetlaixquac will also go with the level land and will be given to someone. And 20 (units) of cultivated land in Santiago Tetla will also go with the cultivated land and will be given to someone.

- And the small house that I already mentioned above, that faces east, will also be sold. And however much the proceeds are in money will be dedicated to Juan Pérez, who was the house owner; with it masses will be said for him. No one is to dispute how I order my statement.

- And as to my houselot that I mentioned above, six matl and its land at the edge of the water, two small and it will be dedicated to me. With however much the money comes to, masses will be said for me. And the seven chinampas next to the field of Juan Pain will also be for me. And the dry land in /f. 89r/ Yahualiuhan, next to the field of Andrés García Xochicatl, will also be dedicated to me. It will be sold in order for masses to be said for me. And all that belongs to my houselot, as far as the boundaries, will be as it is. My younger brother Gaspar Chichimecatl is to take it, and my younger brother is also to take the two small chinampas at the head of the property). No one is to violate the statement that I have made.

- In addition, I declare that where I was married the first time there stands the house of my late wife, in Tlacatecpa, facing Xochimilco. It will also be sold, in order for masses to be said for her with however much the proceeds are. First it will be seen and considered if all three of us, my first wife, and I, and my (present?)
wife can be remembered. No one is to say anything (counter to this).

- And I, Diego Sánchez, say that the person who attacked me was banished; he cut me with a knife (causing injuries) from which I am about to die. (It is not as?) if I had just taken sick, because it is the moment of my death. Nor was it my fault. And now I say, if the black man by whose hand I was wounded by a knife should appear, he is to pay (what it costs) here in the church hospital where I am being treated. And he is to pay the physicians and give them what they should ask. And the money that I borrowed from other people, 10 pesos, all of the debts I owe here and there, will be paid to each one. And I have some goods belonging to others (I have debts). My younger brother knows about it and I entrust it to him. He will give people their property. And in Acatzinco someone named don Gaspar has some paper that he wants to buy. If he buys it, let the proceeds be brought promptly and be given to the widow of Miguel Cerón, for it belongs to her. But if he doesn't (want to buy it), let the paper be brought quickly and given to its owner.

- That is all I say; let all my relatives forgive me and all with whom I have lived and those through whom I became learned, the church attendants. Let them not forget me before God, etc. (sic). Done before those who heard the statement of the invalid Diego Sánchez: Mi-

Document 61*Municipal Document: The Preservation of Wills, June 29, 1585*

Although the person writing testaments in Culhuacan was often entitled “notary of the church,” preservation of the book of testaments was under municipal jurisdiction. The notary Miguel Jacobo “hid many testaments that the dead ordered,” and so the book was taken away from him. His lapse in ethics had no long-term effects on his career (cf. Doc. 83).

Document 62*Statement of Ana Tiacapan, January 10, 1588*

Ana did not make a formal will, but this short declaration, apparently written down posthumously, served as one. Through it, she notifies the ward heads about her seemingly straightforward bequest to her son, indicating their interest in property division.

/f. 90v/ - Here is the statement that Ana Tiacapan, whose home is Santa Cruz, made; as to what was ordered she said: the house of mine (with a flat roof?) I give to my child named Simón Vázquez; I assign him everything, as he already knows, with all the chinampas, the 10 chinampas that I bought, each one of 20 (units of measure), that were the field of Andrés Tlahuitec. The late Lorenzo Xiuitemal sold them. No one is to dispute it with him, for I give them to my child and I notify the ward heads who were the witnesses who heard the statement of the invalid: first the person named Pedro Elías Atzaqualcatl; Alonso Tezcacoacatl; Pablo Huecamecatl; Francisco Vázquez; Felipe Icnol, topile; and the child of the invalid, named Simón Vázquez. We the executors heard the declaration, today, the 10th day of January of the year 158(8?).

- Wednesday the 13th of January of the year 1588 a mass was said for Ana Tiacapan, named above; the money was given to our father vicar fray Sebastián, who said the mass.

Document 63*Testament of don Pedro de Suero, January 8, 1572*

Except for a fragment (Doc. 13A), this is the only testament in the Culhuacan collection issued by a man with the Spanish noble title "don" (though usage among Indians of Culhuacan seems not to have settled down entirely by 1580); don Pedro here is referred to in the body of the testament without his title, and the same vacillation is seen in the case of the alcalde (don) Francisco Flores. The present testator is also the only one referred to anywhere in the corpus as tlatoani (see Doc. 49). Don Pedro has married within his class: his present wife is a doña, and his first wife, though without that title, is nevertheless referred to as a noblewoman (cihuapilli). As with the other titled testator, doña María Juárez (Doc. 71), don Pedro bequeaths no residence, but has extensive lands. The unit of measure for don Pedro's land is the quahuitl rather than the more common matl; however, the quahuitl is used in another testament (Doc. 78).

let him favor it. Though my body is ill, nonetheless my will and memory are alert and I have not yet lost the judgment to make my testament, I, Pedro de Suero, whose home is here in Ayahualolco. Know all who see this document that I begin (to manifest) my property. In Teccizco there is a field of mine, of chinampas, 20 (units of measure) wide and 300 long. And I gave 40 (in width?) to my niece Ana Teicuhcho, wife of (Pedro Huilocpal, who was...? the late Pedro Huilocpal Y...omome?). This [remaining?] 20 will be for the noblewoman doña María Teicuh. And concerning what was the inheritance of my first wife Luisa, (land) 100 (units of measure) long and 20 wide, in the place named Çoquiac, Antonio Temaçatzin is to take 20 next to the (people of Atenhuacan? inhabitants of the shore?), and my wife doña María is to take the 80 (remaining). And in Petlacontitlan there are 10 chinampas. They will be for the noblewoman, my wife; and in Tlamaztonco there are 13 chinampas that will belong to my wife, doña María. And I give the six chinampas in Atotolco, each one 20 (units of measure) in length, to my younger brother Josef de San Marcos. And as to the cultivated land in Tlatepotzco that was 160 (units of measure) long and 20 wide, with 40 I paid a debt here in Tapalcatlalpan (land of Tapalco), and 40 I gave to Diego Mochihihua, and the 80 that remain will belong to the noblewoman, my wife. It is (the part) toward Ailtitlan. And in Tlapilocan there are 200 (units of measure of land) in length, and 20 in width that were the inheritance of both of us, Luisa Xoco, who was my wife, and me. This (land) will be for the noblewoman doña (María), my wife. And in Tomatla there is (land) 80 (units of measure) in length and 20 in width at the beginning, but just eight quahuitl in width at the other end. It will be for the noblewoman my wife, doña María. And in Tlatepotzco, in Xalpan, there is a pointed field that is eight quahuitl at one end and just one quahuitl wide at the other, and is 160 in length. This will belong to my wife, doña María. And in Tapalcatlalpan (land of Tapalco) there is (land) 24 quahuitl in width, next (to the field of) Juan Quenitoloc, that is mentioned in a legal order and judgement (that were awarded to me). /f. 91v/ All of it will belong to my wife, doña María. That is all my property; and there are 40 more (units of measure) of land in Ayahualocan, which was the land of the noblewoman, my late wife, Luisa. (The land) is in Chalcocalcan where Miguel Acyehuatl used to be, and it will belong to my wife, doña María. María lacks any noble titles, but she has considerable property and good connections, and she seems to live in a tecpancalli or palace. She is attempting to guarantee her children's right to live there, but expects them to "keep it swept and attend to the public there." She has land that the judge, Juan de los Angeles, gave her; this same judge also acted in a case concerning doña María Juárez (Doc. 71). Note that María thought nothing of giving two of her daughters the same first name, Magdalena, apparently in honor of the district.

torn down, and the stone will be sold in order for masses to be said for me.

- And my children will divide the firewood (from the house); the first, named Magdalena Francisca, is to take five (piles of) firewood; the second, named Magdalena Xoco, is to take five (piles of) firewood; the third, named Juana Verónica, is to take five (piles of) wood.

- And Juana Moysén, the mother-in-law of the governor, is to take two (piles of) firewood; and Juana Moy-sén will take a square wooden pillar.

- And Juana Tiacapan, cihuatepixqui, is to take a wood column valued at three (tomines).

- And the other firewood remaining and a lintel of a door I give to my grandchildren. They will burn it here.

- And the two (foundation walls?) (of the house) are to be sold.

- And in Cueptecco there are 15 inherited chinampas of mine that the judge, Juan de los Angeles, gave me. They are to be sold, and with the proceeds masses will be said for me.

- And I give all the chinampas that are in Tlamazonco to Juan de San Pablo. And my (great grandchildren?) are to take their tender maize from there. I give all of it, on both sides of the canal, to (Juan de San Pablo).

- And in Acatzintitlan there are four chinampas, each one 40 (units of measure) long, and two small ones, which my child's parent-in-law Agustín Teixpan and his wife Luisa Tiacapan bought. They gave me two pesos that I spent on the house.

- And in Tlalachco I give the 40 (units of measure of land) that accompany the house to my children. They are to divide it; Magdalena Francisca will take 20 and Magdalena (sic) Xoco will also take 20. Perhaps my children will do me some little favor (in the way of masses); they know (what they will do).

- And of the six long narrow fields I give three to my grandchild Juana Verónica. No one is to claim them from her nor argue about them with her, because I make them her property.

- And the (other) three (fields) I give to Juana Moysén; no one is to claim them from her nor argue about them with her, because I make them her property.

/f. 93v/ - And in Ailtitlan there is patrimonial land, my inheritance, 140 (units of measure) long and only 10 matl wide. Forty were sold for four pesos; Francisco Flores (offered?) the money, and I spent it to roof the house and to buy (foundation stone?) and firewood and reeds to spread (on the roof?); all of it was spent on the house and none of it was used for me (personally).

- And I give 40 (units of measure) to my daughter Magdalena Francisca; it is together with the 70 matl (which I place around it?). No one is to violate it nor destroy it for my daughter Magdalena Francisca and her husband Francisco Flores.

- And (the land) in Huixachtlan, 30 matl in length and 20 in width, I give to my children; to the first, named Magdalena Francisca, wife of Francisco Flores, I give 10 matl; to the second, named Magdalena Xoco, wife of Juan Melchor, I give 10 matl.

- To the third, named Juana Verónica, wife of Juan Agustín, I give 10 matl, with which it comes to 30. No one is to violate it.

- And in Ayauhtonco I give 20 (units of measure of land) to the girl Agustina, who was the child of Chimalquauh. And all the magueys that are there will be sold, and with the proceeds masses will be said for me. And to my grandchild Juana Verónica I give 30 matl, and to Juan de San Pablo I give 30 matl, with which it comes to 80 (matl). No one is to violate it, because I make it their property.

- And I give the five chinampas in Quauhtenanco to Magdalena Xoco, wife of Juan Melchor.

- And the house which has just been roofed will be for the public because it is the tecpancalli (palace), but despite its being public, it is the home of all my children and grandchildren. It will be as it has been; they are to keep it swept and attend to the public there.

- And as to the house that faces toward Xochimilco that those who died left, my younger sister named Francisca (and others), all of it is to be sold, the stone, the kindling wood, the wood columns, and with the proceeds in money masses will be said for us.

- And to the child Agustina I give the stone that lies next to the house. She is to take two matl; it belongs to her.

- And concerning Baltasar Tomeca and Francisco Huitlallocatzintli, the two can make no further objections, because they took their inheritance; they cannot claim more.

/f. 94r/ - This is all the statement of the invalid. The testament was done before the witnesses Juan de San Pablo and Juan Agustín, church attendant; the women: Juana Moysén, mother-in-law of the gobernador; Magdalena Francisca, wife of Francisco Flores; Magdalena Xoco, wife of Juan Melchor; Juana Verónica, wife of Juan Agustín; María, wife of Juan de San Pablo; Juana Tiacapan, cihuatepixqui; Luisa Tiacapan, wife of Agustín Teixpan; and the executor Francisco Vázquez. Testament of Joaquín Matlalaca, November 30, 1585

Joaquín owns both purchased land and a purchased house in addition to property inherited from his father. He has possession of the house, but has not yet paid the full purchase price. His ordering that the price be paid is an attempt to insure that his son's inheritance is not endangered. Note the graphic passage on the physical dangers of debt collection in sixteenth-century Culhuacan.

/f. 94v/ Joaquín Matlalaca of Santa María Asunción
Amantlan

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, I begin my testament. I am named Joaquín Matlalacan, my home being here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa María Asunción Atotolco (sic). First I place my spirit and soul in the hands of God our lord to order my testament such that no one violates my statement that I am going to make regarding how I redeem myself before God our lord.

- First I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from the earth it came.

- Second say I, Joaquín Matlalaca, that a person named Gerónimo, whose home is San Mateo Tlalxopan, has four pesos of my money. Let the executors ask him for them in order that masses be said for me; many times I asked him for them, but he almost killed me over them.

If God had given me health, I would have complained (in court). But I leave it to the executors to ask for (the money), with which my soul will be aided.

- And I declare that I have a purchased house of three parts; one faces toward Xochimilco, the second faces east, and the third faces west. I give it to my child Sebastián. It will belong to him if God our lord gives him life (if he lives). I have the bill of payment to verify that it is my purchased house. And a fourth room is just an old building; it stands at the side of the road attached to the part that faces east. All of it will belong to my child Sebastián. Four tomines are still lacking to complete the price; it is to be paid. And my child is to take all its land at the edge of the water that surrounds it. And my father gave me 10 chinampas that are in Quaxochco Petlacontitan. And there are seven chinampas, my fields and my property, next to the field of the late Juan Malcoch. I give it all to my child. And I give my purchased land that was the field of don Juan Aguilar, there above in Ocotilan, 40 (units of measure), to my child Sebastián. (It is there above along with the purchased land of my mother?) And there are 20 (units of measure of land) next to Tlatlauhquitepetl (Red Mountain) that my late father gave us. My younger brother Nicolás shared (the land with me). Now he has died; I give 10 matl to my younger brother Marcos, and my child Sebastián is to take the other 10 matl. They are to share it. And in Yahualiuhan there are 40 (units of measure of land) that our late father gave us. My younger brother Marcos is to take 20, and my child Sebastián is to take 20. My child will take the part toward Coyoacan. That is all I say; let no one violate my statement when I have died. And perhaps I will remember something more that I forgot; I will ask the executors. The testament was done before the witnesses Miguel Téllez Pochtecatl (or merchant), Miguel Ahuatecatl, Luis Pérez, and the women: Cristina, cihuatepixqui; Juana Teicuh, mother of the invalid; and Magdalena Tiacapan, wife of the invalid. (Done) before the executors, who heard it, /f. 95r/ Francisco Vázquez and Miguel Josef. Actions have consequences. María orders all of her considerable property sold for masses, despite her having children and grandchildren as possible heirs. "No one cared for me during my illness . . . because if they had cared for me, I would have given them something." Though the widow of a man with the title don, María does not use the corresponding title doña.

/f. 96r/ María Teicuh, widow of don Juan García, of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac

- Know all who see and read this document that I, María Teicuh, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, of the ward of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are sound and undisturbed. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true omnipotent God in whom I believe. And I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. For this reason now with invocation and supplication of (God) I make and order my testament; what I now order is with my ultimate and final will.

- First I say that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and redeemed it with his precious blood here on earth. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came. And I declare that there is a house of mine that faces west and one that faces toward Xochimilco, just attached to (the first). And truly it is (the result of) my work, and we built it after (marrying), I and my late husband, don Juan García. All that is in our house I declare is to be sold, and whatever the proceeds come to will be delivered to the church; with it masses will be said for both of us, my late husband and myself, and (also) for my first husband, now deceased. And the ward heads here are to take (the house) and it will be given to them. And all the chinampas are to be sold, and the (money) will belong to us in order for masses to be said for us. And I declare there is a field in Santiago (Tetla) of 220 (units of measure). Let it be sold quickly, since my late husband don Juan García left it to me, and with the proceeds of the field let masses be said promptly for us, my late husband don Juan García and me, when I have died. Also I declare there is a field in San Lorenzo (Tetzonco?) that my husband left me. He put it in his testament, and I merely confirm the testament; the field is 60 (units of measure). I say that it will belong to the church; when I have died, let it be sold promptly, and with however much the proceeds are of the field, masses will be said for us, my late husband don Juan García and me. And I also declare that in Huixachtlan there is a field that (my husband) put in the testament; perhaps someone wants to buy the field, and with however much the proceeds are masses will be said for us two, my late husband don Juan García and me. In addition I declare that in Tocititlan 40 (units of measure of land) are to be sold in order to say masses for us. Also I declare that in Tlalachco there are fields, in one place next to the road and in the other place (toward Nextlatltiltan?); all of this is to be sold and will belong to the church to say masses for my late husband don Juan García and me. And the reason I assign everything to the church is that no one cared for me during my illness, neither my children nor my grandchildren, nor anyone, for if they had cared for me I would have given them something. Let no one claim anything that my late husband said at death; my children already have what belongs to them.

- Also there are two chests of ours and one (piece of cloth) that is marketable, and 160 (skeins of cotton? sheep?), and two painted tecomes, and a mantle, and eight poles, nine boards, two wooden pillars, five reed seats, five (stones for grinding?), a metate (that one presses down on?), four tecomes and ten shingles. What I have mentioned is all to be sold in order for masses to be said for us, my late husband don Juan García and me; no one is to violate my statement. The testament was done before the witnesses: Miguel Josef, deputy, Francisco Vázquez, deputy, and the ward heads Miguel Téllez Pochtecatl (or merchant), Pedro Moysén Tezcacoatl, Mateo Juárez Tllancalqui, Miguel Hernández?, topile of tribute, and Pedro Chapol. The women: Juana Xoco, Juana María. Today, Saturday, the 18th of July of the year 1586.

This fragment of Miguel's statement lacks all the usual formalities of a testament, possibly because he died before he could make one. What we have here appears to be a partial reconstruction of his verbatim statement, directly addressing the people at his deathbed. As such it may bring us closer than other wills to the actual scene. Miguel's most interesting possessions are a minor book of hours and two books of doctrine. The only other testator to own books is the notary Miguel García (Doc. 31). Like the notary, Miguel Oçoma sets aside food to be eaten on the occasion of his funeral.

- Here is the statement of Miguel Oçoma, whose home is San Francisco Atempan; as he gave orders when he was ill, he said:

Draw close, my lords, you, Miguel Iuhcatlatzin and you, Miguel Coatequitzin, I instruct you, if I die tomorrow or the next day, to speak promptly on behalf of my soul. I declare I have in keeping two pesos in money, and when I have died, let me be buried with it, and with what should be left, a mass is to be said for me. And I say that there is a granary full of unshelled maize; two parts will be sold and with this a mass is to be said for me, and the other two parts I give to my child Juan. It will be used for him. And the beans that are in the pots are to be sold. However much money results will be gathered together and with it a mass will be said for me. This is all that I say concerning myself. And a pot of shelled maize will be eaten by those who will bury me, and they will taste the beans in the little pot when I die. And you, Miguel Coatequitzin, I beseech you; my child

Document 71*Testament of doña María Juárez, April 17, 1577*

Doña María's will is one of the most important of the collection. She is the only woman of the testators to use the Spanish noble title doña. She holds "woman land" (cihuatlalli), a standard category of unknown significance, though possibly a type of dowry land; has involvement with the tecpan's lands; prohibits Spaniards from buying her land; and sets up the rental of some of her land to give continuous income for masses. This last parcel is mentioned in Juan Rafael Tlacochealcatl's will (Doc. 42). Note the spelling tlahxillacalli for tlaxilacalli, "ward"; the h betrays the presence of a glottal stop in the first syllable, which possibly can help in analyzing the constituents, origin, and true meaning of this important and still puzzling term. The h also appears here once in the related word for ward heads or ward people, confirming that it is no scribal error. The debt owed to Diego Ramírez, the famous inspector of encomiendas for viceroy don Luis de Velasco, was surely not a new one, for Ramírez died in 1555, 22 years before this testament (Epistolario de Nueva España [México, 1940], 8:28).

place my soul entirely in (God's) hands, because it is his image and his creation. May he come to take it and have mercy on it, and may he pardon me all the sins with which I have offended him. Here is what I guard on earth for our lord God (i.e., my property).

- First, concerning my two children, I declare that Juan Juárez has always been looking about and has not come to settle down anywhere; and the other, doña Ana Cihuanequi, is sick; but I have not taken from them all their inheritance which belongs to them, that the lord don Andrés Juárez, my lord (husband) and their father gave to them. If anyone is disturbed by the testament that I executed first, everything is my property and inheritance and belongs to me. And now again (I order concerning?) the tecpancalli (palace); it is to be as in the testament, with all the house chinampas of the tecpan, and the fields in Tlalachco, and the chinampas here in Quauhtenanco and in Amaxac, and the "woman land" in Huixachtlan, and the other (land) in Huixachtlan (which extend into?) Ocelotepec, and the (wet sandy land?) in Coatlan next to the field of don Juan Téllez (Document 13, 13A), who sows his part of it, and cultivated land in Tomatla, and the other lands in Tociçolco; all will go along with the tecpancalli.

- And as to my two older sisters, Ana Teicuh, widow of (Gerónimo? Hernando?), and Magdalena Tiacapan, wife of Pedro de la Cruz, I declare that I give each one 40 (units of measure) of land in Tociçolco. And this land I am giving them is my property and my inheritance as is written in the testament.

- Third, as to the house chinampas of the tecpan in Çacapan that the judge Juan de los Angeles declared to be its house chinampas, there are 20 of them, each one 20 (units of measure) long. I have divided them; 10 of them I alienated, as all the ward heads of Santa Ana Cal(tenco) know, and the other 10 still belong to me, for they are my property and my inheritance.

/f. 98v/ - Fourth, I mention again the piece (of land) in Tomatla. All the chinampas are to be sold in order to pay the 15 pesos which belong to Diego Ramírez, the inspector. And since he has disappeared, I order that the money be delivered to the church in order to acquire and buy things for the church. And if any money is left over, it is to be given to the poor and to the hospital to cure the sick. And if it is not possible to give it to them, it is all to be delivered to the church to say masses for us. And Spaniards are not to buy these chinampas that I have mentioned, but only the citizens here.

- Fifth, I declare that that my field in Coatlan, with

- Sixth, I declare that my field in Tlallachco is not to be sold, but is just to be rented out each year, and with the money that is acquired there masses are to be said for us.
This is all the land with which our souls will be helped.
I mention, appoint, and request two people to speak for us, the executors Miguel García, (notary of the) church (Document 31), and Martín Lázaro, deputy. If they die, new people are to be named to take care of it. This is the entire declaration of me, doña María Juárez, invalid,

Receipt of funds at the church, April 20, 1586

Generally, as has already been seen in this volume, the friars of the Augustinian monastery themselves wrote brief receipts in Spanish for money received in connection with testaments for the purpose of saying masses. In the present cases the process is seen from the other side. The fiscal, the highest Indian religious official, and the deputies (diputados), the same officials elsewhere called executors (albaceas), are recorded in Nahuatl entries as overseeing the transfer of funds to the Spanish prior of the monastery.

Testament of Agustín Tepanecatl, June 23, 1589

Culhuacan testators sometimes worried about their tribute obligations. Here, Agustín gives his children some land so that “they will produce its tribute when I have died, the tribute of the dead.” By “tribute of the dead” Agustín apparently simply means the tax on the land still owing from the time when he has had it. As to the writing of the will, this one is one of the poorest performances by a notary. The writer signs himself Juan Bautista, but his hand and style are completely different from the Juan Bautista who wrote other wills (Docs. 64, 65, 67, 71, 74, 78). The frequent omission and intrusion of letters and the use of final s instead of z are characteristics looking ahead to a later time.

In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, know all who see and read my testament with which I redeem myself before God our lord that no one is to violate my statement if I die. Let God our lord come to take my spirit and soul, for he is its redeemer. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came. (Know) that I am Agustín Tepanecatl, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa Ana Aticpac. Now I order my testament so that no one will violate my statement.

- First, I declare that the house where I lie is to be as it is. It is not to be sold but just to be there, and all that is in the house will be there. And my children will work with it. Let the statement of me, Agustín Tepanecatl, not be violated.

Testament of Juana Martina, December 20, 1587

Juana Martina, like many testators, owns a religious object, a crucifix, which she wants kept in her ward's chapel in exchange for a tomín from the ward heads. She additionally assigns some land to her ward chapel, but wants to be buried at the "great church of San Juan Evangelista." The notary shows his apparent lack of grasp of the initial formulas.

my late mother-in-law, my late child and me.

- And there are seven chinampas next to the chinampas of Andrés Vázquez; the chinampas are in Acatzintilan. And in Santiago (Tetla) there are fields, each of which is 20 (units of measure long), first next to the field of the late Pedro Yaotl, and second next to the field of the late Miguel Ocelotl. And in Huixachtlan there (is land) next to the field of Juan Nentlamati (measuring) 20 (units). All of this which I have mentioned accompanies the house.

- And as to the metates, one is to be sold and the proceeds spent on me, and one I give to my younger sister Martina María; she is to take the metate. And the bed I give to my son Matías Pedro and his wife named Inés, and they are to favor me with a tomín. And I have a crucifix; it is to be kept in the home (chapel, church) of our mother Santa María Magdalena, and the ward heads are also to favor me with a tomin (for the crucifix). And I give a tecolate of mine to Matías Pedro.

- And nine tecolotes of mine are to be sold and the proceeds will be given to the church attendants to aid me. And the level land that is at the entrance of Miguel Josef, deputy, I assign to (the church of) ou mother Santa María Magdalena. And I sold the three small chinampas that belong to (the land), each one of just eight matl, to Miguel Josef, deputy. He gave me one peso that was spent on me wherefore I am explaining it. That is all I say; let no one accuse me of anything after I am dead. I keep nothing that belongs to anyone (else). (Done) before the witnesses Juan de Santiago Tixpallotl, Matías Pedro, Gaspar Melchor, Miguel Josef; the women: Juana Tiacapan, cihuatepixqui; Martina María; María Ana, wife of Juan Núñez; Inés, wife of Gaspar Melchor. /f. 100v/ Today, Monday (at nightfall?) the testament was done, the 20th of December of the year 1587.

Miguel Josef, deputy. Agustín Vázquez, deputy.
Gabriel Maldonado, fiscal.

Before me, Juan Bautista, notary.

/f. 100v/ I, fray Sebastián de Castro, say that in compliance with this testament three masses have been said for this deceased, and they gave three pesos toward the alms.

Document 75*Testament Fragment of Gregorio de San Agustín, n.d.*

Although the vast majority of bequests in the Culhuacan testaments are to close relatives, some are of a charitable nature. The recipients of Gregorio's broken-bottomed boat are Juan Pobre and Domingo Pobre. Their surname is the Spanish loanword "poor," and possibly they were in fact paupers. The phrase teopan nemi which is applied to them is, however, ambiguous. It might mean that they live at the church (gratis), but the more frequent meaning would be that they are occupied at the church in various tasks, possibly for pay.

/f. 101r/ Gregorio de San Agustín of Santa María Asun-ción Tzaqualco

- In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, know all who see my testament that I, Gregorio de San Agustín, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista (Culhuacan), belonging to the ward of Santa María A-sunción Tzaqualco, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul are healthy and undisturbed; and I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe; and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Therefore now with invocation and supplication of God our lord, I make and order my testament.

- First I declare that I place my spirit and soul entirely in the hands of God our lord, because he made it and it is in his image. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- First (sic) I say that six pesos of mine in money will belong to me. And with four pesos in money belonging to my late wife, masses will be said for her. And there is a chinampa in Acpac that I give to my brother-in-law, Tomás, and one I give to Bernardino Jurado, and ... (sic)

- And we will be aided with (the proceeds from) three boats and four poles and nine piles of wood; all of it will be spent on us. And concerning the storeroom, my older sister Magdalena, citizen of Atotolco, is to take (one measure of wood from it), and my nephew named Diego, son of Juan, is to take (one measure).

- And there are some chinampas in Santa Ana Tepane-capan; all of them will belong to me. And as to the two houses that face toward Xochimilco, they belong to my younger sister Juana. And in San Lorenzo there is a field of mine 40 (units of measure) long and 20 wide; now I give it to Agustín Vázquez, fiscal. And there are five chinampas in Apilco, each one 50 matl long; I give them to my younger sister Juana. And there are chinampas (next to the house? in Caltenco?) over which a suit was brought: I gave four of them /f. 101v/ to my brother-in-law named Tomás, and I sold two chinampas

/f. 102r/ - Here in the city of Culhuacan, the 5th day of the month of January of the year 1588, I, Agustín Vázquez, fiscal here in the said city, set down and manifest concerning Ana Xoco, deceased, whose home was Santa María Magdalena Cihuatecpán Tezcacoac, the property she left: her maize, which was measured at six fanegas and a half, and all her various things were sold, a huipil (in two parts?), a small chest, a metate, and a hoe. All of her goods were sold and the money came to six pesos, with which masses will be said for her, Ana Xoco. Therefore here I manifest it. She left no children and did not make a will; she just died. In order that no one should become confused, here a bill of payment is issued for them. In order to verify it, I place here my name and signature with the executors; the witnesses do not know how to write, for which reason they do not set down their signatures in their own hands. The first, Francisco Huitziltecatl; Gregorio Moysén; Luis Pérez; Guillermo de San Martín, topile; Pedro Chapol; Juan Agustín, church attendant; Juan Xalli; Agustín Teixpan; Miguel Tetzcaloa; the women: Juana Tecuhcho, wife of Miguel Tetzcaloa; Luisa, wife of Agustín Teixpan, etc. (sic).

Fragment of a Spanish Annotation by fray Agustín Farfán, September, 158(0?8?)

This fragment of a Spanish friar's standard receipt of money is almost useless, but since fray Agustín Farfán, noted author of three medical texts, signed it, it does indicate his presence in Culhuacan in the 1580s (the paleography is unclear and could be read 1580 or 1588, although since the surrounding documents are from 1588, the latter seems more likely).

Testament Fragment of Bernardino Vázquez, 1588

Bernardino was part of a prominent Culhuacan family, being the nephew of Pablo Huitzahuatl (Doc. 47), and here he speaks of business transactions with a rich kinsman, Juan de San Miguel. Many wealthy Culhuacan citizens were selling land both to other Indians and to Spaniards in the late sixteenth century.

- And I declare that I bought a field from Juan de San Miguel, 40 (units of measure), as Pedro de San Nicolás knows, in Teçoncalticpac. It is to be sold and the (mo ney) will belong to me.

- I declare that there is a house of mine facing west.
Here my wife is to govern my children, the first of whom is named Juan and the second Agustín, for it is their home. And as to the (storeroom, office) where I sleep, I make it the special property of my child Juan; I give it to him. And the houselot here is 45 (units of measure) wide toward Mexico City, counted as far as where it reached the edge of the water; and toward Coyoacan it just extends up to where my younger siblings exit (or where their land ends?), and on the far side, the land here which extends up to where the old road used to be belongs to my younger siblings.

- And I declare that the upper house, only what stands above, is to be sold and is to belong to me; let it be sold promptly.

- And one chest of mine I give to my child Juan, and another of my chests I give to my wife named María.

/f. 103v/ - And I declare that I am placing together all that is inside the house, my bed, all my planks and the piles of firewood, my painted tecomes, and all (the odds and ends lying about?); all of it is to belong to my wife, who will keep it for my children, since it is their property.

- And I declare that there are chinampas of mine in To nalecan, next to the level land; in width, toward Mexico City, it measures 45 (units of measure) and toward Co yoacan 55, and it begins where the entrance of Quau hnelhuatzin was. I say that I also leave it to my wife along with my children, for it is their property.

- Here is what I explain so that God our lord doesn't punish me: there is a chinampa that follows the border of the canal, as Hernando Juárez knows, and the child (of the owners), an unmarried young woman, lives in Mexico City, and it is her property. This said chinampa is also in the place I mentioned above.

- And in Coltonco there are uncounted (not divided into discrete units?) chinampas; they measure 44 quahuitl toward Coyoacan and in width, toward Xochimilco, 42 quahuitl. And I divide it into two equal parts: 20 I give to my child Juan and make his property. And the other 20 I give to my child Agustín. My wife is to keep it for them for now.

- And there are (chinampas) . . .

Document 79*Testament of María Inés, February 23, 1589*

María Inés seemingly has a modest estate, but she is the aunt of the wealthy Culhuacan noblewoman, doña Elena Constantina. In fact, doña Elena owes money to María Inés, who now expects the still unpaid sum to go toward masses for her own soul. María Inés apparently has no husband or children, and leaves her house to the ward heads, "for it is their patrimonial home."

/f. 104v/ María Inés of Santa Ana Tzapota

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, the heavenly lady Holy Mary, eternally true virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, María Inés, whose home is here in Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa Ana Tzapota, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit, soul, and memory are undisturbed and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, (of just one?) essence, and I believe all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Thus I order my testament so that no one will violate my final will.

- First, I declare that I entirely deliver and give my spirit and soul into the hands of God our lord; I give it to him, because he came to redeem it with his precious blood here on earth. May he deign to come take my soul. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came. And when I die, it will be buried inside the church; an offering will be made.

- Second, I declare that my niece, doña Elena Constantina, wife of Juan de San Miguel, has a peso of my money. When I have died, a mass will be said for me with it. No one is ever to make objections (without reason?) (about the fact that) I leave my house to the ward heads, citizens of Santa Ana, for it is their patrimonial home. Through their agency I will have enough. They are to aid me with all my goods; I leave it entirely to them.

- Third, I declare that I sold cultivated land of mine in Tocitilan (to Omaca?), and with the proceeds from the land masses will be said for me. And those who care for my soul know about (are entrusted with) all my goods; the ward heads and citizens that I mentioned are also to do it.

- This is all of my statement; no one is to violate it. Testament of Diego Hernández, December 29, 1589

One of Diego Hernández's possessions is a "woman house" (cihuacalli). Spanish translations of the colonial period occasionally render the word as cocina, and some scholars have suggested that it denotes a common or family room where various household tasks were accomplished, but in truth we have very little specific information on what a cihuacalli really was. Since Diego, as well as other men (Doc. 47), owns one, it is clear, however, that it was not necessarily a house owned by a woman. It is true that he leaves it to a woman, his wife, giving the rest of his house to his son. Another term of unknown significance is "Mexica land" (mexicatlalli). In the present collection, only one other testator mentions this category (Doc. 26), but it does turn up in other local-level Nahuatl documentation for the nearby town of Xochimilco (AGN Vínculos 279-1-82v, 86v). Though Diego Hernández has the same name as a Culhuacan notary, it cannot be established that the testator is the notary.

/f. 105r/ Diego Hernández of San Bartolomé Xalatenco

- In the name of our lord Jesus Christ and of his precious mother, Holy Mary, eternally true virgin, know all who see and read this document that I, Diego Hernández, whose home is here in Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of San Bartolomé Xalatenco, even though I am sick, nonetheless my spirit and soul, my memory and understanding are undisturbed and healthy. And I truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, Father, Son, and God the Holy Spirit, and all that the Holy Church of Rome believes. Thus I make my testament and final will; no one is to dispute my statement.

- First, I declare that I deliver and give my spirit and soul entirely into the hands of God our lord, because he came to redeem it with his precious blood here on earth; may he deign to come take my soul. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came. And when I die, I will be buried inside the church of San Juan (Evangelista); an offering will be made.

- Second, I declare that as to a house of mine which faces east, a "woman's house" of one unit, with a portal, I give it to my legitimate wife named Juana María, with 20 (units of measure) of cultivated land of mine in the place named Tochihuic. No one is to claim it from her; I make it entirely her property.

- Third, I declare that I give to my child named Juan Melchor my new house of three parts that faces west, with its level land 10 matl in width. And as to the land at the edge of the water which is 60 (units of measure) long toward Xochimilco, seven (chinampas) of "Mexica land" in a separate place, each one 20 (units), and a chinampa of mine in a separate place, next to the level land, 40 (units) long, next to the field of Juan Tlacatecuhtli, and three chinampas of mine in another place, called Tolman, each one 60 (units) long toward the people of Mexicatzinco, with level land that adjoins it, I give all of it to my child Juan Melchor. And I declare that in a separate place there are two chinampas of mine at the entrance of my younger brother Luis Hernández, each one 40 (units) long. And there are 20 (units) of dry land of mine in the place named Chalcocalcan Yahualiuhan; the field borders with that of Juan Tlacatecuhtli. And in another place, also in Yahualiuhan, there are 20 (units of measure of land), also bordering fields of Juan Tlacatecuhtli, and here in Ocotilan (at the edge of the ravine? in Atlauhtenco?) behind the (green?) mountain, there is patrimonial land of 25 (units). And I give it to my child Juan Melchor. And in Santiago Tetla there is a field of mine, of 20 (units), in the place called Tecaxic. And in a second place, named Teçontitlan, from where stones are taken, there are 20 (units of land), and both (pieces of land) I give to my child Juan Melchor. And a granary made of planks I give to my child. And I declare that I bought the house facing east that used to be Pedro Cuezon's. I gave my money to his wife, named Magdalena, who lives in Tecuhtollan; recently I gave her three (more?) pesos. But now I don't want to buy it; let her return my money to me. It is to be given to my child Juan Melchor.

/f. 105v/ - And I declare that Andrés Itzcuin bought from Gerónimo Xochicol a house that was his, and he gave him three pesos with which masses were said, and I was (present?) as a witness.

- And I declare that in the place named Xallatenco the house of Tomás Amin stands; it is to be sold and with (the money) masses are to be said for him. Let it be sold promptly. That is all I say, before the witnesses who heard it: Juan Tlacatecuhtli, Francisco Moysén, Andrés Itzcuin, Simón Pedro, Miguel Juan, Jacobo de San Bartolomé, topile, and the wife of Diego Hernández, Magdalena María, and Martina Ana, widow. Today, Saturday, the 29th of December of the year 1589.

Before us: Miguel Josef, deputy. Marcos Jorge, notary public.

In the Culhuacan wills, testators often refer to legal documents and court judgments to bolster claims of ownership. Since Miguel's residence is a purchased house, he is careful to point out that "we bought it and there is a judgment about how (the purchase) is valid." Much Spanish terminology is used in such cases, here compañía, "company, formal partnership"; concierto, "(notarized) agreement"; sentencia, "judgment." Miguel may have been executor of testaments or deputy in the past. There is still an outstanding (and confusing) matter concerning a man's shirt (camixatli) left by a dying woman to be sold for masses. Miguel gave the shirt to someone who wore it out before dying in turn. In Miguel's view, the man's heirs should now pay for the shirt, but the heirs seem to say that they had lent the woman's family money before her death, that the shirt was in return for it, and that that sum (probably long since spent) should be used for any masses said.

/f. 106r/- Know all who see and read this document that I, Miguel Hernández, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santa María Magdalena Tezcacoac, truly believe in the Most Holy Trinity, God the father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, and all that our mother, the Holy Church of Rome, believes. I have not lost my judgment, so that of my own will I make my testament in a way that no one is to violate my statement and it will be true forever.

- First, I declare that I give my spirit and soul to God our lord; let him come to take it, because he redeemed it with his precious blood. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- Second, I declare that Agustín Yaochihualoc, whose home is San Francisco Tlaxoxiuhco, killed (a mule?) of mine; it cost 16 pesos and he killed it; when he killed it, we made a company, because it was the fault of both of us. And now I declare that I divide the price in two; I forgive him eight pesos that he is not to pay, and he will just promptly pay the eight pesos (remaining). I assign eight pesos to the church, with which masses are to be said for me; the deputies are to speak for me.

- Third, I declare that as to the purchased level land of mine, with five chinampas, each one 20 (units of measure) long, which constitute its land at the edge of the water, I bought this from the late Antonio (de San Francisco) Tlemachicatzin (Document 30). I gave him 11 pesos; this (land) that I mention is in Atechcalcan. (The 11 pesos) were not the whole price; (it was) much (more). There is a written agreement of how it was bought, and this is all I declare. I give this to my grandchild Baltasar, who lives somewhere (I don't know exactly where). It is to belong to him if he comes back. No one is to violate my statement. And there are two small chinampas in Tequacuilco next to the field of Joaquín Ramírez, and these said chinampas are to be sold and the proceeds will belong to me; with it masses are to be said for me. Perhaps someone will want to offer a peso (for them). You deputies will speak for me.

- Fourth, I declare that my level land at the entrance (of the property) of Melchor Juan is to be sold; perhaps someone will want to buy it. However much the proceeds are will belong to the church in order for masses to be said for me. You deputies will speak for me. /f. 106v/ And there are four chinampas of mine in Acatzintitlan, next to the field of Tomás Xochihua, and I give these said chinampas to my grandchildren. I give two to María Verónica and two to Francisca Magdalena. I make it their property; no one is to claim it from them.

- And the house where I lie was the house of Gabriel Acol. We bought it, and there is a judgment about how (the purchase) is valid, because the both of us, my wife and I, bought it. I declare that it is divided; one section (wing) is to belong to me, and perhaps (my?) children and grandchildren will favor me with some little thing; although their mother, my daughter-in-law, wife of my late son, is alive, they are to request a mass for me. And the (other) section belongs to my wife. And here I declare the goods of other people that were given to us to keep: a shirt that belonged to one named María, daughter of Francisco Tototoc (she was going to give it to someone when she was widowed, but she wasn't able to give it to anyone). And she said when she was at the point of death "Keep the shirt: it is to be sold and with it masses will be said for my late mother." And now I declare that Juan Cuicuil borrowed (the shirt) and left it worn by use (when he died). His wife and his daughter-in-law named María Ana, wife of Miguel de la Cruz, have already come to take (the shirt back?). Now let them pay for it and let it be brought promptly to the church. The deputies are to see to it. And here is what María Ana, wife of Miguel de la Cruz, said: "We lent them one peso and four tomines of our money. It belongs to the church; let it be paid and brought to the church, and let masses be said with it."

Testament of Marcos Hernández Acolnahuacatl, November 21, 1599

The people who issued the last three testaments in the Culhuacan collection all bore the—under the circumstances—rare surname of Hernández, but nothing indicates any other kind of relationship between them. Spanish surnames are often an index of high status. In the closing formulas, most of the Culhuacan testaments specify the day of the week and the full date, figured by the European system. Marcos's will includes also a saint's day, that of Saint Catherine, but it is not clear whether or not that day had any special significance to the testator or to the town of San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan. Note the passage in which Marcos compares his grandchildren to little birds hatched in the nest, his house. This seems to be a standard metaphor; a similar phrase is found in a speech recorded in Alonso de Zorita's work (Life and Labor in Ancient Mexico [New Brunswick, NJ, 1963]:141).

/f. 107v/ - In the name of God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Spirit, just one true God in whom I believe, I make and order my testament. Know all who see and read this document that I, by name Marcos Hernández Acolnahuacatl, whose home is here in San Juan Evangelista Culhuacan, belonging to the ward of Santísimo Atlacapan, say that if God our lord desires that I die, let him come to take my spirit and soul, because it is something redeemed by him. And my body I give to the earth because from earth it came.

- First, I declare that as to this house where I lie, facing east, with all the enclosure of stone that surrounds it, and concerning the measurements, the houselot measures eight matl toward Mexico City and toward the west it goes as far as the small water flowers, I declare that I give it to my four grandchildren, the first named Salomé, the second Francisco, the third named María, and the fourth Diego. And I give it to all four, as if they were little birds, because there they left the egg, and (the house is the product) of the work of their late grandmother, and here their mother named María is to rule (raise) them. And concerning the small house that faces west, the foundation wall is my property, but the wood which it is covered with is the property of the ward heads of Santísimo. They are to take it all, with the wall of adobe—what I enclosed it with was adobe. And I declare that there are some chinampas of mine (in Acalomac? on the other side of the canal?) right here at the entrance. I declare that I assign two chinampas to our father of Santísimo (the ward saint?). Perhaps the ward heads will put something there that Santísimo needs.
 These chinampas that I mention are not long but 10 matl each, no more, facing toward Xochimilco. And the other two (chinampas) of the four I assign to my daughter named Ana María, wife of Antonio Miguel. I make it her property, no one is to dispute with her over the said chinampas, one facing toward Xochimilco and the other toward Coyoacan. I make it her property, and no one is to dispute it with her. And here at the entrance, there are four small chinampas, and in a separate place there are another two, also small, with which there are six. Here I leave them to my grandchildren. I give (the chinampas) to them and to my daughter-in-law named María. No one is to claim them from them. And I say that as to a net, a new one just (completed?) and one (still in the process of being made?), /f. 108r/ I declare that they will be sold, and the proceeds will belong to me, and with

And let my children sell my used blanket, and the proceeds will belong to me in order for masses to be said for me. This is all I say in my statement, before the witnesses I called who heard my declaration: Francisco Moysén; Tomás de Aquino; Domingo Hernández; Antonio Miguel; Simón Chapol, tepixqui; and the women: María Juana, daughter-in-law of the invalid; Juana Martina, wife of Bartolomé; Ana María, wife of Antonio Miguel; María Gerónima, whose home is Cihuatecpán; Isabel María, wife of Gregorio Naçol. Personal Memoranda, (1600s)

We have seen earlier (Doc. 61) that Miguel Jacobo (de Maldonado), who wrote a third of the wills in the Culhuacan collection, had the book of testaments taken from him because he had hidden some wills. Nevertheless, he apparently regained favor. At some point someone scribbled three personal notes about his career at the back of the book (something similar is found in various Nahuatl histories and annals). It is possible that given the time elapsed, the person spoken of is a descendant of the original Miguel Jacobo. Most likely, however, the document concerns the same man, attaining the relatively high municipal office of alcalde late in life—not an unusual pattern for a Nahua notary.

/f. 108v/ Miguel Jacobo was made notary for the year 1602 and alcalde for 1603, and notary for 1604 and 1605. And in 1606 he began to get sick, right at the beginning of the year.
